Dear Milan:

I'm still recovering and I have no idea how you, and the rest of your team, managed to get through these public forums.

We've just gotten tapes and pictures back and now I can join the crowd with my own personal enthusiasm. It looked great. While on stage I felt as though I was under anesthesia and can't remember a thing from the event. So, thank God the tape can prompt my memory.

I cannot tell you how proud Good Housekeeping was to be able to sponsor this forum. We are looking forward to California and an even better event. I cannot thank you enough for your efforts on behalf of the Good Housekeeping staff and for your personal support and assistance.

Sincerely,

Ellen

Dear Ms. Verveer:

We were so happy you were able to join Women, Law and Development International at our first Human Rights Award reception. We are not only grateful to you for taking time out of your busy schedule to read the letter sent from Mrs. Clinton to the awardees at our event, but having a representative of the First Lady present was indeed an honor and a pleasure. We feel that this reception was a milestone event in allowing WLD to establish this Award.

Your support was, without doubt, most appreciated. Only through individuals such as yourself and Mrs. Clinton can we contribute to surmounting the global challenges facing women today and in the future. The First Women's Human Rights Award celebrated the achievements of women who have taken an active role in advancing human rights protections for women in law and society at national, regional and international levels. The three awardees embody the spirit, mind and dedication of thousands of women around the globe.

We thank you personally for helping to make this award such a memorable one.

Sincerely,

Margaret A. Schuler
