Re: Ireland/St. Patrick's Day

Date: February 26, 1996

As St. Patrick's Day approaches and current conditions in Ireland remain ominous and uncertain, I'd like to suggest that you consider a different St. Patrick's Day event. Hosting a social gathering at the White House might appear unseemly under the circumstances. Similarly, holding no event could send the wrong message and undercut the solid gains you have made. Accordingly, you might consider hosting an inter-denominational prayer service for peace at the National Cathedral (or the White House) on Sunday, March 17 (St. Patrick's Day). You could invite leaders from all parties in Northern Ireland, including Gerry Adams (thus finessing the visa issue). They would join you, HRC, senior members of your government, representatives of the Irish and British governments, and prominent Irish-Americans to mark this occasion with appropriate solemnity and a Presidentially led call for renewed commitment for a peaceful and political solution.

Additionally (and, again, depending on then-existing conditions), the St. Patrick's Day weekend could be an opportunity for Senator Mitchell to perhaps chair a meeting with representatives of both governments and all Northern Ireland political parties in Washington (neutral turf). This could be an opportunity to explore approaches for a return to the ceasefire, a commitment for elections, and the commencement of all-party talks by a date certain. Such a conference might be a pre- or mini-Dayton, borrowing from the model used to construct a Bosnian peace.

I have taken the liberty of running one or both these ideas past Nancy Soderberg and Jack Quinn. I'm happy to follow up or help in any way you'd like.

PRESS RELEASE

2/25/96

For Immediate Release

SUBJECT: Local Response to Air Shootdown over Cuba

CONTACT: Coloradans to End the Cuba Embargo (CECE) 494-3122

Long-standing U.S. hostility toward Cuba is always a danger to regional hopes for peace. The United Nations, the Organization of American States, Mexico, Canada and most U.S. allies have long condemned U.S. policy toward Cuba, especially the 35-year Blockade of our island neighbor. In defending its sovereign airspace, Cuba was doing what all acknowledge is its right. Right-wing extremists elements based in Miami had been warned of the possible consequences of their irresponsible and provocative actions.

CECE condemns the extremists in the Cuban-American community who, working closely with hard-line elements in the U.S. government, have been trying to derail hopeful diplomatic progress which had been made in recent years to normalize U.S./Cuba relations. The notorious Helms/Burton bill is scheduled to be reconciled in a House/Senate conference committee this week. Once again, world-wide attention will be focused on how President Clinton stands up to the Congress. There are many anti-Cuba activists who will exploit this convenient incident to their full advantage. CECE urge the President to stay calm and review the facts before making a decision.

CECE calls for an end to invasion plans, assassination attempts and sabotage that have been a regular feature of the long Cold War against Cuba. CECE demands that our government crack-down on hard-line Miami factions who are holding U.S. policy to Cuba hostage to their own desperate and hateful agenda.

Currently, there is a hunger strike in San Diego where Pastors for Peace have been prevented from taking medical aid to Cuba. On Jan. 31 and Feb. 17, the U.S. government arrested members of PFP for challenging the Cuba blockade. Clinton ordered the Treasury Dept. to come down hard on this challenge to U.S. policy, seizing over 400 donated computers from the group, arresting 11 and issuing Grand Jury subpoenas ordering the group to federal court.

Instead of kowtowing to a few disgruntled expatriates in Miami, CECE asks the question - "Why do some American church people and ministers seem to pose more of a threat to the U.S. government than do wealthy right-wing exiles who flaunt U.S. and international law with their dangerous and derring-do flights over Cuban territory?"

The long history of U.S. covert warfare against Cuba is the back drop for yesterday's tragic incident. Only when the U.S. comes to its senses and ends its failed embargo will the fruits of peaceful relations come to our two countries.

MEMORANDUM FOR EVELYN LIEBERMAN

FROM: NANCY SODERBERG NS
SUBJECT: St. Patrick's Day

I thought it might be useful for you to see the options that the NSC looked at in making a recommendation on how to handle St. Patrick's Day:

1. Have the party as planned. Whether Adams is invited would depend on status of peace process. (Note: We would probably have to invite other NI guests whether Adams is invited or not. Hume plans to attend and it would be politically untenable to exclude him. If he comes we cannot exclude Trimble and other unionists, who were invited last year. We can, however, defer sending invitations to NI guests until o/a March 5.)

Pros:

- Would avoid being seen as deterred by terrorism or allowing question of Adams' attendance to dictate our decisions.
- May help with our Irish-American supporters who expect us to hold something this year.
- Key unionists probably would come, in contrast to previous years. Would highlight cross-community support for peace.

Cons:

- The fact that a cross-section of NI political leaders would come is also the major drawback to this option, since the more political leaders who come, the more glaring Adams' absence and the greater his possible loss of credibility with the IRA.
- Might appear inappropriate to have a gala party so soon after violence has resumed, especially if there are additional incidents.

2. Cancel the party, and have Prime Minister Bruton do only the shamrock event (which could be expanded to include more people if desirable).

Pros:

- Avoids the decision on whether to invite Adams to a party, although we would still face decisions on White House meetings.

Cons:

- Denies Irish-American and Northern Ireland political leaders the chance to join the President at the White House.
- Could be interpreted as bowing to terrorism or allowing Adams to dictate our agenda.

3. Hold an interdenominational prayer service at the National Cathedral, as Jim Lyons has suggested. He suggested holding it on Sunday the 17th. We would have to make sure it does not conflict with the Illinois primary.

Pros:

- Serious response to resumption of violence; opportunity for interdenominational solidarity for peace.
- Could offer way not to exclude Adams. We could decide to give him a visa waiver and make the event open so that he could decide to attend. That would be controversial but less so than inviting him to the White House.
- If we decide Adams should not come, his absence will be less glaring. We would have to decide whether to invite NI political leaders. In any case, fewer would come for this than for a party at the White House. (Hume would still be there.)

Cons:

- Would still have to decide what to do about Adams.
- Any religious gathering could be awkward given the tensions between Protestants and Catholics.
- We would have to find someone to host it.

4. Hold a prayer vigil in conjunction with a party on Friday.

The vigil could be at 6:00 p.m. at the Cathedral, followed by a party either at the Vice President's home or the White House. The party could be a subdued affair -- no black tie, no vocalists.

Pros:

- Same advantages as holding the party as planned, but without the drawback of possibly appearing inappropriate.

Cons:

- Still face issue of what to do about Adams.
- Many guests would miss the Irish songs and the fun.

MEMORANDUM FOR NANCY SODERBERG

FROM: MARY ANN PETERS
SUBJECT: March 15 Reception

Formal Program

The Social Office provided the attached draft scenario, which does not reflect either the decision to dispense with the music or to include prayers for peace in the formal program. Based on our guidance, Brenda has drafted an insert for the scenario that describes how the formal program, including prayers, would be organized.

I have the guest list, which includes a few members of the clergy. I have talked to Kitty about which of them to invite to be on the stage and say prayers for peace; we think it should be Bishop Malone of Youngstown (Catholic) and Rev. Hank Postel (Protestant) of the Northern Ireland Working Group, who was on the trip. We can get the group at tomorrow's 1:00 meeting to agree. We will also have to make sure that someone from the Social Office is designated to invite them.

On reflection, I think we should leave the music ("Celtic Thunder") in the program.

Northern Ireland Guests

The invitations to Northern Ireland guests were sent last Thursday via something called "World Mail." Don't sell your FedEx stock -- they still haven't gotten there. This means that arrangements will have to be made to get the people from NI into the White House without the little cards that were enclosed with the invitations. We should raise this at the meeting. As far as Kathy Stephens knows, only Trimble, Taylor, Alderdice and Derry mayor John Kerr are coming. Kerr and Alderdice want to bring their wives. We should raise this but it shouldn't be a problem since there will be so many regrets from NI.

Shamrock Ceremony

As you had requested, I asked Susan Brophy whether it would be useful to invite American Ireland Fund members instead of Congressional staff, as we did last year. Her view is that all the key Fund members are coming to the evening event and we do not need to have them for the shamrock ceremony as well. I think we should go ahead and invite the Hill staffers and a few people from State. I will do a list (cleared by Bill Danvers) that we can give to the Social Office tomorrow; I assume they should organize it and invite the guests.

MEMORANDUM FOR ANTHONY LAKE

THROUGH: NANCY SODERBERG
FROM: MARY ANN PETERS
SUBJECT: St. Patrick's Day

We have to make a recommendation to Evelyn Lieberman on how to handle St. Patrick's Day.

There are several options:

1. Have the party as planned. Whether Adams is invited would depend on status of peace process. (Note: We would probably have to invite other NI guests whether Adams is invited or not. Hume plans to attend and it would be politically untenable to exclude him. If he comes we cannot exclude Trimble and other unionists, who were invited last year. We can, however, defer sending invitations to NI guests until o/a March 5.)

Pros:

- Would avoid being seen as deterred by terrorism or allowing question of Adams' attendance to dictate our decisions.
- May help with our Irish-American supporters who expect us to hold something this year.
- Key unionists probably would come, in contrast to previous years. Would highlight cross-community support for peace.

Cons:

- The fact that a cross-section of NI political leaders would come is also the major drawback to this option, since the more political leaders who come, the more glaring Adams' absence and the greater his possible loss of credibility with the IRA.
- Might appear inappropriate to have a gala party so soon after violence has resumed, especially if there are additional incidents.

2. Cancel the party, and have Prime Minister Bruton do only the shamrock event (which could be expanded to include more people if desirable).

Pros:

- Avoids the decision on whether to invite Adams to a party, although we would still face decisions on White House meetings.

Cons:

- Denies Irish-American and Northern Ireland political leaders the chance to join the President at the White House.
- Could be interpreted as bowing to terrorism or allowing Adams to dictate our agenda.

3. Hold an interdenominational prayer service at the National Cathedral, as Jim Lyons has suggested. He suggested holding it on Sunday the 17th. We would have to make sure it does not conflict with the Illinois primary.

Pros:

- Serious response to resumption of violence; opportunity for interdenominational solidarity for peace.
- Could offer way not to exclude Adams. We could decide to give him a visa waiver and make the event open so that he could decide to attend. That would be controversial but less so than inviting him to the White House.
- If we decide Adams should not come, his absence will be less glaring. We would have to decide whether to invite NI political leaders. In any case, fewer would come for this than for a party at the White House. (Hume would still be there.)

Cons:

- Would still have to decide what to do about Adams.
- Any religious gathering could be awkward given the tensions between Protestants and Catholics.
- We would have to find someone to host it.

4. Hold a prayer vigil in conjunction with a party on Friday. The vigil could be at 6:00 p.m. at the Cathedral, followed by a party either at the Vice President's home or the White House. The party could be a subdued affair -- no black tie, no vocalists.

Pros:

- Same advantages as holding the party as planned, but without the drawback of possibly appearing inappropriate.

Cons:

- Still face issue of what to do about Adams.
- Many guests would miss the Irish songs and the fun.

Recommendation

The essence of our dilemma is how to avoid reducing Adams' stature while he is trying to get the IRA back on board, without appearing soft on terrorism. We will probably have to make a decision on whether to invite him to the St. Patrick's Day event before we know whether he can sell whatever package the Irish and British come up with to the IRA. We have until about March 5 before we need to invite the other Northern Ireland and British guests. In the meantime, we do have to make a decision on what kind of event to plan.

On balance we recommend that the President both lead a prayer vigil and host a party at the White House. We are going to have to face the decision of having Adams in the White House for meetings one way or another so canceling the party only avoids the social angle. The Irish Government wants us to hold an event and thinks it should be as close to normal as possible. They certainly have no objection to adding the prayer service. Prime Minister Bruton plans to go to Canada on Saturday and would prefer that the event be held on Friday as planned. We need to look at what kind of prayer vigil and whether to hold the party without entertainment.

If you agree, we will do a brief memo to the President asking him to approve holding a prayer service and party and postponing the decision on Adams until early March.

MEMORANDUM FOR NANCY SODERBERG

FROM: MARY ANN PETERS

SUBJECT: Guest List for St. Patrick's Day Event

Yesterday's meeting in Ann Stock's office was devoted to cutting the attached list. They are aiming for a total of 500+ guests, compared to about 350 last year. I do not have all the cuts marked, but the final domestic list was 250 couples. Assuming some regrets, this will allow room for NSC/State as well as 30 or so guests from Northern Ireland. I have asked Kim Widdess to ask Ann Stock to call Tony or you Tuesday morning before actually putting any invitations in the mail. When they do go, in addition to the attached list, the following should also be invited:

Prime Minister Bruton (and other members of his delegation)
(Will have to defer until we know who is coming)

Ambassador and Mrs. Gallagher

Patrick Hennessy (Irish DCM)

Ambassador Jean Kennedy Smith

(Senator Mitchell is already on the master list)

Martha Pope

David Pozorski

John Kornblum, Acting Assistant Secretary of State

Terry Snell (Director of Office of UK, Benelux and Ireland Affairs)

Paul van Son, Ireland desk officer

Anthony Lake and guest

Nancy Soderberg and guest

Sandy Vershbow and wife Lisa

Mary Ann Peters and husband Tim McMahon

Chuck Meissner, Assistant Secretary of Commerce

(Kathy Stephens is on the master list)

Also attached is another copy of the suggested guest list from Northern Ireland, which includes Mayhew, Ancram, the mayors of Belfast and Derry (return hospitality), the party leaders, Pat Dougan, the chairman of the East Belfast enterprise park where the President participated in a seminar, and the MP's from Northern Ireland. There are 27 names on the list, counting Adams.

In addition, if we do invite the Northern Ireland contingent, with or without Adams, we should include a few British guests for balance. They are:

Sir John Kerr, British Ambassador, and Lady Kerr
Don Alexander, Northern Ireland Bureau (British Embassy)
Peter Westmacott, British Embassy
Anne Smith, local Ulster Unionist Party representative
Baroness Denton of Wakefield, Parliamentary Under Secretary,
Northern Ireland Office (who will be in town)

IF Adams is invited, we should add:

Mairead Keane, Friends of Sinn Fein

We will have to make a decision on whether to invite anyone at all from Northern Ireland before we know whether the cease-fire is restored. If Tony agrees, I recommend that we go ahead and send the invitations to everyone but Gerry and Mairead at this point.

_____ Agree _____ Disagree

If asked we can say that we do not yet know what the circumstances will be on March 15, but we hope to be able to include Adams.

Considering how hard we have worked to get credibility with the unionist community, and how much we are going to need that credibility, I do not see how we can invite John Hume and not David Trimble.

SUBJ: SUGGESTED INVITEES FOR ST. PATRICK'S DAY

The first category of names are Northern Ireland politicians who are intimately involved in the peace process and in the President's trip. Invitations can be sent to the addresses below via international mail, and the Consulate General in Belfast can follow up by phone. Many of them will not be able to attend because of the expense, but inviting them will be seen as a gracious response to the hospitality the President was shown in Northern Ireland, and will further increase the Administration's credibility in the peace process.

Re: Ireland Client No. 74099-101
Date: February 20, 1996

Nancy:

Under the circumstances, some St. Patrick's Day White House gala seems inappropriate. I would like to suggest instead that the President consider an inter-denominational prayer service on St. Patrick's Day (which is a Sunday). He might invite prominent Irish American leaders to join him in a Catholic/Protestant prayer service for peace. The National Cathedral might be a good venue. What do you think? I'll call you later.

MEMORANDUM FOR EVELYN LIEBERMAN

FROM: NANCY SODERBERG✓
SUBJECT: St. Patrick's Day

I thought it might be useful for you to see the options that the NSC looked at in making a recommendation on how to handle St. Patrick's Day:

1. Have the party as planned. Whether Adams is invited would depend on status of peace process. (Note: We would probably have to invite other NI guests whether Adams is invited or not. Hume plans to attend and it would be politically untenable to exclude him. If he comes we cannot exclude Trimble and other unionists, who were invited last year. We can, however, defer sending invitations to NI guests until o/a March 5.)

Pros:

- Would avoid being seen as deterred by terrorism or allowing question of Adams' attendance to dictate our decisions.
- May help with our Irish-American supporters who expect us to hold something this year.
- Key unionists probably would come, in contrast to previous years. Would highlight cross-community support for peace.

Cons:

- The fact that a cross-section of NI political leaders would come is also the major drawback to this option, since the more political leaders who come, the more glaring Adams' absence and the greater his possible loss of credibility with the IRA.
- Might appear inappropriate to have a gala party so soon after violence has resumed, especially if there are additional incidents.

2. Cancel the party, and have Prime Minister Bruton do only the shamrock event (which could be expanded to include more people if desirable).

Pros:

- Avoids the decision on whether to invite Adams to a party, although we would still face decisions on White House meetings.

Cons:

- Denies Irish-American and Northern Ireland political leaders the chance to join the President at the White House.
- Could be interpreted as bowing to terrorism or allowing Adams to dictate our agenda.

3. Hold an interdenominational prayer service at the National Cathedral, as Jim Lyons has suggested. He suggested holding it on Sunday the 17th. We would have to make sure it does not conflict with the Illinois primary.

Pros:

- Serious response to resumption of violence; opportunity for interdenominational solidarity for peace.
- Could offer way not to exclude Adams. We could decide to give him a visa waiver and make the event open so that he could decide to attend. That would be controversial but less so than inviting him to the White House.
- If we decide Adams should not come, his absence will be less glaring. We would have to decide whether to invite NI political leaders. In any case, fewer would come for this than for a party at the White House. (Hume would still be there.)

Cons:

- Would still have to decide what to do about Adams.
- Any religious gathering could be awkward given the tensions between Protestants and Catholics.
- We would have to find someone to host it.

4. Hold a prayer vigil in conjunction with a party on Friday.
The vigil could be at 6:00 p.m. at the Cathedral, followed by a party either at the Vice President's home or the White House. The party could be a subdued affair -- no black tie, no vocalists.

Pros:

- Same advantages as holding the party as planned, but without the drawback of possibly appearing inappropriate.

Cons:

- Still face issue of what to do about Adams.
- Many guests would miss the Irish songs and the fun.

MEMORANDUM FOR EVELYN LIEBERMAN

FROM:

NANCY SODERBERG^P

SUBJECT:

St. Patrick's Day Events

The NSC recommends that we proceed with an evening event on March 15 in honor of St. Patrick's Day and Prime Minister Bruton. To cancel the event would appear to allow terrorists to set our agenda. We also considered having a prayer service instead of a social event, but the Irish Government prefers that the event be as similar to previous years' as possible under the circumstances.

Given the resumption of violence and the somber mood in Ireland and Northern Ireland, it would be inappropriate simply to hold a party celebrating St. Patrick's Day. We therefore propose that, instead of musical entertainment, the program at the event consist of remarks by the President and the Prime Minister and invocations or prayers by Catholic and Protestant clergymen for an end to the violence. We should also observe a moment of silence for the victims of the bombs.

We would like to postpone inviting journalists and guests from Northern Ireland and the Britain until o/a March 5, but there is no reason why the invitations to the American guests cannot be sent now.

Let's discuss on Saturday.
