My dear Miss Boyd:

Many thanks in the President's behalf for the wooden goblet to which you refer in your note of September third. He appreciates the friendly thought which prompted you to present it to him and has directed that it be sent on to Hyde Park to be placed in the Museum.

I am indeed sorry, but we have no snapshots of Fala that we could send you.

Very sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Roosevelt:

I am sending you a gadget for your Museum as I thought it belonged in your family.

It is a souvenir used during Teddy Roosevelt's campaign for office.

I think you are a wonderful President and what ever you do I will stand in back of you.

Always a Democrat,

Ruth Boyd.

P. S. I would like a snap shot of Falla as I have a Scottie, Bonnie Lassie.

My dear Mr. Lutton:

Many thanks for the gift, a product of your own handiwork, which you were good enough to send to the President. He is most appreciative of your friendly thought of him.

I feel sure that you will understand why it is not possible to comply with your request when I explain to you that in times such as these it is increasingly important that the President be permitted to devote his every attention to his official duties.

The President

My dear Mr. President:

By express I am sending you a framed reproduction of the American Flag, "Sentinel of Freedom", by Adrian Brewer. The original of this painting has been in my possession for some time and it has been acclaimed as one of the most outstanding pictures of the Flag. All who have seen this picture marvel at its beauty and the inspiration with which Mr. Brewer has portrayed his own love and the love of all Americans for liberty and freedom.

I have been told by many that they find comfort and solace in the picture and that a copy of this painting should be in every American home so that it might influence the lives of children as well as adults. I want to do my part in helping to spread the spirit of patriotism and have had reproductions made so that as many people as possible might have a copy of this beautiful picture.

I thought you might enjoy having one; I do hope you like it.

Sincerely yours,

C. E. Lowry

"Sentinel of Freedom"

THE SENTINEL OF FREEDOM stands guard over the homes of 130 million people. Though not visible from every threshold, its presence is ever felt. The blue of the mountains, the sparkle of the river, and the golden rays of the sun lend beauty and elegance to this gentle but determined master of American destiny.

The original of this great picture came from the brush of an inspired, nationally-known soldier-artist of World War No. 1, Mr. Adrian Brewer. The painting of the picture not only quickened his artistic sense but something deep and fundamental, something almost sacred. He felt it a duty to complete the picture in such fashion that one viewing it would instinctively feel that beneath its protective folds there permanently abide honor, liberty, opportunity, and justice, the assurances accorded only to Americans.

The Biographical Directory of "Who's Who in Art," published by the American Federation of Art in Washington, D. C., lists many of Mr. Brewer's awards. He is represented in the travelling collection of the Extension Department of the Chicago Art Institute; in "Contemporary Art of the United States"; and his pictures were at the Gallery of Science and Art, Golden Gate International Exposition. He has many other pictures in public and private collections in America, Sweden, Mexico, Peru, and Columbia. Even so, the SENTINEL OF FREEDOM is considered his masterpiece.

Walnut Creek, California

September 13th, 1941

Dear Mr Watson;

Last night I received a letter from my friend Hendrik Van Loon enclosing one from you to him of Sept. 9th which showed that I had missed the Bus again in my usual fashion. Hendrik told me he would write and ask if I might see the President, but he spoke of it so casually and I'm rather a modest bird and such luck for me seemed so incredible, that I hurried out of Washington when my job was done.

Under separate cover I am sending The President a copy of Yankee Doc , my last copy of the first edition, and while it's fantastic to mention, I hope he has a look at it. Its easy reading, the Pacific is discussed in an informal way , and it is said to have some amusing stories.

As I had to say, honestly, in my inscription, I am only a 'reconstructed' Roosevelt man but a good one just the same ; and I'm doing all that an old man can do to serve, in an active way, the country.

Please convey to The President, if it means anything to him, my profound regret that I missed this great opportunity to meet a very great man.

Do you know Hendrik ? A prodigal Dutchman who dissipates his mind and its product and what he earns, with the abandon of a drunken sailor. The other day I asked him how many shirts he had. He said "Five or six", I said "No one wearing your size could have been around lately".

Sincerely

Dear President;

I am inclosing two prints of a picture I took while driving in the country one evening at sun down.

I took the pictures to get the clouds but when I developed same I found the one cloud was quite a likness of you.(At least that is what MY imagination proved to me) The trees form a sort of V and as one of my friends said, the cloud on the left looks something like Ex President Wilson.

The picture was taken dureing the War Manuvers here and it struck me as rather a coincidence.

Perhaps YOUR imagination doesn't see this as it looks to me but never the less, I trust you will have time to look it over.

Respectfully yours,

My dear Mr. Lipset:

Secretary Early has referred to me your letter of September thirteenth.

May I assure you of the President's appreciation of your thoughtfulness in wishing to present to him an autographed album of recently recorded sermonettes by the Southernaires. He will be happy to have it, but I regret that it is impossible to arrange for you to come in and present it in person. Since the international situation has become so grave it has been the policy for me to receive, on the President's behalf, all such gifts.

Therefore, if you will phone my secretary after your arrival in Washington we will be glad to arrange a convenient hour.

Mr. Stephen Early,
Sec'y to the President,
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Early:-

Quite some time ago I was happy to offer the services of my famous negro quartet "THE SOUTHERNAIRES" for an appearance at the White House. Due to serious conditions facing the nation I received a most pleasant letter from the President thanking me for this offer. My quartet recently recorded a new Album of negro sermonettes, and the British Ambassador has asked me to send him a copy. This is the same quartet that recorded a special Album which the Hon. Winston Churchill played for his associates last XMAS and which he complimented, and P.M. gave this story a two page spread. The new Album will be released on Sept.18th and on my trip to Washington to deliver an autographed copy to the British Ambassador may I have the extreme honor to present such an autographed Album to the World's greatest humanitarian, the man for whom I have campaigned these many years our President has been a public servant. His autographed picture still graces my Desk and to my last days will be my most cherished possession.

I thought that the President might be interested in the following;- I have a copy before me of the New York Journal Tues. December 4,1917, and on the front page is headlined the message from America's great martyr and president, Woodrow Wilson. Then as now, his words were written as if he foretold the future, and the Quislings of that day are no different than those our President speaks about to-day -for here is what he said: "I hear men debate peace who understand neither it's nature nor in the way in which we may attain it with uplifted eyes and unbroken spirits, but I know that none of these speaks for the nation. They do not touch the heart of anything. They may safely be left to strut their uneasy hour and be forgotten." "WE shall regard the war as won only when the German people say to us, through properly accredited representatives, that they are ready to agree to a settlement based upon Justice and the reparations of the wrongs their rulers have done."
My best wishes for the continued good health of the President and a gloriously successful completion of all his plans.

Very sincerely,

Ben B. Lipset

I COVERED THE BLITZ

By Ben Robertson . . . How Churchill Relaxes . . .

'If New York and Washington Were London They Would Be Grim Battened-Down Cities With Barbed Wire in the Streets . . .'

This is the second of a series of uncensored articles on the situation in Britain by Ben Robertson, Jr., who has been PM's correspondent in London for the past six months. Mr. Robertson, fresh from the air blitzkrieg on England, has just returned to the U. S. A.

Copyright, 1941, by The Newspaper PM, Inc., in the United States, Canada and all countries in the International Copyright Union. Reproduction in whole or in part strictly forbidden.

By Ben Robertson, Jr.

"What is the Real Situation?"

On coming home from six tremendous months in England, I am asked by almost everybody I see, "What is the real situation now in Britain?" Practically everybody seems anxious to talk to someone—to anyone—who has just come back from the battle, and when I ask them what do they mean by "the real situation," I find they want to know how Churchill is standing the strain, how Bevin is getting along, what was Kennedy like in London, how is production keeping up?

Is it true that the rich can still buy luxurious food in spite of rationing, is the class system really breaking down, what happens when the water gives out, do people ever get used to bombing, can they really sleep?—on and on, the questions pour. Is the shelter situation getting any better, is there danger of epidemics, can British morale last, what about the censor?

I will try to answer some of these questions as the various situations appeared to me the first of this year.

About the Prime Minister—he seems to be one of those men like President Roosevelt who thrive on crises. He can work 17 to 18 hours a day, day on end, and with the greatest problems in the world revolving about him, he also can relax. He can go away to the country for a day or so, as the President goes to Hyde Park, and he can be as carefree as anybody on those occasions.

Time Off for Movies

Just before Christmas he took time off to see the whole of Gone with the Wind and when it was finished he said he had been reduced to a pulp, that he hadn't a bone left in his body; he said thank God he could get back to his own war. Recently he saw a private showing of The Great Dictator and he thought it was wonderful—especially as a public [illegible] Chaplin's long [illegible] Churchill admired [illegible] as an actor.

One evening he and his close friends had community singing in the parlor and the Prime Minister sang When that Midnight Chu-chu Leaves for Alabam. He listened for a long time to an album of records of the Southernaires, a group of American Negro singers—he listened to Nobody Knows the Trouble I've Seen and Steal Away to Jesus.

The Prime Minister still is continuing [illegible] putting into words the feelings of the Brit[illegible] he still is their inspiration and their [illegible] their political leader.

Like a real writer, he searches for words and he is always jotting down ideas and expressions—even in the bathroom, he composes speeches. His health is good, and like the President, the Prime Minister enjoys his power. He enjoys his great role all the more since for so many years he was denied it. He is England's war leader—many people are [illegible] he will be too Tory for the peace. Some Englishmen say he has been so busy running the war he hasn't had time to be Prime Minister.

How is Labor Minister Ernest Bevin doing? As heftily as ever, and increasing his influence every day with the [illegible] People. Bevin would succeed Ch[illegible] thing [illegible] M. Some think so, [illegible] another Tory would have to set in—that Bevin will not become the next Prime Minister but the one after that. Their argument is that the British haven't known Bevin long enough yet to trust him at Downing Street; they say Bevin is about where Lloyd George was in 1911.

Bevin lives at the Strand Palace Hotel. [illegible] has a quality of ponderousness and agility that makes you think of John L. Lewis. Bevin when he sits down looks like a sitting Buddha. The Tories still are afraid of him [illegible] ested more in raising [illegible] than he is in [illegible] and their line of attack is to say he [illegible]

These sturdy Britons look far from licked as they salvage what furniture they can from their bombed homes with the aid of the ARP. This picture was taken in London, but the people of other bombed cities in England have taken the Nazi raiding with equal courage. The piano in the left background looks as though its notes will be heard again.

'Constantly Puzzled Us'

As an Ambassador, however, he constantly puzzled us. His logic was so baffling. While seeming to be for England, he seemed to be against, and sometimes he told us things, which if they weren't word for word like that interview in the Boston Globe they sounded very like it.

Finally, we put him down as a Wall Street bear—war wasn't good for his business. Kennedy's enemies in London said the Ambassador was afraid.

We are escorted, it is true, but we can see whatever we want to see at most particular places, we can talk to anyone. We can visit any town in England, go into any prohibited areas except Areas 1 and 2 in Northern Scotland, into which admission to all civilians is refused.

(These two areas are strictly prohibited districts because that part of Scotland has many indentations in its coastline and is considered to be more vulnerable to attack than other parts of the Island.)

U. S. Reporters Privileged

We as American journalists can visit areas in England, which not even the average Englishman is allowed in. We have a prohibited area pass from the Home Office and we do not even have to tell anyone in London that we are going. The only requirement we must meet is to report ourselves to the Security Police at the prohibited town when we get there and before we go away. We can go to Dover, for instance, but the average Londoner can't.

What does London look like? Well, London is both Britain's biggest city and B[illegible]

British people, as well as those in the U. S. A., have been puzzled by the paradox of Mr. Kennedy's talk and behavior in London. It would be interesting to know what kind of a reception he would get today.

Dear Mr. Watson:-

In your letter of Sept.18th you suggest that I phone your secretary on my arrival and an appointment will be arranged. I intend being in Washington on Friday morning and am bringing an autographed ALBUM #1 of the latest recorded Hymns and Sermons of the "SOUTHERNAIRES". The quartet is leaving for an extended concert tour and hope that they may be invited to present a private concert for the President at Hyde Park. This is a standing offer.

I am also going to the British Embassy to present an Album for Lord Halifax and one to be sent to the Hon. Winston Churchill. I am certain that the President will, receive a great deal of pleasure and relaxation as well as comfort from these recordings.

I shall call your office as soon as I arrive on Friday.

With all good wishes,

Sincerely yours,

Honorable Franklin Delano Roosevelt
President of the United States

Dear Mr. President:

Although I became blind two years ago and have spent that time in an institution, I could not help but follow with the greatest admiration, your superhuman efforts to keep our beloved country at peace and to bring a full measure of security and happiness to your fellow Americans.

I know that it is hard for you to receive the reaction of the common people as directly as a person in the ordinary walk of life. Millions of my fellow citizens adore you for the great spirit that dominates your every action. But if they cannot express everything that is on their minds it is because of the lack of a proper medium.

In my humble way, I want to express my admiration for you by the modest gift of a little model airplane which I constructed in my days of total blindness. I do not know how it will appear to a person who is blessed with the priceless privilege of eyesight, but people who have seen it tell me that it is quite an accurate creation.

This work of my lonely hours, created with the thought of some day presenting it to you, has now been completed.

Because the model is extremely fragile, my son, Daniel Lapidus,x will personally deliver it to the White House at a date and time that you may designate.

May I also take this opportunity of expressing my deep-felt sympathies upon the recent loss of your beloved Mother.

I trust that I may hear from you at your earliest convenience.

Respectfully yours

My dear Mrs. Lapidus:

The President has asked me to thank you for your very kind letter to him of October fourth, and also for your kindness in wishing him to have the model airplane which you built.

The President will be delighted with this gift, but I am afraid that we must ask your son to deliver it to me, acting on the President's behalf. Quite frankly, the President has had to designate me to act for him in this capacity for some time past, as he is so extremely busy during these critical days that he cannot see all his good friends whom under more favorable circumstances he would so enjoy. I will, therefore, be glad to receive the model from your son either by mail or in person, and will of course await your further advice.

The President sends you his best wishes, in which I join.

Dear Secretary to the President:

Although I'm not a stamp collector, I'm aware of the fact that the President is and that is the reason for my sending this "first cover."

I realize I may be only one of many, but he probably has a host of philatelist friends who may want a copy and it may come in handy that way.

Will you kindly take care of this matter for another federal employee

Seeing Niagara Falls from "Maid of the Mist."

One of the most interesting experiences of a visit to Niagara is a trip under the Falls, by means of Steamer "Maid of the Mist." The voyagers are swathed in oil skins as a defence from the saturating spray and the spectacle of the mighty volume of water, passing over the precipice 160 feet above, to fall in thunder on the rocks below is as magnificent as it is impressive.

The President wrote expressing appreciation to the entire membership of the National Press Club of their thoughtful generosity in giving the President a beautiful desk lamp. Says it is not only beautiful but highly useful and will have an honored place in President's cottage on Dutchess Hill. Says that there it will be a permanent reminder of President's membership in the Press Club which has brought the President some of the most delightful and memorable associations of his years in Washington. -- Attached is President's memo of Nov. 21, 1941, to Mr. Early re this message.
