Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for writing to support the President's position on the issue of a woman's right to choose. I know this issue is very important to you and it is important to President Clinton and me as well.

A decision regarding abortion is among the most private and painful decisions any woman may face in her lifetime. President Clinton and I believe that each woman should be allowed to make this intensely personal decision without government interference. We also believe strongly that personal privacy is a fundamental right guaranteed by our nation's constitution.

While the President and I are pro-choice, we are not pro-abortion. We believe that abortion should be legal, safe and rare. If our country is to resolve this issue, we must educate men and women so that the number of unwanted pregnancies can be reduced significantly. We must also provide every woman with information regarding physical and mental health issues to enable her to make informed choices for herself and her family.

Thank you again for your views and for your support.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for your thoughtful letter regarding the AIDS crisis. I know this subject is very important to you, and it is important to President Clinton and me as well.

To deal with the AIDS crisis, the President will pursue a four-part strategy of increased research, thorough testing, better treatment and improved education. He wants to increase funding and accelerate research to help develop a vaccine and find therapies that will destroy HIV, repair the immune system, and treat AIDS-related infections. He also has asked the Congress to fund the Ryan White Health Care Act fully so that we can help people with AIDS and ease the burdens that it places on families.

President Clinton also believes that we should promote AIDS education in our schools and launch a strong and effective education campaign that will reach into every community. Focusing national attention on this disease will help provide the best strategies for prevention and will encourage compassion and understanding.

Thank you again for your views and your support.

Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for writing to express the outrage we all feel about the problems of child abuse and neglect in our country.

For many of our nation's children, each day is a struggle for survival. In the United States today, a child is abused or neglected every thirteen seconds, a child dies from poverty every fifty-three minutes, and a child is murdered every three hours. Homicide and suicide are the primary causes of death of our young people. When you consider these statistics, and the faces behind them, it is clear that the challenges facing America's children are tremendous.

Please be assured that protecting our children from violence, abuse and neglect is one of the Clinton administration's highest priorities. However, President Clinton cannot solve these problems alone. No matter how much work is done by the administration, what children will continue to need most are adults who love them, who teach them, who discipline them, and who stand up and fight for their interests.

Each of us can make a difference in the life of some child or young person every day if we are willing to take the time to reach out to him or her with caring and compassion. We must all work together to make sure that every child has a chance.

Thank you again for taking the time to make your voice count for children.

Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for your thoughtful letter regarding child support enforcement. President Clinton and I are also very concerned about this issue.

The President and I believe that parents should take responsibility for their children. In the United States today, far too many parents are abdicating that responsibility. Parents owe billions of dollars in child support payments, and an estimated fifteen million children have parents who are capable of paying child support but who do not.

In the coming months, President Clinton will be working to strengthen our child support enforcement system. He believes that delinquent parents should be brought to the attention of credit agencies so that they cannot borrow money for themselves before they provide for their children. He wants to make it a felony to cross state lines to avoid paying support. The President also supports the use of the Internal Revenue Service to collect child support payments in seriously delinquent cases. To enhance these efforts, he supports the creation of a national databank of delinquent parents.

Thank you again for taking the time to make your voice count for children.

Sincerely yours,

Hillary Rodham Clinton

July 19, 1993

Mr. John Doe
123 First Street
Little Rock, Arkansas 12345-4444

Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for sharing your ideas regarding the challenges of nurturing our children and strengthening the American family.

To address these vitally important issues, we should begin by recognizing, as stated by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops in a Pastoral Letter, "that our children's future is shaped both by the values of their parents and the policies of our nation." As the President has said many times, family values alone will not feed a hungry child, and material security cannot provide a moral compass. Children need both.

President Clinton is working to make the interests of children and their families a national priority. One of his first acts on taking office was signing the Family and Medical Leave Act. This act requires employers with at least fifty workers to give their employees up to twelve weeks of unpaid leave to care for a new child or an ill family member. He also wants to strengthen our system of child support enforcement, and reform our nation's welfare system to help people move from welfare to work through health care, child care and job training.

President Clinton cannot stop the disintegration of the American family alone, however. Meaningful change will occur only if we adults resolve to take responsibility for our nation's children. What children need most are adults who love them, who teach them, who discipline them, and who stand up and fight for their interests.

Each of us can make a difference in the life of some child or young person every day if we are willing to take the time to reach out to him or her with caring and compassion. We must all work together to make sure that every child has a chance.

Thank you for taking the time to make your voice count for children.

Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for sharing with me your ideas for improving our country's education system.

President Clinton is committed to education reform. He recently submitted to Congress the "Goals 2000: Educate America Act." This legislation will support the efforts of states, communities, business, schools and parents to redesign our education system so that all students can meet national education goals.

The President's plan will establish a series of national panels which will adopt voluntary academic standards, determine the conditions of learning and teaching necessary to meet those standards, and identify essential skills for students interested in various occupations. This plan will give states meaningful incentives to use these national models as the basis for systematic reform in their local school systems.

Goals 2000 will provide long term direction for improving American education and promoting life long learning. However, meaningful education reform will occur only if we all take responsibility for changing our education system.

We should begin by being honest about what our schools can and cannot teach our children, and the conditions which confront our teachers and students every day. We should set high expectations for all children. Finally, we should hold accountable all members of the educational enterprise - parents, teachers and students - for the opportunity they have been given to participate in one of the greatest efforts of humankind, passing on knowledge to children.

Thank you again for your views and for your support of education reform.

Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for sharing with me your views regarding the ban on homosexuals serving in our nation's military. I know this issue is very important to you and to many others.

President Clinton believes that people should be judged by their conduct. He favors stricter rules of sexual conduct for all military personnel and believes that any sort of improper conduct should result in severance. However, he is committed to ending discrimination in the military.

The President respects the wisdom and experience of our military leaders. He is working closely with the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the military services, the Congress and others concerned, to develop a policy that preserves the unity and preparedness of our military, but also ensures equality and fairness.

Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for sharing with me your views regarding the case of Mr. Leonard Peltier.

The Peltier case is pending before the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals. It would be inappropriate for President Clinton to intervene in this or any other case currently pending in our judicial system. His intervention in the judicial process would violate the separation of powers provisions of our constitution. The President has confidence in our judicial system to fairly adjudicate this and other matters.

Thank you again for writing.

Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for writing to me about some of the most important issues facing women and families in our country today.

As I have traveled across the country listening to women, I have been struck by the overwhelming obstacles so many women must hurdle to balance their work and family obligations. I have spoken with women who are fighting employment discrimination; struggling to raise their children and make ends meet; existing on shrinking welfare payments with no jobs in sight; or coping with inadequate or non-existent child support payments.

President Clinton is committed to improving the quality of life for American women and their families. One of his first acts on taking office was signing the Family and Medical Leave Act. This act requires employers with at least fifty workers to give their employees unpaid leave to care for a new child or an ill family member. He also wants to strengthen our system of child support enforcement, and reform our nation's welfare system to help people move from welfare to work through health care, child care and job training.

President Clinton cannot solve the problems affecting women and families alone, however. Change will occur only if men and women insist that businesses and other institutions accommodate the needs and priorities of American families. We must raise our voices against sexual harassment, and fight violence against women and children. We must not tolerate employment discrimination. We must encourage every profession to adopt employer based child care, flex time, job sharing, and alternative work strategies.

We are all in this together, men and women, husbands and wives, parents and children. We must all work to strengthen and support our families, and provide opportunities for our children.

Sincerely yours,

Hillary Rodham Clinton

Thank you for writing to the First Lady about America's foreign policy. The end of the Cold War presents our country with extraordinary opportunities for economic renewal at home. But those opportunities are directly related to the development of democracy, human rights, and free market economies in countries throughout the world.

My Administration is strongly committed to the promotion of democracy abroad because it protects our own concrete economic and security interests at home. At a time when many countries are torn by conflict, we must all work together to build a safer, more peaceful, and more democratic world.

Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for your letter to the First Lady. The world remains a dangerous place, but the nature of those dangers has dramatically changed. Although unquestioned American military power remains essential to the success of our diplomacy and to strengthening our international relationships, we must begin making the changes necessary to bring fiscal responsibility to our defense budget.

The end of the Cold War presents our country with extraordinary opportunities in our conversion from a defense technology economy to a civilian technology economy. But we must attend to the needs and problems of the nation's defense industrial and technology base. Our budget plan includes a firm commitment to assist the transition for military and civilian personnel to private life and other work.

I am working to reshape our forces to provide us with the capabilities we need to defend our continuing interests, deal with new problems and threats, and contribute to the promotion of democracy, prosperity, and security. Our forces will consist of 1.4 million men and women on active duty, a strong, integrated reserve, and a capable forward presence of roughly 100,000 troops in Europe.

I appreciate your interest in my plans for making the changes necessary to mold a secure future for ourselves and our children.

Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for your letter to the First Lady. America has a proud tradition of immigration policies that promote family unification and provide opportunities for those who can to contribute to our country's economy. We have also provided asylum for refugees fleeing persecution. American society has been enriched immeasurably by the diversity of its refugees.

While we must maintain our commitment to generous and humane immigration and refugee policies, we cannot admit all who want to come. Under the economic and unemployment pressures we face today, we cannot afford to lose control of our borders or take on new financial burdens. Therefore, we must ensure adequate enforcement of U.S. immigration laws, including provisions designed to discourage unauthorized entry. I have already taken steps to stem the flow of illegal immigration.

At the same time, we must promote economic opportunity, peace, and security in countries struggling to achieve economic development and democracy. By doing so, we can create incentives for people to remain in their country of origin.

The problems of immigration and asylum invite no easy solutions. I am working to develop an effective response that will protect our nation's and states' economic interests while respecting our commitment to refugees. I appreciate your interest in this issue.

Sincerely,

Bill Clinton

Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for writing to the First Lady regarding the situation in Haiti. Because of my deep concern about the dangers of boat departure from Haiti, I have urged the people of Haiti not to attempt to depart by boat. I also indicated that the practice of direct return would continue for the time being.

I believe that the best way to prevent a mass exodus from Haiti is to return democracy and economic opportunity to that nation. I fully support the restoration of President Aristide's democratically elected government. I also strongly support efforts of the United Nations and Organization of American States to deploy a substantial number of human rights monitors in Haiti. I hope and expect that an improvement in the human rights situation and progress toward a political settlement will encourage Haitians to remain in their country to build a better future for themselves.

In the meantime, my Administration will provide fair and safe alternatives to boat departures for those who continue to fear persecution. I have instructed the U.S. Embassy in Haiti to reduce substantially the time it takes to process refugee applications received at the embassy. In addition, I have sent a technical mission to the country to explore ways to make in-country processing safer and more accessible for Haitians.

My Administration is continuing our efforts to achieve these goals. We hope that the recent progress toward the restoration of democratic government in Haiti will diminish incentives for departure and encourage Haitians to remain in their country to participate in its growth and development in the years to come.

I appreciate your sharing your concerns with me.

Thank you for your letter to the First Lady. I appreciate hearing your views on America's policy toward Cuba.

My Administration seeks a rapid and peaceful transition to democracy so that all Cubans can enjoy the same fruits of freedom that Americans do. For that reason, I support the Cuban Democracy Act. Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for your letter to the First Lady. I share your concern about the arms race in the Middle East, and I am dismayed by the continuing arms buildup in that region. Especially alarming is the growth in the arsenals of weapons of mass destruction. For far too long the peoples of the Middle East have seen their resources and wealth wasted on unproductive arms races.

My Administration places a high priority on curbing the spread of nuclear, chemical, biological, and missile technology in the Middle East. We are now attempting to rejuvenate the conventional arms talks among the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council. More broadly, we are pushing hard for progress in the Middle East peace talks because we believe agreements there will make restraint on arms transfers more likely.

We must recognize, however, that our friends and allies in the region continue to face real threats from aggressive regimes. States like Israel and Kuwait look to the United States for assistance in dealing with these threats. Our Administration will carefully review requests for security assistance in terms of how best to improve the prospects for peace and security.

As we work together to build a safer, more prosperous, and more democratic world, I appreciate your thoughts.

Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for your letter to the First Lady. I understand your concern about the recent developments in Iraq.

On June 26, 1993, at my direction, U.S. naval forces launched a missile strike on the Iraqi Intelligence Service's principal command and control complex in Baghdad. The timing of this operation was chosen carefully so as to minimize risks to civilians. Initial reports indicate that heavy damage was inflicted on the complex. Regrettably, there were some collateral civilian casualties.

I ordered this military response only after I considered the results of a thorough and independent investigation by U.S. intelligence and law enforcement agencies. The reports by Attorney General Reno and Director of Central Intelligence Woolsey provided compelling evidence that the failed operation to assassinate former President Bush during his visit to Kuwait in April was planned, directed, and pursued by the Iraqi Intelligence Service and that the Government of Iraq bore direct responsibility for this effort.

I assure you that I will continue to exercise our right of self-defense by directing such measures as may be necessary and appropriate to protect the United States and its citizens.

Sincerely,

Bill Clinton

Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for writing to the First Lady regarding the situation in Somalia. As we make the transition from a United States-led intervention force to a United Nations operation, we will continue to help bring economic stability and humanitarian relief to a country that is struggling to achieve democracy.

We are now in the process of bringing our troops home. The number of U.S. troops in Somalia was over 24,000 when I took office. Today there are fewer than 4,000. The remaining soldiers are playing an important support role in the United Nations' efforts to disarm the competing factions in the Somali civil war.

As we move to create a more peaceful and more democratic world, I appreciate your concern for this important issue.

Sincerely,

Bill Clinton

Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for your letter to the First Lady concerning Iraq. No one should doubt our resolve to see Iraq comply with all U.N. Security Council resolutions and the measures enacted by the U.S.-led Coalition to monitor and enforce those resolutions.

The recent report my Administration sent to the United Nations on Iraqi war crimes during the occupation and liberation of Kuwait provides graphic proof of the extent of atrocities carried out by Saddam Hussein's regime. We are now seeking U.N. support for creating a commission to investigate Iraq's war crimes and crimes against humanity, including genocide. It is my intent to see that Saddam Hussein and his regime are held fully responsible for all the crimes they have committed in Kuwait and Iraq.

I appreciate your interest in this important issue.

Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for writing to the First Lady about our policy toward the new independent states of the former Soviet Union. Russia's struggle to build a free and democratic society is a political miracle, historic in its scope and drama. I believe we must act now to support the reform process in Russia -- not out of charity, but because it is a wise investment in our own future.

America's taxpayers spent trillions of dollars during the Cold War. A democratic Russia means we can reduce that pace of spending and move billions into creating new businesses, new jobs, and a better future for our children.

Our aid to Russia funds a variety of programs, including nuclear power safety, expanded energy production, a safer environment, technical assistance, and vastly increased exchanges. We will also assist in privatizing the largest enterprises in Russia -- thereby contributing to our goal of helping to build a free market economy in that country.

A productive and prosperous Russia can add untold billions of dollars in new growth to the global economy. That would mean new jobs and new investment opportunities for Americans and for our allies around the world. We are investing not only in the future of Russia, but in the future of America as well.

As we move to create a more prosperous and more democratic world, I appreciate your ideas.

Sincerely,

Bill Clinton

Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for writing to the First Lady regarding the situation in the former Yugoslavia. I am deeply concerned about the continuing aggression there and the atrocities that continue to be inflicted upon the people of that region.

I am working closely with my foreign policy team to help resolve the problems that have caused this conflict. Bringing peace and stability to that area of the world is one of my Administration's highest priorities. We are continually reviewing our options for action that would be effective in ending this conflict.

We face no pleasant choices in dealing with the tragedy in Bosnia, but it remains my intention to work with our allies on a course that will help repair the damage that this conflict has done to the Balkans and to Europe.

Thank you for your interest in this important issue.

THE WHITE HOUSE

Dear Friend:

Thank you very much for your thoughtful letter and invitation to Mrs. Clinton.

We will consider your invitation carefully as Mrs. Clinton's schedule becomes more definite, and notify you of her availability as far in advance of your event as possible. However, due to the volume of invitations, and the need to accommodate the First Lady's official commitments, it is frequently necessary for us to make scheduling decisions on short notice.

Your patience and understanding are deeply appreciated.

Sincerely,

I am delighted that you and other concerned individuals have written in record numbers to share your ideas with me.

Please accept my apology for the delay in responding to your letter. I have received over twice as much mail in the past four months as any other First Lady received in an entire year. It has been difficult to respond as promptly or personally as I would like.

Your thoughts are very important to me, and I hope that you will continue to keep in touch. Your involvement and help will be invaluable as the administration works to make meaningful changes in government and in people's lives.

Dear Mr. Doe:

Thank you for writing to discuss your interest in volunteer service.

Volunteer service is very important to President Clinton and me. Through the work of caring and dedicated people who volunteer their time and talent, we can rebuild and strengthen our communities.

I encourage you to look for local programs that need your help. Each of us can make an important difference in people's lives by helping to build homes or working in neighborhood youth centers, schools, hospitals, soup kitchens or nursing homes. Through service, we can also find meaning in our own lives because we see what we are capable of, and watch it being reflected in the faces of others.

Thank you again for your interest in helping others. I wish you much success in your efforts.

Sincerely yours,

Hillary Rodham Clinton
