PRESIDENTIAL REMARKS: TOAST IN HONOR OF PRIME MINISTER SHAMIR
STATE DINING ROOM
APRIL 6, 1989

Mr. Prime Minister, it has been my pleasure to welcome you to Washington, to renew our own friendship, and to reaffirm the friendship between our two nations.

The value of these visits goes beyond the meetings of state, to the experience we gain from the time spent among the people of Israel and America. I recall the trip I made to your country in the summer of 1986 -- the deep longing for peace I found on the part of the people of Israel.

The friendship between the United States and Israel is strong and solid -- built upon a foundation of shared democratic values, of shared history and heritage that sustain the moral life of our two countries. Our strategic cooperation is a source of mutual security, and the United States' commitment to the security of Israel remains unshakeable. These bonds are strong, and growing stronger.

Mr. Prime Minister, the great unsolved challenge that concerns us both is peace in the Middle East. Last month, we marked the tenth anniversary of the Treaty of Peace between Israel and Egypt. That treaty was the product of the remarkable courage and leadership of two men. Those qualities -- courage and leadership -- are no less necessary today in the effort to advance the cause of peace in the Middle East -- to reach a just and peaceful resolution to the Arab-Israel conflict that fulfills the legitimate aspirations of both Israelis and Palestinians alike, and brings the violence to an end.

Mr. Prime Minister, the discussions we have had -- and those I had earlier this week with President Mubarak -- give me every reason to hope that in Egypt and Israel today, there is leadership, courage and vision, capable of transcending the historic animosities that have long stood as obstacles on the path towards peace.

The United States is proud of the role it played in the historic treaty between Israel and Egypt. We stand ready today to advance once more the cause of peace in the Middle East.

Mr. Prime Minister and Mrs. Shamir, I raise my glass to the abiding friendship between our two nations, to its future, and to a just and lasting peace between the peoples of the Middle East.
