Dear President:
This amatem carving of the "Great Emancipator" is given to you as a remembrance of the only wacuation from american soil in history. It is carved from a piece of Walrus tusk obtained from the Aleuts of St. Paul and St. George islands when they were moved to Funter Bay in South eastern Alaska in the fall of 1942. It is carved in Seattle by me in 1944. I am a Norwegian and was living in "Uncle Sams attic" for over five years, mostly in Juneau. I am hoping the enslaved nations of Europe together with the allied nations will soon have the "Hun on the run, as the sons of Mikado are chased back to the land of the "Setting sun"

Dear Mr. Roosevelt

I have been ill with a stroke for several months. So to keep from being bored, on account of staying in so much, I took paper and pencil and began to sketch.

I sketch up something that might ~~be~~ be of interest

So I'm sending it to you as a token for your service to our country for the ~~four~~ term. This is a sketch of two planes and a ship.

The top plane No 77 is called the "Pearl Harbor Rocket" The plane in center No 4 is called ~~the~~ Pearl Harbor Bomber and the ship is called "Pearl Harbor ~~Sub~~"

All of these are in memory of the Pearl Harbor Attack.

Hope you will enjoy looking at them.

Yours for victory

By FRANK C. WALDROP

Washington, D. C., Aug. 13.—Most remarkable fact about the President's Saturday night speech from Seattle, insofar as Washington listeners were concerned, was not what he said but how he said it.

The voice was still the voice of F.D.R.—but how changed. Gone was the oldstyle silvery smoothness and easy flow. Instead, there was noted a slow, careful, and several times actually stumbling, delivery that lacked punch and precision.

Sunday morning found this city abuzz with curiosity as to what has happened to the gifted orator who once made his promises sound so good, so true and so beautiful on the nation-wide hookup.

As to the content of the speech, the most significant passage seemed to be the revelation that, insofar as F.D.R. is concerned, American soldiers and sailors are fighting across the Pacific to restore intact to the other nations of the world the colonies they have lost to the Japanese piecemeal throughout this century.

Dear Mr. President:

Some three or four weeks ago I gave a picture of my family to one of the White House guards who promised to present it to you. I am sending this note to explain the pictures.

I came to this country in 1908 with six children, and six more were born in this country. I took out papers at once and became a citizen in 1914.

The six smaller children in the upper picture were all born in this country. All four of the boys are in the armed services. On the bottom row, from left to right, are Hubert, who is in the Navy; Albert, who is in the Army; and Franz, who is in the Marines. Matthias, the boy standing, is in the Coast Guard. The girls, from left to right, are Anna, now Sister Hubert, Gertrude (Mrs. Watts), and Margaret (Mrs. Tippy). The latter two have worked in the shipyards, and one is a widow with two children--her husband was killed in Italy. The older girl, Theresa, standing in the back row, has worked nineteen years in the telephone office.

The left center and the bottom picture are of the same children, all of them in the service of the Church. They are, left to right, Karl (Brother Conrad), and the twins--Kathryn and Maria (Sister Fides and Sister Corona), and Edward (Rev. Joseph Anton). The picture on the right center is of the twins with Anna standing between them.

We love our country and are proud to do something for it. I am getting to be an old man now, but I am still able to work, and am running an elevator in the Library of Congress building.

Thank you, Mr. President; I hope you got the picture.

Yours Respectfully,
Matth. L. Gilliam.

Dear Mr. President:

Listening to your fire-side chat of Saturday evening, it was thrilling to hear you talk of our Alaskan Outpost. Two years ago, in the course of his duties, my husband, Gilbert W. Gabriel, worked and lived in Alaska from the period of the bombing of Dutch Harbor thru April of the following year. Out of this experience, he wrote a novel, just published,"I GOT A COUNTRY", about life in Alaska today and it's future for our young soldier-pioneers.

Mr. Gabriel has been overseas for OWI the last four months and is still there. So in his absence, I am taking the liberty of sending you a copy of this book, hoping you will enjoy reading it.

With all best wishes for your continued splendid work and good health in the White House, I am most sincerely,

Gives much praise to the American Minister - Hon. David Gray. - -ThePresident replied Aug. 23, 1944, explaining the reason for his long delay in writing. States that Lt. Col. Gregory is very kind to present to him the original parchment deed signed by the Governor of Virginia in 1787 and says that David Gray tell the President that he is keeping it until there is a safe means of transportation to this country. Dear Mr. President:

During one of my infrequent visits to Washington last month, I took the liberty of giving you a token of my personal admiration and esteem. Not having the temerity to interrupt at the White House, I left it with Miss Huss, the Vice President's secretary, who assured me that it would be delivered to you.

The gift is merely an initialled paper weight which I made of Macassar Ebony. I hope you like it and that you will find occasion to use it. If I may be permitted to conjure up a symbol in this instance, I would like to say that I selected Macassar Ebony not only because it is one of the most exotic of woods but because it is found in that part of the East Indies near the Macassar Straits where, under your leadership, our Navy subjected the Japanese to one of their earliest and most significant trouncings.

In giving you this piece of Macassar Ebony, I should like to think of it as a prophecy that soon again free men shall walk in those areas where the agressor now stalks with chains and tyranny.

Please accept my best wishes for your continued leadership.

Respectfully yours,

Archie Goldhor

DIRECTOR, WASHINGTON OFFICE

August 31, 1944

Dear President:

One of the difficult continuing tasks a radio network has is to make sure that the strange names of people and places that pour into the news from all over the world are correctly pronounced on the air.

Some seven years ago CBS sought help in this area of the spoken word and turned to W. Cabell Greet, Columbia University professor, who is an authority on pronunciation and dialects. Under his expert guidance we set up standards of broadcast-speech which have been improved steadily in the face of a rising flood of foreign words. Last year he published "War Words" -- a pronouncing dictionary compiled for CBS. It was so helpful and successful that he started at once on a new book, greatly expanding the first.

And now World Words is out. In it Professor Greet has listed nearly 10,000 foreign words and names -- with two respelled pronunciations of each -- covering languages from Albanian and Arabic to Thai and Turkish.

We are sending a copy to you with the hope that it will not only prove fascinating reading, especially to a man who devotes a good deal of time to the spoken word, but perhaps specifically helpful in your discussions of the people and places that figure in our essential consciousness of the expanding postwar world.

Sincerely yours,

E. H. Gammons
