

Your Facilitator Sara Anderson

Sara Anderson (she/her) is an Indigenous Relations professional with expertise in Indigenous engagement, policy, research governance, reconciliation, and organizational change. She currently serves as an Indigenous Relations Specialist with Farm Credit Canada, supporting national initiatives related to Indigenous agriculture and food systems, Indigenous data, and relationship-building

Previously, Sara was Senior Manager, Indigenous Research at the University of Waterloo and held leadership roles with KAIROS Canada, including Associate Director of the KAIROS Blanket Exercise program, a nationally recognized reconciliation education initiative that helps participants better understand Indigenous histories and contemporary realities in Canada. She holds a Master of Arts in Indigenous Studies and a Post-Graduate Diploma in Indigenous Policy and Administration from Carleton University and has worked extensively with Indigenous communities, governments, post-secondary institutions, and non-profit organizations across Canada.

reach.sara.anderson@gmail.com