Warm greetings to everyone celebrating the 100th anniversary of the founding of the American Federation of Musicians.

Musicians have contributed immeasurably to the quality of our lives. From the symphony orchestra to the jazz quartet, from the legends of rock and roll to the organist at the local ballpark, musicians add depth and dimension to our emotions and experiences.

The leaders and members of the AFM recognize that, while the thousands of professional musicians across the country vary widely in their skills and style, they share in common the right to the fruits of their efforts and their own piece of the American Dream. Unions -- through the battles they have fought and won -- have made America stronger and more prosperous throughout past decades. You can take pride in knowing that the AFM has helped to build a solid foundation for professional musicians throughout this nation.

I commend the American Federation of Musicians for 100 years of dedication to representing the interests of America's musicians, and you have my best wishes for every future success.

The President
The White House--Room 94
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

October 1996 marks the 100th anniversary of the founding of the American Federation of Musicians, which today stands as the largest union of performing artists in the world, representing over 100,000 professional musicians in the United States.

For 100 years, the American Federation of Musicians has represented the finest musicians in the world--whether they play classical or country. Jazz or folk. Rock or reggae. Or a style uniquely their own.

Our members are students and superstars. Innovators and interpretive geniuses. Hometown heroes and international idols. They are the history and the future of music.

As America's First Fan of music, we respectfully invite you to join us in celebrating the contributions America's musicians have made to our great nation's culture by sending a letter of congratulations to "The Members of the American Federation of Musicians" on the occasion of our Centennial.

Your recognition of professional musicians would be a centerpiece of the special Centennial Issue of our official journal, International Musician.

Please be advised that the deadline for receipt of your letter is September 13, 1996. The one-page letter of congratulations "To the Members of the American Federation of Musicians" should be sent to: International Musician, 1501 Broadway, Suite 600, New York, NY 10036. For best reproduction results, please send the letter unfolded in a 9 by 12 envelope.

Thank you for your kind consideration of this request. We know it will mean a great deal to the members of the American Federation of Musicians to have our tradition of "Unity, Harmony and Artistry," recognized by their President.

Sincerely and fraternally,

Steve Young
AFM President

Stephen R. Sprague
