THE WHITE HOUSE
JUN 10 8 52 AM '43
RECEIVED

June 8, 1943

Personal Secretary of the President
The White House
Washington, D.C.

Dear Sir:

I know the President is burdened with many gifts--some desirable and others not. I have wanted for a long time to send him one which I am sure would add greatly to his comfort. It is a breakfast tray made exclusively for me for sale in my small shop. It has been pronounced by my customers--especially men--as the most comfortable and convenient thing of the kind they have ever used.

I have hesitated to suggest sending it, thinking that the President probably had something very nice in this line. I know now that he has not! Recently when in New York I saw the delightful picture of Fala's Day at Radio City and centered all my attention on the tray that was being prepared for the President's breakfast. I am sure I can improve on the one he has, and I think Fala will like it too as it holds more!

It would give me the greatest pleasure to feel that I could contribute a little more comfort to his breakfast hour, so I hope he will let me send it. It comes in light green, blue, or pink. If he will accept it as a gift, let me know what color to send.

I have a small shop in Rochester and do no advertising, so rest assured the fact that the President had one of my trays would be used in no commercial way. It is purely a personal gift--a small token of my profound admiration for him.

I might add in explanation of the tray that when the "pantry tray" is removed with or without food, it leaves on the bed a sturdy tray that can be used for writing, etc. The legs are removable and it can easily be packed perfectly flat for travel.

Hoping to hear that he will allow me the privilege and pleasure of making this gift to him, I am

July 3, 1943

Dear Miss Tully:

Thank you for your nice letter. I am delighted that the President will accept my small gift. I hope he will find it convenient and will enjoy many happy and comfortable breakfasts from it.

I have added one of my tray covers which protects the surface, conserves laundry, and makes a cool summer covering. Knowing the President loves the out-of-doors so much, I had it decorated with pine cones.

I have directed the package to you, and will you convey to the President my pleasure and appreciation of his acceptance of the gift. All my good wishes to him go with it.

BYRD, Rear Admiral Richard E., Bureau of Aeronautics,
Navy Department.
February 26, 1943

Writes to the President enclosing that portion of the South Polar chart showing the Franklin Roosevelt Sea and the Franklin Roosevelt Islands. Says, "Your four islands are the southernmost ones in the world." Adds that the National Geographic Society is getting out a new map of the world which will show the President's sea.--- On March 1, 1943 Admiral Byrd wrote to Miss Tully telling that he is sending to her a framed map showing the Franklin Roosevelt Sea and the Franklin Roosevelt Islands; says he would appreciate it if she will present this to the President with his compliments. States he is also enclosing a letter telling about the map. Adds that his secretary, Miss O'Malley, is delivering this map to Miss Tully, and that she is also bringing the Pledge of Loyalty to the President as of Dec. 9, 1941 and a Petition to the Governors as of March 8, 1933. States that he wants the President to know - now that he may be sent overseas at anytime - of the many times he has done his best to strengthen his arm.---Attached is an unsigned, undated note to Miss Tully written on Bureau of Aeronautics letterhead (apparently by Miss O'Malley) indicating that the writer is leaving some photographs for her at the White House gate, and that Admiral Byrd asked her to explain that he would like to have returned to him the Pledge of Loyalty and the Petition to the Governors after the President has seen them. The writer also stated that Admiral Byrd asked her to show Miss Tully the enclosed copy of a letter (letter of introduction - "To Whom It May Concern") written by Mr. William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, in which the latter expresses his high regard for Admiral Byrd.---On 6/18/43 the President wrote to Admiral Byrd thanking him for the framed South Polar chart, from which he has learned the location of those southernmost islands bearing his name. The President added: "This, of course, has more than the usual interest for me, and another pleasing feature is the fact that I have such a good neighbor -- 'Marie Byrd Land'". He states that he is glad to have this map.

SAYS IT'S NO. 5

Manhattan: If we enter World War No. 2, it will be the fifth war for American independence—our fifth attempt to sever the bonds which tie us to the British Empire. Our first war for independence began in 1776; our second in 1812. Our third occurred beginning 1861, when, in addition to fighting the Civil War, we had to contend with a British lease-lend scheme under which Britain supplied commerce destroyers to the South. Britain really won this war, because Reconstruction lasted so long that Americans never rebuilt their commercial fleets which had laced the seven seas before the British furnished the South with the means to destroy them. In World War No. 1, Britain whispered to our State Department that unless we first extended commercial credits and then entered the war she would have to surrender her sea power to the Kaiser. We came out of World War No. 1 with the makings of the greatest Navy in the world, and had won our independence from Britain. So in 1922 we sank real battleships under the disarmament agreement, while Britain tore up a lot of battleship blueprints. Hadn't we better re-adopt the original Declaration of Independence?

Blaming the British

MacDonald, Baldwin and Eden Held Responsible for the Muddle.

To the Editor of The Sun—Sir: For several years prior to his death Marshal Foch, when asked why the Allies did not prevent Germany from rearming, would say: "England will not consent; England is following the old Pitt policy of playing one nation against another lest any one continental Power become too strong. The day for the Pitt policy has gone by. England is digging for herself a ditch in which she will surely fall herself." England while permitting Germany to rearm and become strong, "We want a strong Germany, and then she can pay us what she owes us," made the criminal blunder of weakening her defenses with the same zeal that Germany was displaying in building hers up. Hence the present state of affairs in Europe; hence England's withdrawal from the Mediterranean, a horrible loss of prestige for mighty Britain; hence Hitler's uninterrupted march from Germany's dead level of military weakness to her present towering heights of preparedness and efficiency on land and sea and in the air.

How did this come about? Through three men, Ramsay MacDonald, Stanley Baldwin and little Mr. Eden. Ramsay MacDonald when he became Premier, though spending money like a drunken sailor, proceeded with great enthusiasm to disarm England. In this suicidal work he was followed by Stanley Baldwin, later on aided and abetted by Anthony Eden, who joyfully joined him in the task of stripping England of her defenses. Eden had an interview with Mussolini in which he felt himself slighted. Mussolini is said to have put him in his place. He became the bitter enemy of the Duce. Baldwin and he went to the League of Nations and in their blind hatred of Mussolini drove him out of the League of Nations and into the arms of Hitler.

This whole ghastly muddle now going on in Europe, this shocking threat of a universal war that may very well involve this country, is due to England first, last and all the time, for when France told England of Germany's threatened occupation of the Rhineland and asked her aid to thwart Hitler's designs, Stanley Baldwin refused to help her, a refusal that may turn out to be the most costly one in history. It is directly to this refusal and to nothing else that the world owes the position in which it stands. The muddlers of a mediocre intelligence have caused the present world crisis. We have already had a visit from Mr. Eden, who came over to tell us what to do, and now we have Lord Baldwin with us. Columbia University has given him a degree. Why in the name of heaven should this be? Here we have the spectacle of the press of this country slopping over editorially in praise of the man who more than any man in the world is responsible for the present state of affairs in Europe. Stanley Baldwin helped disarm England and left her disarmed. Stanley Baldwin is responsible for the presence of Germany in the Rhineland. To Stanley Baldwin's régime England can lay her loss of prestige, her fall from her high estate. Historian.

Apropos of my verses "Flower of France" wanted to know how the fleur de lis was chosen as the symbol of France.

And why & when.

The fleur de lis has been a French symbol since the Middle Ages

2/ that tells how Clovis, the first king of the Franks, had a dream, in which he beheld the golden toads on his standard turned into golden lilies. Thereafter he had the fleur-de-lis depicted on his banner. Some interpret the name to mean "Flower of Louis" Clovis being the Frankish form of Louis.

Legend also has it that the Franks subsequently proclaimed their ruler by lifting him up on a shield and placing a fleur-de-lis in his hand.

4. It is a historical fact that the de lis Connection with the ruling house of France began with its appearance on a royal seal 1137-1180 AD
In 1340 AD Edward III joined the fleur-de-lis to the English shield. It remained there until 1801. In the most ancient French banners, the fleurs-de-lis are small and very numerous In 1405 Henry IV limited the number on his banner to 3. At the time of the French Revolution the fleur-de-lis disappeared from the Standard of France which then became the Tricolor.
There is a tale told of Napoleon I. That on passing through a city in France He noticed all the windows of the Cathedral

President Franklin D. Roosevelt
White House
Washington D.C.

Dear Sir.

I forwarded to you yesterday a patriotic ensemble which your great personality and so your brave and successful leadership of this war has inspired and to me. May that ensemble so be a reminder to you also of my best wishes for your good health and happiness and your success for whatever you desire and for the speedy successful conclusion of this war, which successful conclusion is well on its way thanks to your able leadership.

Believing that your great and able aides, admiral Leahy and Mr. William Bullitt, whom I also admire very much, would also be agreably so reminded of themselves and of you, I also so made two patriotic envelopes for them which I included with yours in box I forwarded to you yesterday.
Knowing of the true love for America and of the high esteem and regard in which you are held by the true French People, by the two great patriots French:
men among others, General Giraud and vice amiral Lemaud, who are with you now in Washington and who by your true hearted help to them and to Greece, are also your able aides now. Believing that one of those ensembles would also be agreeable reminders to them of yourself, of Washington and of America I also made one for each of them, both of which I included in said box.

Thinking that with the tribulations that are for you other aides in Africa:
General Eisenhower and Minister Robert Murphy, whom I also very much admire. That one of those ensembles would be rightful right and so thoughtful to them of their home country. The best and most favored in the world and of you in its leader and their chief. I also re-made tour for them which I included with General Giraud's ensemble. Understanding he is going back there shortly. Hope he can re take them to them.

It was not possible for me to include in bot of yesterday other ensembles I also made for you and for said aides of yours. Shall forward them to you to morrow. While eventful facts that are of that, are well re known to you.
That ensemble being eloquent of the true love of the French people for America and Americans and of your so understanding it and so reciprocating it. being also eloquent of your great leadership in this war.

I am made it for you. May I ask if you will be so kind to remit those ensembles to them on occasions or to let them have them in any other way if so is not convenient to you. shall greatly appreciate it and so be grateful to you.

Referring to Marechal Petain and to admiral Darlan who appear in said ensemble. the fact that both of them ever were true soldier and sailor of France and Honor personified. the fact that admiral Darlan went right over to Africa from Vichy to offer his aide to General Eisenhower and so to fight with Americans. as no doubt can be that his so going there was with the understanding and approval of Marechal Petain. their love for America and Americans and their high esteem and regard for you were well attested to and manifested by them when it could be by them. My belief is, as was before that that that grand old man is not different now than he was before and that he has not acted as he did without cause and reasons better known to him than to others and that he is more to be pitied than to blame for that. Whatever of him as to that. the great battle of Verdun in the first world war, was his. and that star cannot be dimmed nor be taken away from him. Thinking this belief in "Eternal Francia" will interest you. I am enclosing in this letter a photostatic copy I made for you of a card that was to me from him in January 1941.

Referring to admiral Darlan, my first knowledge of the vile act that was to him on December 24, 1942, was as I was waiting to get in a chancel for the midnight service. Then I heard two men talking about it, one of them saying that that was, undoubtedly, a nasty de Gaullist trick. A few minutes later, as I was still so waiting, I again heard three other men talking about it, one of them saying that his belief was that it was a de Gaulle trick, one of the other men saying he no thought himself. The third, a soldier, apparently a younger man than the others, while not so carping himself did not say anything to the contrary.

Regarding General de Gaulle there cannot be any doubt by his acts at Dunkirk and Dakar that his ambition to lead France is greater than his qualities as a soldier of it and that his leading of France would be more to the detriment of it than for the good of it. It is also my belief that some people who are favoring him do so somewhat blindly and that some do more for their interests than for the good of France and of America.

As sample of some kind of people that are for de Gaulle, I am enclosing a letter that was sent to me recently by someone living in some house that I do. (who I understand knows the person of that paper and who so got that letter from her for me) who is for him. as also is another person living in same house who repeatedly tried to also get me in his favor. Both of them it is my belief are for him in interest of other, for the good of other, not of France and America.

Referring to the coming National Holiday of France, it certainly will be a more white one and a more happy one for France and dear people. How was that day for them the last three years. Hoping it will be possible to you. to General Giraud, amiral Derand. admiral Fenby, Mrs Bullitt and others to have some time together. that day. so wish you a pleasant day.

Reiterating my admiration of you for your intelligent, courageous and successful leadership of this war. I am

Sincerely gratefully yours
Anna Roosevelt

Sir:

It may seem rather bold to divert your attention, even for a few minutes, for such a trivial matter as a school Annual.

Yet, we feel that you may be interested to know that in your far Hawaii youthful hearts beat in union with yours for the love of our beloved Country, and thank the Lord unceasingly to have given us such a Pilot as you to steer the Ship of State.

Hence, we take the liberty to send you the 1943 Sacred Hearts Audion, trusting that the article "Lead, Kindly Light" will have a special appeal to you. If it may afford you a moment of pleasurable relaxation, it will be our best reward.
