of Staff

From: Ertharin Cousin, White House Liaison, State Department

Subject: "Bringing Cairo Home: Peace, Prosperity and Democracy"

On December 19, The State Department's Global Affairs Bureau will host a post Cairo conference. Concern was raised at a meeting in the White House about the conference subject matter and the invitation list. To address all possible questions I asked the Global Affairs Bureau staff to prepare an informational memo outlining the conference planning process and the substantive agenda for the meeting. The memo is attached at Tab A.

The invitation to the meeting was mailed to a broad cross section of individuals, organizations, businesses, government representatives and Congressional staff members. The State Department Congressional Affairs Bureau reviewed the list and added more Hill staff names. A copy of the invitation and the list is attached at Tab B.

Please review this material and contact me if you would like additional material regarding this conference.

TO: Ertharain Cousin - White House Liaison
FROM: Ellen Marshall - Global Affairs
SUBJECT: Bringing Cairo Home Event - December 19, 1994

At the International Conference on Population and Development (ICPD) held this September in Cairo, more than 180 countries joined together in support of an ambitious Program of Action designed to promote population stabilization, sustainable development, improved quality of life and expanded opportunity for citizens of all nations. As a major partner with nations committed to these ideals, the United States has a special responsibility to transform the ICPD vision into reality -- both at home and abroad.

The Program of Action calls on nations -- and their citizens -- to take action in the areas of quality, voluntary family planning and reproductive health; health care for women and children; expanded educational opportunities, particularly for girls; economic, social and political empowerment of women; poverty alleviation, sustained and sustainable development; reduction of wasteful resource consumption patterns; and integration of economic, environmental, and demographic goals.

To explore implementation issues with the public, the State Department and USAID, together with the Task Force on Population and Consumption of the President's Council on Sustainable Development (PCSD) have invited about 2,500 individuals, organizations, businesses, government representatives and Congressional staff to participate in a discussion of the short- and long-term efforts that should be undertaken to achieve the goals agreed to at Cairo.

The all-day conference, entitled "Bringing Cairo Home: Peace, Prosperity and Democracy," provides an opportunity to gain insight and input from US citizens about what both government and the private sector can all do to achieve the goals agreed to at the ICPD. In the morning, there will be a plenary session at which government and PCSD task force representatives will receive testimony. Simultaneously, a series of substantive workshops will allow detailed discussion of specific actions to be taken in each of 13 subject areas (see attached). In the afternoon, we will come together in two participatory roundtable discussions -- one on consumption and environment related issues, the other population related matters. The day will end with a reception honoring the US Delegation to the International Conference on Population and Development.

Invitations, cosigned by USAID Administrator Brian Atwood and Under Secretary for Global Affairs Tim Wirth, have been sent to:

- o a population and development list that has been developed over the past two years which includes population, environment, women's, development, immigration and refugee groups, those who attended the 10 ICPD town meetings (in which government representatives participated) and academics;
- o many of those who have written in support of the US policy on population and development; and
- o lists provided by other government agencies of NGO, business and government representatives.

These discussions will focus on more than the legislative actions that may be taken -- there is much to be done outside the legislative arena. We are directing the conversation to implementing what has already been agreed to -- not to reopen the process that culminated in the success of Cairo. We want to build on the momentum created by the ICPD and support implementation and public involvement on behalf of the consensus that was reached at Cairo.

BRINGING CAIRO HOME: PEACE, PROSPERITY AND DEMOCRACY

U.S. Agency for International Development ---- U.S. Department of State

November 23, 1994

Dear Friend:

At the International Conference on Population and Development (ICPD) held this September in Cairo, more than 180 countries joined together in support of an ambitious Program of Action designed to promote population stabilization, sustainable development, improved quality of life and expanded opportunity for citizens of all nations.

As a major partner with nations committed to these ideals, the United States has a special responsibility to transform the ICPD vision into reality. The Program of Action calls on nations -- and their citizens -- to take action in the areas of quality, voluntary family planning and reproductive health; health care for women and children; expanded educational opportunities, particularly for girls; economic, social and political empowerment of women; poverty alleviation, sustained and sustainable development; reduction of wasteful resource consumption patterns; and integration of economic, environmental, and demographic goals. The Clinton Administration strongly supports this comprehensive agenda and is seeking to work with all Americans on implementation -- both at home and abroad.

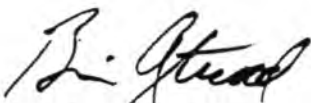

We invite you to join us in discussing what short- and long-term efforts that should be undertaken to achieve the goals agreed to at Cairo. On Monday, December 19, the Department of State and the US Agency for International Development (USAID), together with the Task Force on Population and Consumption of the President's Council on Sustainable Development (PCSD), are hosting a all-day conference -- Bringing Cairo Home: Peace, Prosperity and Democracy. We hope to gain insight and input from US citizens about what we can all do to achieve the goals laid out at the ICPD. Representatives from various government agencies will join in the day's dialogue.

As you know, the Department of State and USAID have responsibility for integrating the Cairo agenda into American foreign policy. The PCSD Task Force on Population and Consumption was established to make recommendations on how the US can achieve sustainable development through initiatives related to population and sustainable production and consumption patterns. Participating members of the task force are interested in receiving public input to their work on December 19th.

The attached outline describes the agenda for discussing how to bring Cairo home. We are envisioning a plenary session in the morning at which the PCSD task force will receive testimony. Simultaneously, a series of substantive workshops will allow detailed discussion of specific actions to be taken in each of the proposed subject. In the afternoon, we will come together in two participatory roundtable discussions -- one on consumption and environment related issues, the other population related matters. Finally, the day will end with a reception honoring the US Delegation to the International Conference on Population and Development. A full agenda and registration form are enclosed.

We hope that you will be able to join us and bring your insight and suggestions to this process. This event is open to the public and we encourage you to share this invitation with anyone you think would be interested in joining us. However, space is limited, so please respond as quickly as possible. We look forward to seeing you December 19.

Sincerely,

J. Brian Atwood
Administrator, USAID

Timothy E. Wirth
Under Secretary for Global Affairs

Jessica --

Here are some additional modifications to the list. Would you please run one more set of all labels for a second mailing we're doing? Also, could you print me a hard copy -- sorted in some way that is easy for you -- alpha by organization or something. Just let me know when it's ready, and I'll pick up more expeditiously than before. Thanks a lot for your help. Have a good holiday
