REQUEST: Interview with PBS Frontline for Kosovo documentary

PURPOSE: To highlight the President's role leading the NATO alliance in reversing ethnic cleansing in Kosovo by providing his personal perspective to this in-depth, high-profile documentary.

BACKGROUND: PBS Frontline's three-hour documentary, due to be aired this spring on the anniversary of the launch of NATO airstrikes, represents the most serious and comprehensive attempt to document the Kosovo conflict to date. The President's victory in Kosovo represents one of the greatest foreign policy achievements of his Presidency. Since the crisis faded from the front pages, however, opponents have advocated revisionist histories of the conflict, undermining this landmark accomplishment. A personal appearance by the President on PBS' documentary will remind Americans of the importance of our stand against ethnic cleansing in Kosovo.

PBS has already interviewed a number of senior Administration officials in the production of this documentary, including Secretary Albright,

National Security Advisor Berger, and Ambassadors Holbrooke and Hill. PBS is also scheduled to interview Prime Minister Blair this week.
