REMARKS BY PRESIDENT CLINTON
AT ORGANIZATION OF AMERICAN STATES LUNCH
HONORING PRESIDENT ZEDILLO

October 11, 1995

Hall of Americas
Organization of American States

Thank you. Thank you so much, Mr. Vice President, for the introduction and your leadership in these important endeavors. President Zedillo, Secretary General Gaviria, World Bank President Wolfensohn, IMF Director Camdessus, President Iglesias, members of the United States and American Cabinets, Ambassador Babbitt and the other OAS ambassadors; to the very important members of our business communities in the United States and throughout Latin America; to all of our distinguished guests:

Just nine months ago I had the honor of hosting all the democratically-elected leaders in our hemisphere at the Summit of the Americas in Miami. Together we laid out a bold and broad vision for the future of the region we all share. We imagined a community of nations committed to freedom and prosperity. And we set out a plan of action to realize that vision -- to create a free trade area throughout our hemisphere, to strengthen the remarkable trend toward democracy, to improve the quality of life for all our people.

What all of us in Miami recognized is that increasingly our values and our interests coincide. Our futures are joined. As each of us prospers, all of us benefit.

For 45 years, the Organization for American States has worked tirelessly to strengthen the ties that bind us together. Now, its members have challenged us to implement many of the summit's initiatives, especially in the area of democracy and human rights. And in turn, we have asked the OAS to help turn our goal of a free trade area of the Americas into a concrete reality.

Under Secretary Gaviria's dynamic guidance, I am confident the OAS will meet the responsibilities of its mandate and help to build a new era of democratic progress throughout the Americas.

Nowhere is the potential for progress clearer than in our relationship with Mexico. The stronger our trade, the greater the well-being of all of our people. The deeper our cooperation, the better we will be able to fight together our common problems like drugs and crime and pollution. The more effective our partnership, the stronger an example we will be able to set for all the nations of our hemisphere.

That's why when the peso collapsed, the United States stepped forward. The international support package we assembled, with the IMF, the World Bank, the Inter-American Development Bank, helped Mexico to get back on the path of stability and growth. It also protected hundreds of thousands of American jobs, and it prevented the crisis from spreading throughout our region and, indeed, to other emerging markets throughout the world. To put it mildly, the action the United States took was not popular here at home at the time it was taken. But it was the right thing to do.

In the months since the crisis, Mexico has demonstrated more strongly than ever that it is not only our neighbor, it is a very good neighbor. The Mexican people, led by President Zedillo, have courageously stayed on the road to reform.

Mr. President, the tough steps you took required courage and the ability to convince the Mexican people of the need for short-term pain in return for long-term gain. But now your resolve is paying off. Mexico has turned the corner toward recovery. And all of your partners in your region applaud your leadership and your success and the basic character and vision of the people of Mexico who have supported your direction.

During his visit to Washington, President Zedillo and I discussed how we can move our partnership forward, not only to benefit our two nations, but the entire hemisphere. By spreading the success of the NAFTA, leading the fight against crime and corruption and drugs, clearing our air and cleaning our water, modernizing our educational systems for the 21st century, we hope to inspire the efforts of our neighbors throughout the Americas.

All of us in the Americas have an extraordinary opportunity. If we work together, we can build a future where our borders serve as bridges; where open societies and open markets flourish; where ordinary citizens, their families and their communities see the benefits of a free-market economy without being swept away by its excesses; where our horizons know no limits and we prove the promise of our common commitment to democracy and human dignity.

If we achieve that vision, it will be thanks in no small measure to the steady hand and the clear-sightedness of my friend and partner, who is here, the distinguished President of Mexico, President Zedillo.

Thank you, Mr. President. Thank you, ladies and gentlemen.

AT&T COMIENZA A PROVEER SERVICIOS DE COMUNICACIONES A LOS CAMPAMENTOS DE REFUGIADOS EN GUANTANÁMO

PARA DIVULGACIÓN: JUEVES, 29 DE SEPTIEMBRE, 1994

MIAMI - AT&T anunció hoy que comenzará a proveer servicios de llamadas telefónicas de larga distancia por pagar, desde los campamentos de refugiados cubanos y haitianos de la Base Naval de Guantánamo, a partir del viernes, 30 de septiembre de 1994.

Las llamadas se harán por medio de AT&T USADirect® Service In-Language, un servicio telefónico de larga distancia que provee acceso a operadores de AT&T en

Estados Unidos que hablan diferentes idiomas.

Gracias a este servicio, las personas que llamen desde los campamentos de refugiados cubanos serán atendidas por operadores que hablan español y los que llamen desde los campamentos de refugiados haitianos serán atendidos en creole.

Este anuncio es la culminación de semanas de trabajo ininterrumpido -- siete días a la semana, 24 horas al día -- realizado por trabajadores de AT&T, en colaboración con ITT Communications, Inc. of Guantanamo para poder instalar una red telefónica que le dará servicio telefónico a 33 campamentos de refugiados y a tres campamentos militares.

El vicepresidente de Operaciones Internacionales de AT&T, Rod Sturm, explicó que, "Construir esta red de comunicaciones para enlazar a tantas localizaciones distintas, sobre un terreno tan escabroso, fue una misión estremadamente difícil, y por ello expresamos nuestro agradecimiento a todos los que trabajaron tan duramente para convertir en realidad este proyecto".

"Estamos muy contentos porque los residentes de estos campamentos podrán ahora comunicarse con sus seres queridos", agregó Sturm. La cooperación de parte del comandante de la Base Naval y del Joint Task Force hicieron esto una realidad.

Los precios que cobrará AT&T por las llamadas desde los campamentos de Guantánamo serán los mas bajos que ofrece AT&T por el servicio USADirect In-Language en el Caribe, -- $1.99 por el primer minuto, $1.19 por cada minuto adicional, y un sobrecargo de $2.75 por llamada. De modo que una llamada de 10 minutos costará $15.45 más los impuestos.

El servicio USADirect® Service In-Language será provisto por AT&T en cooperación con ITT Communications, Inc. of Guantánamo, compañía que ha suministrado servicios telefónicos de larga distancia a la Base Naval de Guantánamo, en coordinación con AT&T, desde 1970.

AT&T es una compañía global de comunicaciones y computación que opera la red de larga distancia más grande y más moderna del mundo, proveyendo productos y servicios de comunicación, así como productos, equipos de redes y sistemas de computadoras, tanto a compañías de telecomunicaciones y negocios de todo tipo, como a consumidores individuales y a agencias gubernamentales en numerosos países.

FOR RELEASE: THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1994

AT&T BEGINS OFFERING TELEPHONE SERVICE TO REFUGEE CAMPS AT THE U.S. BASE IN GUANTANAMO

MIAMI -- AT&T announced today that it will begin offering long distance collect calls from the Haitian and Cuban refugee camps at the U.S. naval base in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, starting on Friday, September 30, 1994.

Calls will be provided through AT&T USADirect® Service In-Language, a long distance telephone service that provides access to AT&T operators in the United States. Callers from the Haitian camps will be assisted by operators who speak Creole and those calling from the Cuban camps will be assisted in Spanish.

The announcement culminates weeks of around-the-clock work by AT&T in collaboration with ITT Communications, Inc. of Guantanamo, to build a complete telephone network for 33 refugee camps as well as three military personnel camps. "It has been a difficult mission to build this network linking so many locations over such rough terrain and we are grateful to all those who worked so hard to make it a reality," explained Rod Sturm, vice president of international operations for AT&T. "We are happy that the residents of these camps will now be able to communicate with their loved ones in the U.S.". The cooperative efforts of the Joint Task Force and Navy Base Command made this accomplishment a reality.

The rates that AT&T will be charging for each call will be the lowest for AT&T USADirect In-Language service in the Caribbean -- $1.99 for the first minute, $1.19 for each additional minute and a $2.75 surcharge per call. A 10-minute call will cost $15.45 plus tax.

USADirect Service In-Language is being provided by AT&T in cooperation with ITT Communications, which has provided long-distance service to the U.S. Naval base in conjunction with AT&T since 1970.

AT&T is a global communications and computer company. It operates the world's largest and most advanced long distance network and provides communications services and products, as well as network equipment and computer systems to businesses, consumers, telecommunications services providers and government agencies.
