My dear Mr. LeHand:-

It was through your courtesy, that about a year ago I sent to President Roosevelt, a crayon picture at which I worked 18 months and which cost me in expenses about $300 in cash.

Naturally I did it for the strong admiration I have for the President, but at the same time, I am a poor, honest artist, an American citizen and have been decorated with gold medals by the Kaiser of Germany, Sultan Emperor of Turkey, King Carol of Rumania, King George of England, and many other ~~xxxxx~~ kings and big personalities of other countries, all of whom treated me very good financially besides the decoration of gold medals.

Mr. LeHand, as I have been very hard hit by the depression, I am very badly fixed financially, and as I already stated, if my picture was accepted by the President, I expected a good cash reward for it. If it was not accepted, I expected it to be returned to me. Now, Mr. LeHand, I leave it to you to straighten this matter out. I would appreciate it very much if you would take this matter up personally with the President, show him this letter, tell him of the bad circumstances I am in, so that this time he will give me favorable consideration. I expect with your kind co-operation and with the President's good will to receive a substantial compensation, so that I will be able to be put on my feet again financially.

I do hope there will be no further delay in this matter as I am worrying sick about it. If the President is not pleased with my picture, please send it back to me.

Many thanks to you for your trouble and a sure victory in the fall for the President, I am

GAILOR HAILS THE NEW ORDER

Bishop Says Profit Motive Has Brought Judgment.

CHATTANOOGA, Jan. 23.—A stirring declaration that the machine age's economic order has broken down and the "profit motive has brought its own judgment" was made here today by Bishop Thomas F. Gailor of the Episcopal diocese of Tennessee as he opened the annual diocese convention.

The Memphis churchman upheld the "wise interference of government in control of private business" and urged Christians to be content with less wealth for the good of all.

"All material wealth," said Bishop Gailor, "is valuable only so far as it may be produced, distributed and used for the salvation of the lives of men. x x x Will professing Christians, x x x strong men, the natural leaders of the world of commerce and industry, x x x will good men be content to be less wealthy, less powerful, less secluded, if only they can give more health, greater freedom and larger opportunity to the whole body of the people?

"The capitalistic, profit-motive machine system defeated itself," Bishop Gailor said, "destroying the demand for its own abundant manufacturers by requiring that wages be derived from an amount of employment that the machine makes unnecessary.

"I am sure that we all realize that we are living in a time that may well be called a crisis in human history.

"Without any doubt the old commercial and economic order has broken down. The machine age has reached its nemesis. The profit motive has brought its own judgment. As Mr. Peck said in his lectures a year ago: 'The machine industry, directed by capitalistic motives, has relatively widened the distance between rich and poor. It has destroyed the remnants of the sense of human solidity and has replaced it by the regimentation of the poor by their rulers. It has evicted the soul from labor. It has regarded the worker as a tool, when working, and as an encumbrance when unemployed. It has vulgarized the idea of education. It has commercialized art and amusement. It has distorted the functions of the newspapers. It has exacerbated the relations of the nations and corrupted the backward races.

"You and I know that the Christian religion has demonstrated its power to mould the social and political character of the world; but its real force is in working from within by influencing and transforming individual human souls. It is not a mere system of philanthropy. It is not a cure for social misery that can be applied from the outside; but, as it has been often said, it brings to each man and woman the message of redemption, and offers them a new nature and new life through faith in Jesus Christ."

We are sending you this day a turkey for your birthday dinner, grown in the Yakima Valley and hope you will enjoy the flavor of a washington bird.

This gift, however, is not given for itself, but to show our regard for true leadership, for a fearlessness and earnestness which commands the respect and admiration of every American citizen.

In your years of unselfish service in behalf of our country and its national welfare, Mr. President, you have been privi-laged to convert into definite action new policies of government.

Especially do we wish to thank the Administration for raising the price of turkeys from 12½ a lb. in Feb. 1934 to 25¢ alb in 1935.

May you be guided and protected in your years of further service for your country and for humanity is our sincere birthday wish.

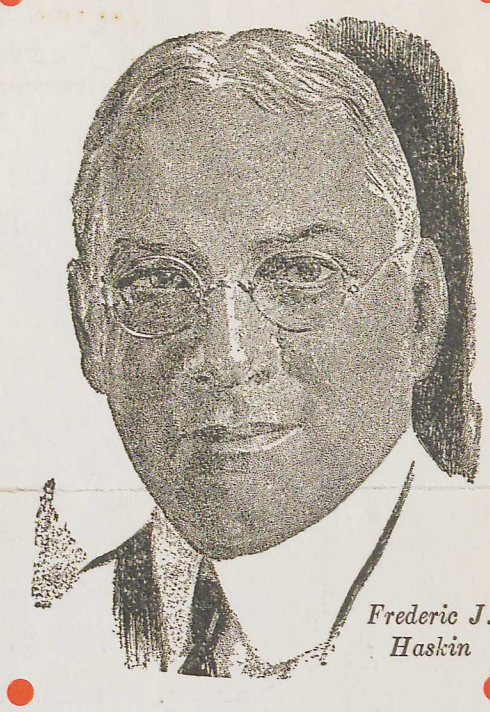
The agent of the people



Frederic J. Haskin

THE GREAT educational service conducted by Frederic J. Haskin is one of the distinctive features of this era of newspaper development.

The Director of the world's greatest free information bureau made his start as a newsboy in a little town in Missouri. He became a successful country editor, and later established himself as a newspaper correspondent with long and varied international experience. About thirty years ago he moved to Washington, D. C., and opened an office in one room with one assistant.

The business now occupies about 25,000 square feet of space in a modern building erected for its special use. Visitors to the plant are amazed at the enormous mail handled here, and the speed and skill displayed by the employees are commented upon by all who see them at their work. On the day this circular was written the staff handled over 17,000 transactions—meaning that it served that many individuals all over the United States either by answering questions or forwarding educational booklets. One has only to consider that the bulk of this material came from official sources to understand what a great work the Bureau is doing in passing along the findings of the Government to citizens of every community in the country.

First of all, Frederic J. Haskin is a newspaper correspondent. Every day in the year, including holidays and Sundays, his daily letter is prepared for the great list of newspapers which have featured it for many years. While these letters cover a wide range of subjects, they deal mostly with the constructive work of the Federal Government. No other writer does so much to acquaint the people with the many things their Government is doing for them.

This big information service does two things—it answers questions of fact and distributes educational literature. It is a cooperative bureau maintained by a large list of enterprising American newspapers all of which advertise it and subscribe to its support. No other educational business in existence commands such an asset, and this vast power is used principally in the furtherance of patriotic education.

In no city other than Washington could such a service be developed. Here is the seat of learning. In the Library of Congress, and the numerous departments of the Federal Government, are found the answers to practically all questions of fact which may be asked. Through locating and using these official sources of information the Bureau rises to its opportunity and functions as one of the most useful agencies in the nation. It has become the focal point for American curiosity. It is in reality a national chamber of commerce for the small transaction—an easy contact for the citizen with his Government. More questions come to it than to any place on earth. The Director answers more inquiries than any individual who ever lived. Doubtless no other American could be so aptly called The Agent of the People.

Dear Mr. President:

We are forwarding to you under separate cover a piece of the Birthday Cake which was presented to your son, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., for you at the Birthday Ball held here in Boston last night. The cake, which weighed approximately thirty-four hundred pounds, was presented by the New England Bakers Association.

After your sons, Franklin, Jr. and John, cut pieces of the cake to be sent to you and Mrs. Roosevelt, and your Mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, the remainder of the cake was cut and sold to those attending the Ball. A considerable sum was realized and this money will be added to the funds for the relief of those afflicted with infantile paralysis.

We hope you will like this cake, as we thought it was the best way we could show you that we are in accordance with your great plans for those so unfortunately afflicted.

Dear Friend
Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt

I was informed that you wanted the oldest Bible you could find, and I have one that is 323 years old. My father brought it from the old country when he was 19 years old, and he lived 73 years when he died and he is dead 50 years, and I saved the Bible still up to now, and I am 70 years old, and I have it yet.

My neighbors say it is the oldest in this part of country and is the best of reading and the lids come off.

My house burned down 5 years ago and they threw it in the yard, but it is all oak. If you want the Bible write to me soon, and I will send it to you. You are my President, therefore I want you to have it. I worked for you in the campaign. You have done good so far.

M.A.L. HAND, ESQ,
Secretary to the President, White House Washington.

Dear Mr L. Hand,

Your letter of February 2nd to hand and its contents noted, for which I thank you very much.

Your letter Sir, states that my letter of Jan 28th was received by President Roosevelt, but you did not say if the book under seprate cover had been received.

You will pardon my taking up your valuable time but I have many reasons for making this inquary, there are many of my books lost in the mails, and just now I have the Postal autherities, here tracing these books.

I have mailed 6 books to prominent men in London and 2 to members of the Royal Ulster yacht club, Belfast Ireland, all mailed to them in November and no reply, I wrote one of these men, and his answer "no we have not received the book you speak of, namely "THE LIFE AND TIMES OF THE LATE SIR THOMAS LIPTON"

So I had to call upon the Government to trace them Also a number of books in both city and State, trying to advertize my work, so you see Sir, my reason for asking this favor, with 15 books lost to me, living on a pension of $58 33 per month my only income, retired from the New York Police Department October 23rd 1906, and age now 75

And I am proud to say that I was one of the first to send a check to our great and glorious President, at the time when it was sorely needed, yes a second check, I forwarded, for the PRESIDENT WILSON FOUNDATION.

God bless and assist out President, sent to us from Heaven, and I am sure that any man that ~~that~~ can bring about the building of a great foundation, is going to brin us out of this depression, but he must be supported.

Respectfully yours, J.J. Hickey.

Dear Mr. Hickey:

I am reading your book "The Life and Times of Sir Thomas Lipton". As a sociological treat it is one of the most interesting books that I have ever read. It is a detailed history of the boyhood struggles of a successful man.

It is evident that in early life his chief aim was success. His forethought, even as a boy, no doubt, convinced him that he could not acquire in Glasgow as a clerk, even by penurious saving, the capital he needed to clear the road to independence. A clerk in a store was not independent.

With his strong character and his varied ideas we can understand how and why he ventured as a stowaway in order to enter the land where with honest toil and prudent saving he could acquire the four hundred dollars that you refer to in your book (p. 18).

He was not a wanderer. He had a strong attachment for his home and for his mother and from the cheer by which he was received in Glasgow on his return he had some reason to feel assured that the road to independence was clear.

His reception in Glasgow on his return and of his kindness to his mother and of his entry into business as an independent man, you have beautifully and graphically described (p. 18).

I include also your early struggles as you explain them from your boyhood up through your work on the force to the day you wrote and had published your first book. Your struggles did not rest there. On the contrary they continued up to the time you wrote and published your second book. It is hard. Do not get discouraged. When we go back to the history of authors and artists of years ago we find that the best that they received for their struggles was fame.

With best wishes for your success, I am

Sincerely,

EDW. F. REYNOLDS

The New York Sun of November 9th, 1934,

"HICKEYESQUE"

"THE LIFE, TIMES AND LETTERS OF THE LATE SIR THOMAS J. LIPTON"

By "Officer 787", John J. Hickey, Retired. The Hickey Publishing Co., $3.

This book might also be called "The Life and Times of John J. Hickey," for it relates largely to Mr. Hickey's visits to Sir Thomas and his altercations with the baronet's secretary who tried to keep him away from his chief. That he usually failed of his dire purpose will readily be believed by those who remember the author when he was known along Park Row as "Hickey the Ox," as stout a fellow as ever wore the blue. The book contains many letters from Lipton to Hickey and the author's views on almost all mundane subjects. No ghost-writing here; the style is intensely Hickeyesque.

The Yonker's Record of December 17th, 1934: "THE LIFE, TIMES AND LETTERS OF THE LATE SIR THOMAS J. LIPTON." Sir Thomas J. Lipton, late internationally-known sportsman whose heroic endeavors to wrest the America's Cup for yacht racing never fruition, is the subject of an interesting and entertaining biography by John J. Hickey, well known Captain of Police Athletics of New York. Sir Thomas, before his death, asked Mr. Hickey to write this book and send him its first copy, and this book, written and compiled by Captain Hickey, is a fine tribute to the man.

Captain Hickey has devoted considerable research to the contents of the book of 259 pages embracing 20 pages of illustrations, commencing with our great and glorious President, the Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt, sailing his own fine big racing yacht, the "Queen of the Ocean"—the "Square Deal"—to victory.

Finely constructed and ably written is the result. In the work Officer "787", as he was known all around New York during his captaincy, has preserved in print numerous incidents and anecdotes concerning the life of Sir Thomas, who named Captain Hickey the historian of the New York Police Department, and they were often seen together, both here and abroad.

This work contains much autobiographical material since the late sportsman was working on that portion of the present book in October 1930 when the American people were busy presenting Sir Thomas with a Loving Cup, thanks to the world's greatest humorist, Will Rogers, the Mayor of Beverley Hills, who started the ball a-rolling, making a darn good job of it.

This book relates many outstanding incidents, such as the meeting of the author, and our former Governor Alfred E. Smith, whom Officer "787" knew as a boy, a resident of the old 4th Ward, the precinct that Mr. Hickey was assigned to and which he worked many years, and watched young Al Smith grow from a very fine useful boy to a step to the Presidency, the arrival of Sir Thomas and his many trips throughout the land and is written in a frank forthright manner that deserves to win many new readers for the very capable author. "The Life and Times of Sir Thomas Lipton" by Captain Hickey, may very well take its stand as the most complete biography of the beloved sportsman that this country has yet been privileged with, can be obtained from the author, post paid at $3., 34 East 32nd Street, N. Y. C., and at all booksellers.

Captain John J. Hickey,

Dear Sir: January 15th, 1935.

I want to sincerely thank you for and heartily congratulate you on your glorious work in presenting to the public "THE LIFE AND TIMES AND LETTERS OF THE LATE SIR THOMAS LIPTON" which I read, as it certainly is the finest tribute to the greatest sportsman that the world ever produced, that has ever been my good fortune to read.
