Your Dear Highness:

I wish you a happy and prosperous birthday. And with my wishes I'm sending you something which I hope you and your family will be protected from all unhappiness. And which I have been learning about and in the bible. I'm been already twelve-years-old. I have another ½ year to go into college hebrew. So I learned about a thing that protects from sicknesses and all bad things. So thats I am sending you this. I'm really disapointed that I can't send it in time. Best circumstances are that I was forced to wait to the last minute. Because I saved up the money on selling papers to buy this lucky thing which all the rabbis believe and trust in it. I hope you understand my writing as good as I mean. I hope you keep this for ever with health and happiness. My mother and my brother, and sister, and I are wishing you A happy birthday

Says he has fine old painting of the "Congress", which apparently was painted in Bay of Naples, and if President will accept it, will send painting to him. - Refers to Tugwell Bill and expresses opposition to it, and hopes it will not be passed in present form, and states reasons. -- President wrote Feb. 26, stating he was delighted to receive letter and would appreciate the painting. mr President, I have watched this old world Zinging a gay way suddenly veer from its smooth course and ricochet toward — no one knows where!

at fifty-five I have been jobless since "Calvin" didn't choose to run.", a zero in the world integer. I lost all I had buying bonds a reputable institution assured me were safe — leaving me without faith.

From a hundred dollars a month apartment, I am writting from a ten dollars neglected house that becomes very nervous — when the wind blows. Unless a relative of mine in Oregon pops through with a check by February 5th —, we — my wife and three children — will move again. Or hurl ourselves on charity's mercies, something that is suffocating to me. A fairly sour picture but with out exaggeration. Naturally we are dazed by these lightening shifts, but it's astounding how calm. A year ago we passed the crying and feeling sorry for ourselves - stage. with myself as well as others there operates a compensatory law when one is squeezed dry of — ambition. This long coast down hill was breezy and unpleasant but we hit bottom with this bump;
We would not want to return to the grandeur, at least grandeur to us that we left. Never again can the banking boys entice me with their — philosophy of thrift.
not only because I have lost faith in them, but because I do not ever expect to have that kind of — pocket change again.

This same thing that happened to me, and one of the consolation I get out of it is — it happened to others, and it will happen to the next generation. So I cannot feel that I am or was being-picked on. I have a wife of wonderful comprehension and I am telling the world it helps-immeasurably.

One of my ancestors — a de la Pratte, was some what of an artist-they say, and since I have nothing else much to do- I have inherited, for a spell any way to paint pictures. My studio is the Coal bin. From amongst my collection I have selected a cartoon picture and am sending it to you — believing that you will get quite a kick out of it. I am working at times, on another depicting the return to Prosperity. A male eagle (blue) and with a like-ness of your head is standing on a cliff-guarding a nest of Eggs (the people). And in the distant, flying low over the water, mother eagle (prosperity) is returning to her nest.

The "mule" in the picture I am sending to you, emits no — "he-haw" because you are a modest man. I call it a "mule" because I do not think "all" Democrats are — jackasses!

I'd like to have a job but one of those face killing posts with continuous terror of dismissal no longer appeals to me. Something around $2000. a year would suffice our needs and enable us to take up insurance again.

What I dredged out of a fairly successful career, now that we can view it in cold analysis, was far from a sense of happiness. I was more worried then with plenty than I am now with nothing. It took this rollopsing Cataclysm to teach the fun of nights at home around the parlor lamp, either reading to my wife or listening to her read to me. We are not troubled by those-after dark horrors of some one getting my job. We have no interest in what our neighbors — think.

Most of us were being gorged with velvety—nothings. When I used to enlarge and completely refit a—already sumptuous bathroom, it gave me only a single day's glow. I bought three suits of clothes at a—crack. yet—those things do not give me the thrill of calling at a public library and finding a book we wanted was in—this happened only today, and is fresh in thought. I went home with it under my arm in a sort of woolscottian skip. Often, in other days I ordered a dozen books at a time from our book shop and many pages were —— never cut.

Our amusement lift just now is centered on a cross-word puzzle that may win us ten dollars—to purchase things we sadly are in need of. What I am driving at in all this preamble is this: If every one who sees a sock coming —— not to duck. They should stick out their chin ---- first as last. It doesn't hurt much — where we are numb, and may knock them loose from such foolishness and into a contentment they'd never expect. Its our only salvation ---- don't be impatient—or we will loose are heads!

yours Very Truely
Walter J. Pratt,

Jackson.

Dear Friend:-

I want to join the thousands wishing you a very happy birthday anniversary and many to follow.

among my grandfather's papers I find a list of members of the 26th Congress dec. 2, 1839. There were only 26 states then. Among the members from Mass. it is interesting to note the name John Quincy Adams and from New York, Millard Fillmore and James Monroe also my grandfather's, Rufus Palen who represented the former 7th District embracing the counties of Ulster and Sullivan.

His hobby was collecting autographs which included the signatures of the members of this 26th Congress.

In his diary under date of January 1st 1840 he records as follows: - "A very cold day; Paid my respects to President Van Buren and was treated in a truly Democratic way - no wine - no cake not even a cup of cold water - though the air was cold enough to make it up. Witnessed the apparently cordial greeting between the great Southern Trimmer and his majesty. When rogues agree &c."

These Barbecues are made from selected young pig ham, which has been cooked about twelve hours under a very slow heat. Therefore, we know that these Barbecues will be safe for you to eat from a standpoint of health.

The Barbecues should be served piping hot. Therefore, before eating, they should be placed in a hot oven for several minutes just as they are except the tip of the rolls should be removed and laid aside to heat separately.

We are enclosing some extra sauce and fresh cabbage which to be placed on the Barbecues if desired. Also, slices of pickle for each sandwich.

To President Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Dear Mr. Roosevelt:

I am sending my contribution to your Birthday gifts.

On account of illness it is a little behind schedule time; but I am sending it just the same. It is small and looks insignificant; but after knowing its history, I think you will agree with me that it's quite appropriate; as it shows how many years Silver has been used for Money.

A Japanese Coin over one thousand years old, I have been offered all kinds of prices for it. I kept it with the idea of giving it sometime to the place or person I would like to have it go to. I am sending it to you with that thought in mind, and if you would carry it as a Pocketpiece for success of your Montary program, it would make me very happy.

I am the widow of Frank H. Pope a well known Boston man on the Editorial Staff of the Boston Globe and at one time State Auditor of Massachusetts, a Good Democrat, and an eloquent orator. I am an admirer of Mrs. Roosevelt, and as the First Lady of our Country, she is setting a wonderful example for other women to follow; if you ever see this letter out of the thousands sent you, please pass it along to her; as I have worked a good part of my life for many worthy causes, especially concerning women. I have before me a New Year's Poem, I wrote for our local paper, dedicated to you, so will enclose it in this letter with full particulars of the Ancient Coin. "May you live long and prosper".

Sincerely yours,

Kate G. Pope

(Mrs. Frank H. Pope)

This Japanese Silver coin is over One Thousand years old. It is a wonderful coin; looking at it casually it don't show unless you know where to look for the five faces. One on the round side in a refined face surrounded with a Helmet. The reverse side has a leaf covering the entire surface, divided in the center by a stem; on each side of the leaf are two grotesque Jap faces, making four in that side of the coin, as by turning it around you get what you would call a "Double Header". Keep it in the box and hold it under the Electric light and look at it through a glass and it is very plain. If you tip the box so the light strikes it slantingly you see it still better - it is like the picture puzzles, you hunt for them; but it is worth the hunt.

The coin was given me by Watari Kitashima, a Japanese Student, who came to Harvard to study for the Ministry. He preached a year at Shirley, Mass. and exchanged with me Parts, and was often a guest in our home, as any mother over an ordained Unitarian Minister. I had a fad for Antiques, so he presented me with the coin to add to my collection. He married a Shirley girl and they went to Japan to teach the Unitarian religion.

I am sending his card on which he wrote his name in both Japanese and English. I enclose the coin in a small box you could carry in your vest pocket. Will you?

Sincerely,
Kate L. Pope.

MINERAL OIL HELPS CURE AILING BOYS

Peanuts Found Useful in Recovery of Victims of Infantile Paralysis

Los Angeles Paper

TUSKEGEE (Ala.) Dec. 31. (AP)—Discovery of a mineral oil in peanuts that has aided in the recovery of infantile paralysis victims and in the rejuvenation of tissues was announced today by Dr. George W. Carver, noted Negro scientist and head of the research department of Tuskegee Institute.

Dr. Carver said the tissue-building properties in the oil were accidentally discovered, after he had used it as the base for a beauty lotion.

Dr. Carver said he used it in the treatment of two young boys, one 13 years of age and the other 14, who had suffered from infantile paralysis.

Improvement was noted early in the tests, Dr. Carver said.

After nine applications of the oil, which was massaged into the affected limbs, one of the subjects who had been walking with crutches was able to walk with the use of only a cane.

The other boy, less severely afflicted, had increased use of his leg and joined other boys in playing football.
