

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT
AT BANQUET IN HONOR OF DR. BILLY GRAHAM
AND MRS. RUTH GRAHAM
Capital Hilton Hotel
Washington, D.C.
May 2, 1996

Good evening. The first time I ever met Paul Harvey, he and his son played through a foursome I was in on a golf course in Chicago. He never told me the score. But since then he's tried to tell me the score about a lot of other things. And I've enjoyed it every time.

To the members of the Graham family, the members of Congress who are here, ladies and gentlemen: I'm deeply honored to join with you tonight in honoring two of America's finest citizens, two of the world's greatest human resources, Billy and Ruth Graham.

When Billy and Ruth received the Congressional Gold Medal today they received only the 114th medal in the 220 year history of this country. Since, as Paul Harvey said, George Washington received the first one in 1776, followed by Thomas Edison, Marian Anderson, Eli Weisel, Winston Churchill -- Billy and Ruth Graham belong in their company, and more.

I am going to make a presentation in a moment related to that, but I wanted to say a few words first. I'm very proud that Billy and Ruth have decided to share this honor with The Billy and Ruth Graham Children's Center of Memorial Mission Hospital in Ashville, North Carolina.

In Galatians 6, St. Paul said that, while each of us must make our own efforts to sustain ourselves, we are also reminded to "bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ." Sharing this medal in this way does that.

But in so many ways Billy and Ruth have fulfilled the law of Christ. First, in the ministry of the word going into all nations: I hardly ever go to a place as President where Billy Graham hasn't been there before me, preaching. And I feel like a poor substitute from time to time, because often what I'm trying to do is get people to lay down the hatreds of the heart and reach down into their spirits and treat people who are different from them with the same dignity that all God's children are entitled to.

Billy and Ruth also have practiced the ministry of the deed. Hundreds of times the Bible calls upon us to minister to the poor and the needy, as they did in trying to help disaster victims in Guatemala and countless other places. Yesterday Billy and I were talking about how proud he was of the work that his son, Franklin, has done, and I saw some of that when I sent our troops into Bosnia and I met some people who had worked with Franklin Graham to try to help the poor children in that war-torn land.

Billy and Ruth Graham have practiced the ministry of good citizenship, being friends with Presidents of both parties, counseling them in countless ways, always completely private, always completely genuine. Yesterday we sat in the Oval Office reminiscing and talking about current circumstances, and I asked for Billy Graham's prayers for the wisdom and guidance of God. That is a part of his ministry as well.

Perhaps the most moving example of that came when Billy Graham spoke along with me and a number of others at the service shortly after the bombing in Oklahoma City. He knew he was speaking to a vast array of people who had been wounded by that incident. Most of them were Christians, but not all of them were. Yet he sought to speak to all of them, and he gave what I thought was one of the most honest messages I had ever heard a minister of the Word give. I thought to myself as I watched him give it that only a man completely convicted, completely secure in his own faith, could have looked out at that vast, wounded array of human beings and said, something like this: "I wish I could tell you that I understand completely why things like this happen. But I don't. Even after all these years, I don't. I don't know why this happened. I don't have an explanation for it. But the God we love is a God of love and mercy amidst all the suffering we are asked to endure. We are not supposed to understand everything, but instead to lean on God."

Finally, I thank Billy Graham and Ruth Graham for the ministry of their life and their personal example, for their extraordinary achievement of five children, 19 grandchildren, and I think now eight great-grandchildren. If that achievement could be mirrored by every adult in America we would have about 10 percent of the problems we've got today in this great country of ours.

I thank them for countless personal gestures that demonstrate that as private people they are what they seem to be in public. I thank them for always doing things that will enable them to minister to people they may not even know. I have said this in public before, but I want to say it again. When I was a small boy, about 12 years old, Billy Graham came to Little Rock, Arkansas, to preach a crusade. That town was torn apart by racial conflict. Our high schools were closed there, and there were those who asked Billy Graham to segregate his audience in War Memorial Stadium so as not to roil the waters.

And I'll never forget that he said -- and it was in the paper -- that if he had to speak the word of God to a segregated audience he would violate his ministry, and he would not do it. And at the most intense time in the modern history of my state, the forces of separation caved. Blacks and whites together poured into the football stadium. And when the invitation was given, they poured down together, down the aisles, and they forgot that they were supposed to be mad at each other, angry at each other, that one was supposed to consider the other somehow less than equal.

He never preached a word about integrating the schools. He preached the word of God and he lived it by the power of his example. And one young boy from a modest family for a long time thereafter took just a little money out of his allowance every month and sent it to Billy Graham's Crusade. I've lived with that all my life.

I'll never forget that when Billy Graham came back to Little Rock 30 years later, probably the most well-known man of God and faith in the world, he took time out one day to let me take him to see my pastor whom he'd known for 30 years, because he was dying. And my elderly pastor, with only a few weeks to live, sat and talked to Billy Graham about their life, their work, their trips to the Holy Land, and the life to come. There was no one there. There were no cameras, there were no reporters, there was nothing to be gained. It was a simple, private, personal expression of common Christianity and gratitude for the life of a person who had given his life for their shared faith.

And finally, he got up to go. Billy looked at my pastor, W.O. Vaught, shriveled to less than 100 pounds, and he said, "Smile, W.O., next time I see you we'll be outside the Eastern Gate." I'll never forget that as long as I live.

So the Congress did a great thing; you have done a great thing; Billy and Ruth Graham have done a great thing in sharing this award with future generations of people who will need their help and their ministry even after they have passed their time on this Earth. For all that, as President and in my personal role as a citizen and a Christian, I am profoundly grateful.

I'd like Reverend Graham to come out now, and I will give him a copy of the bill which I signed and the pen with which I signed it. And perhaps he'd like to say a word to you tonight.

Billy.

DR. GRAHAM: I'm glad that that's on tape so I can play that to my neighbors and friends -- for years to come. Because President Clinton has been a friend for so many years, I feel like it is very difficult after he became President, because I led the Inaugural prayer, and when I stepped down I said, "Mr. President," and I almost said, "Bill," because I'd called him Bill so long. And I feel like calling him Bill again tonight after those warm words of a brother.

So much has been said today, and I only have one little story to tell you that I've told you before, about a time when I was on an airplane. And we were going from New York to Charlotte. And a man got on board and he was as drunk as any man I've seen. And he sat down, and he finally decided that he wanted to fly the plane. So he got up and staggered toward the cockpit. And the copilot had to come back and put him back in his seat.

And the man sitting across the aisle from him was the Mayor of Charlotte by the name of John Belk. And this man turned to me and he said, "You're Billy Graham." I was sitting behind him, and I said, "Yes, I'm Billy Graham." I admitted it. And he said, "Put her there." He said, "Your sermons have certainly helped me." So not all the sermons and not all the travel has accomplished everything that we would like.

But I want to say a word of appreciation and thanks to the President, to all of those who participated today, and to the hospitals -- the Memorial Mission Hospital in Ashville, and for that magnificent Children's Hospital that they've built, which is going to take care of hundreds of children from Appalachia and different parts of the world. They brought a tremendous staff there. I held in my hand a few days ago a baby, one pound and one ounce, and they'd already given him open-heart surgery. And he was going to make it.

And that's the kind of thing that they're doing. And whether you have any money or don't have any money you can get in there and they'll take your children. And we're so grateful that that is in North Carolina, and we're so grateful that Ruth and I don't know how to express it. We never dreamed that it would be named for us. But we consider that we're a part of that hospital now.

I had a member of my staff, T.W. Wilson, who was disappearing every little while. I wondered where he was going, and I would ask. And they said, "Willy has a hospital meeting in Ashville." I thought they meant that he was going to the hospital. But they had put him on the committee, and he helped, and we're very grateful.

And I'm grateful to all of you tonight for every part that you've put in this. And if you're from that part of North Carolina, I hope to see you down there, maybe not on the golf course as the President said -- I played golf every day of my life nearly until a few years ago, except Sundays, and I gave it up. I'm not going to tell you why I gave it up -- but there wasn't enough exercise to me, and there's not enough money to pay those fees. I almost went to the government for a loan.

So, thank you, and God bless you all.

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT
AT BANQUET IN HONOR OF DR. BILLY GRAHAM
AND MRS. RUTH GRAHAM
Capital Hilton Hotel
Washington, D.C.
May 2, 1996

Good evening. The first time I ever met Paul Harvey, he and his son played through a foursome I was in on a golf course in Chicago. He never told me the score. But since then he's tried to tell me the score about a lot of other things. And I've enjoyed it every time.

To the members of the Graham family, the members of Congress who are here, ladies and gentlemen: I'm deeply honored to join with you tonight in honoring two of America's finest citizens, two of the world's greatest human resources, Billy and Ruth Graham.

When Billy and Ruth received the Congressional Gold Medal today they received only the 114th medal in the 220 year history of this country. Since, as Paul Harvey said, George Washington received the first one in 1776, followed by Thomas Edison, Marian Anderson, Eli Weisel, Winston Churchill -- Billy and Ruth Graham belong in their company, and more.

I am going to make a presentation in a moment related to that, but I wanted to say a few words first. I'm very proud that Billy and Ruth have decided to share this honor with The Billy and Ruth Graham Children's Center of Memorial Mission Hospital in Ashville, North Carolina.

In Galatians 6, St. Paul said that, while each of us must make our own efforts to sustain ourselves, we are also reminded to "bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ." Sharing this medal in this way does that.

But in so many ways Billy and Ruth have fulfilled the law of Christ. First, in the ministry of the word going into all nations: I hardly ever go to a place as President where Billy Graham hasn't been there before me, preaching. And I feel like a poor substitute from time to time, because often what I'm trying to do is get people to lay down the hatreds of the heart and reach down into their spirits and treat people who are different from them with the same dignity that all God's children are entitled to.

Billy and Ruth also have practiced the ministry of the deed. Hundreds of times the Bible calls upon us to minister to the poor and the needy, as they did in trying to help disaster victims in Guatemala and countless other places. Yesterday Billy and I were talking about how proud he was of the work that his son, Franklin, has done, and I saw some of that when I sent our troops into Bosnia and I met some people who had worked with Franklin Graham to try to help the poor children in that war-torn land.

Billy and Ruth Graham have practiced the ministry of good citizenship, being friends with Presidents of both parties, counseling them in countless ways, always completely private, always completely genuine. Yesterday we sat in the Oval Office reminiscing and talking about current circumstances, and I asked for Billy Graham's prayers for the wisdom and guidance of God. That is a part of his ministry as well.

Perhaps the most moving example of that came when Billy Graham spoke along with me and a number of others at the service shortly after the bombing in Oklahoma City. He knew he was speaking to a vast array of people who had been wounded by that incident. Most of them were Christians, but not all of them were. Yet he sought to speak to all of them, and he gave what I thought was one of the most honest messages I had ever heard a minister of the Word give. I thought to myself as I watched him give it that only a man completely convicted, completely secure in his own faith, could have looked out at that vast, wounded array of human beings and said, something like this: "I wish I could tell you that I understand completely why things like this happen. But I don't. Even after all these years, I don't. I don't know why this happened. I don't have an explanation for it. But the God we love is a God of love and mercy amidst all the suffering we are asked to endure. We are not supposed to understand everything, but instead to lean on God."

Finally, I thank Billy Graham and Ruth Graham for the ministry of their life and their personal example, for their extraordinary achievement of five children, 19 grandchildren, and I think now eight great-grandchildren. If that achievement could be mirrored by every adult in America we would have about 10 percent of the problems we've got today in this great country of ours.

I thank them for countless personal gestures that demonstrate that as private people they are what they seem to be in public. I thank them for always doing things that will enable them to minister to people they may not even know. I have said this in public before, but I want to say it again. When I was a small boy, about 12 years old, Billy Graham came to Little Rock, Arkansas, to preach a crusade. That town was torn apart by racial conflict. Our high schools were closed there, and there were those who asked Billy Graham to segregate his audience in War Memorial Stadium so as not to roil the waters.

And I'll never forget that he said -- and it was in the paper -- that if he had to speak the word of God to a segregated audience he would violate his ministry, and he would not do it. And at the most intense time in the modern history of my state, the forces of separation caved. Blacks and whites together poured into the football stadium. And when the invitation was given, they poured down together, down the aisles, and they forgot that they were supposed to be mad at each other, angry at each other, that one was supposed to consider the other somehow less than equal.

He never preached a word about integrating the schools. He preached the word of God and he lived it by the power of his example. And one young boy from a modest family for a long time thereafter took just a little money out of his allowance every month and sent it to Billy Graham's Crusade. I've lived with that all my life.

I'll never forget that when Billy Graham came back to Little Rock 30 years later, probably the most well-known man of God and faith in the world, he took time out one day to let me take him to see my pastor whom he'd known for 30 years, because he was dying. And my elderly pastor, with only a few weeks to live, sat and talked to Billy Graham about their life, their work, their trips to the Holy Land, and the life to come. There was no one there. There were no cameras, there were no reporters, there was nothing to be gained. It was a simple, private, personal expression of common Christianity and gratitude for the life of a person who had given his life for their shared faith.

And finally, he got up to go. Billy looked at my pastor, W.O. Vaught, shriveled to less than 100 pounds, and he said, "Smile, W.O., next time I see you we'll be outside the Eastern Gate." I'll never forget that as long as I live.

So the Congress did a great thing; you have done a great thing; Billy and Ruth Graham have done a great thing in sharing this award with future generations of people who will need their help and their ministry even after they have passed their time on this Earth. For all that, as President and in my personal role as a citizen and a Christian, I am profoundly grateful.

I'd like Reverend Graham to come out now, and I will give him a copy of the bill which I signed and the pen with which I signed it. And perhaps he'd like to say a word to you tonight.

Billy.

DR. GRAHAM: I'm glad that that's on tape so I can play that to my neighbors and friends -- for years to come. Because President Clinton has been a friend for so many years, I feel like it is very difficult after he became President, because I led the Inaugural prayer, and when I stepped down I said, "Mr. President," and I almost said, "Bill," because I'd called him Bill so long. And I feel like calling him Bill again tonight after those warm words of a brother.

So much has been said today, and I only have one little story to tell you that I've told you before, about a time when I was on an airplane. And we were going from New York to Charlotte. And a man got on board and he was as drunk as any man I've seen. And he sat down, and he finally decided that he wanted to fly the plane. So he got up and staggered toward the cockpit. And the copilot had to come back and put him back in his seat.

And the man sitting across the aisle from him was the Mayor of Charlotte by the name of John Belk. And this man turned to me and he said, "You're Billy Graham." I was sitting behind him, and I said, "Yes, I'm Billy Graham." I admitted it. And he said, "Put her there." He said, "Your sermons have certainly helped me." So not all the sermons and not all the travel has accomplished everything that we would like.

But I want to say a word of appreciation and thanks to the President, to all of those who participated today, and to the hospitals -- the Memorial Mission Hospital in Ashville, and for that magnificent Children's Hospital that they've built, which is going to take care of hundreds of children from Appalachia and different parts of the world. They brought a tremendous staff there. I held in my hand a few days ago a baby, one pound and one ounce, and they'd already given him open-heart surgery. And he was going to make it.

And that's the kind of thing that they're doing. And whether you have any money or don't have any money you can get in there and they'll take your children. And we're so grateful that that is in North Carolina, and we're so grateful that Ruth and I don't know how to express it. We never dreamed that it would be named for us. But we consider that we're a part of that hospital now.

I had a member of my staff, T.W. Wilson, who was disappearing every little while. I wondered where he was going, and I would ask. And they said, "Willy has a hospital meeting in Ashville." I thought they meant that he was going to the hospital. But they had put him on the committee, and he helped, and we're very grateful.

And I'm grateful to all of you tonight for every part that you've put in this. And if you're from that part of North Carolina, I hope to see you down there, maybe not on the golf course as the President said -- I played golf every day of my life nearly until a few years ago, except Sundays, and I gave it up. I'm not going to tell you why I gave it up -- but there wasn't enough exercise to me, and there's not enough money to pay those fees. I almost went to the government for a loan.

So, thank you, and God bless you all.

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT
AT BANQUET IN HONOR OF DR. BILLY GRAHAM
AND MRS. RUTH GRAHAM
Capital Hilton Hotel
Washington, D.C.
May 2, 1996

Good evening. The first time I ever met Paul Harvey, he and his son played through a foursome I was in on a golf course in Chicago. He never told me the score. But since then he's tried to tell me the score about a lot of other things. And I've enjoyed it every time.

To the members of the Graham family, the members of Congress who are here, ladies and gentlemen: I'm deeply honored to join with you tonight in honoring two of America's finest citizens, two of the world's greatest human resources, Billy and Ruth Graham.

When Billy and Ruth received the Congressional Gold Medal today they received only the 114th medal in the 220 year history of this country. Since, as Paul Harvey said, George Washington received the first one in 1776, followed by Thomas Edison, Marian Anderson, Eli Weisel, Winston Churchill -- Billy and Ruth Graham belong in their company, and more.

I am going to make a presentation in a moment related to that, but I wanted to say a few words first. I'm very proud that Billy and Ruth have decided to share this honor with The Billy and Ruth Graham Children's Center of Memorial Mission Hospital in Ashville, North Carolina.

In Galatians 6, St. Paul said that, while each of us must make our own efforts to sustain ourselves, we are also reminded to "bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ." Sharing this medal in this way does that.

But in so many ways Billy and Ruth have fulfilled the law of Christ. First, in the ministry of the word going into all nations: I hardly ever go to a place as President where Billy Graham hasn't been there before me, preaching. And I feel like a poor substitute from time to time, because often what I'm trying to do is get people to lay down the hatreds of the heart and reach down into their spirits and treat people who are different from them with the same dignity that all God's children are entitled to.

Billy and Ruth also have practiced the ministry of the deed. Hundreds of times the Bible calls upon us to minister to the poor and the needy, as they did in trying to help disaster victims in Guatemala and countless other places. Yesterday Billy and I were talking about how proud he was of the work that his son, Franklin, has done, and I saw some of that when I sent our troops into Bosnia and I met some people who had worked with Franklin Graham to try to help the poor children in that war-torn land.

Billy and Ruth Graham have practiced the ministry of good citizenship, being friends with Presidents of both parties, counseling them in countless ways, always completely private, always completely genuine. Yesterday we sat in the Oval Office reminiscing and talking about current circumstances, and I asked for Billy Graham's prayers for the wisdom and guidance of God. That is a part of his ministry as well.

Perhaps the most moving example of that came when Billy Graham spoke along with me and a number of others at the service shortly after the bombing in Oklahoma City. He knew he was speaking to a vast array of people who had been wounded by that incident. Most of them were Christians, but not all of them were. Yet he sought to speak to all of them, and he gave what I thought was one of the most honest messages I had ever heard a minister of the Word give. I thought to myself as I watched him give it that only a man completely convicted, completely secure in his own faith, could have looked out at that vast, wounded array of human beings and said, something like this: "I wish I could tell you that I understand completely why things like this happen. But I don't. Even after all these years, I don't. I don't know why this happened. I don't have an explanation for it. But the God we love is a God of love and mercy amidst all the suffering we are asked to endure. We are not supposed to understand everything, but instead to lean on God."

Finally, I thank Billy Graham and Ruth Graham for the ministry of their life and their personal example, for their extraordinary achievement of five children, 19 grandchildren, and I think now eight great-grandchildren. If that achievement could be mirrored by every adult in America we would have about 10 percent of the problems we've got today in this great country of ours.

I thank them for countless personal gestures that demonstrate that as private people they are what they seem to be in public. I thank them for always doing things that will enable them to minister to people they may not even know. I have said this in public before, but I want to say it again. When I was a small boy, about 12 years old, Billy Graham came to Little Rock, Arkansas, to preach a crusade. That town was torn apart by racial conflict. Our high schools were closed there, and there were those who asked Billy Graham to segregate his audience in War Memorial Stadium so as not to roil the waters.

And I'll never forget that he said -- and it was in the paper -- that if he had to speak the word of God to a segregated audience he would violate his ministry, and he would not do it. And at the most intense time in the modern history of my state, the forces of separation caved. Blacks and whites together poured into the football stadium. And when the invitation was given, they poured down together, down the aisles, and they forgot that they were supposed to be mad at each other, angry at each other, that one was supposed to consider the other somehow less than equal.

He never preached a word about integrating the schools. He preached the word of God and he lived it by the power of his example. And one young boy from a modest family for a long time thereafter took just a little money out of his allowance every month and sent it to Billy Graham's Crusade. I've lived with that all my life.

I'll never forget that when Billy Graham came back to Little Rock 30 years later, probably the most well-known man of God and faith in the world, he took time out one day to let me take him to see my pastor whom he'd known for 30 years, because he was dying. And my elderly pastor, with only a few weeks to live, sat and talked to Billy Graham about their life, their work, their trips to the Holy Land, and the life to come. There was no one there. There were no cameras, there were no reporters, there was nothing to be gained. It was a simple, private, personal expression of common Christianity and gratitude for the life of a person who had given his life for their shared faith.

And finally, he got up to go. Billy looked at my pastor, W.O. Vaught, shriveled to less than 100 pounds, and he said, "Smile, W.O., next time I see you we'll be outside the Eastern Gate." I'll never forget that as long as I live.

So the Congress did a great thing; you have done a great thing; Billy and Ruth Graham have done a great thing in sharing this award with future generations of people who will need their help and their ministry even after they have passed their time on this Earth. For all that, as President and in my personal role as a citizen and a Christian, I am profoundly grateful.

I'd like Reverend Graham to come out now, and I will give him a copy of the bill which I signed and the pen with which I signed it. And perhaps he'd like to say a word to you tonight.

Billy.

DR. GRAHAM: I'm glad that that's on tape so I can play that to my neighbors and friends -- for years to come. Because President Clinton has been a friend for so many years, I feel like it is very difficult after he became President, because I led the Inaugural prayer, and when I stepped down I said, "Mr. President," and I almost said, "Bill," because I'd called him Bill so long. And I feel like calling him Bill again tonight after those warm words of a brother.

So much has been said today, and I only have one little story to tell you that I've told you before, about a time when I was on an airplane. And we were going from New York to Charlotte. And a man got on board and he was as drunk as any man I've seen. And he sat down, and he finally decided that he wanted to fly the plane. So he got up and staggered toward the cockpit. And the copilot had to come back and put him back in his seat.

And the man sitting across the aisle from him was the Mayor of Charlotte by the name of John Belk. And this man turned to me and he said, "You're Billy Graham." I was sitting behind him, and I said, "Yes, I'm Billy Graham." I admitted it. And he said, "Put her there." He said, "Your sermons have certainly helped me." So not all the sermons and not all the travel has accomplished everything that we would like.

But I want to say a word of appreciation and thanks to the President, to all of those who participated today, and to the hospitals -- the Memorial Mission Hospital in Ashville, and for that magnificent Children's Hospital that they've built, which is going to take care of hundreds of children from Appalachia and different parts of the world. They brought a tremendous staff there. I held in my hand a few days ago a baby, one pound and one ounce, and they'd already given him open-heart surgery. And he was going to make it.

And that's the kind of thing that they're doing. And whether you have any money or don't have any money you can get in there and they'll take your children. And we're so grateful that that is in North Carolina, and we're so grateful that Ruth and I don't know how to express it. We never dreamed that it would be named for us. But we consider that we're a part of that hospital now.

I had a member of my staff, T.W. Wilson, who was disappearing every little while. I wondered where he was going, and I would ask. And they said, "Willy has a hospital meeting in Ashville." I thought they meant that he was going to the hospital. But they had put him on the committee, and he helped, and we're very grateful.

And I'm grateful to all of you tonight for every part that you've put in this. And if you're from that part of North Carolina, I hope to see you down there, maybe not on the golf course as the President said -- I played golf every day of my life nearly until a few years ago, except Sundays, and I gave it up. I'm not going to tell you why I gave it up -- but there wasn't enough exercise to me, and there's not enough money to pay those fees. I almost went to the government for a loan.

So, thank you, and God bless you all.

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT
AT BANQUET IN HONOR OF DR. BILLY GRAHAM
AND MRS. RUTH GRAHAM
Capital Hilton Hotel
Washington, D.C.
May 2, 1996

Good evening. The first time I ever met Paul Harvey, he and his son played through a foursome I was in on a golf course in Chicago. He never told me the score. But since then he's tried to tell me the score about a lot of other things. And I've enjoyed it every time.

To the members of the Graham family, the members of Congress who are here, ladies and gentlemen: I'm deeply honored to join with you tonight in honoring two of America's finest citizens, two of the world's greatest human resources, Billy and Ruth Graham.

When Billy and Ruth received the Congressional Gold Medal today they received only the 114th medal in the 220 year history of this country. Since, as Paul Harvey said, George Washington received the first one in 1776, followed by Thomas Edison, Marian Anderson, Eli Weisel, Winston Churchill -- Billy and Ruth Graham belong in their company, and more.

I am going to make a presentation in a moment related to that, but I wanted to say a few words first. I'm very proud that Billy and Ruth have decided to share this honor with The Billy and Ruth Graham Children's Center of Memorial Mission Hospital in Ashville, North Carolina.

In Galatians 6, St. Paul said that, while each of us must make our own efforts to sustain ourselves, we are also reminded to "bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ." Sharing this medal in this way does that.

But in so many ways Billy and Ruth have fulfilled the law of Christ. First, in the ministry of the word going into all nations: I hardly ever go to a place as President where Billy Graham hasn't been there before me, preaching. And I feel like a poor substitute from time to time, because often what I'm trying to do is get people to lay down the hatreds of the heart and reach down into their spirits and treat people who are different from them with the same dignity that all God's children are entitled to.

Billy and Ruth also have practiced the ministry of the deed. Hundreds of times the Bible calls upon us to minister to the poor and the needy, as they did in trying to help disaster victims in Guatemala and countless other places. Yesterday Billy and I were talking about how proud he was of the work that his son, Franklin, has done, and I saw some of that when I sent our troops into Bosnia and I met some people who had worked with Franklin Graham to try to help the poor children in that war-torn land.

Billy and Ruth Graham have practiced the ministry of good citizenship, being friends with Presidents of both parties, counseling them in countless ways, always completely private, always completely genuine. Yesterday we sat in the Oval Office reminiscing and talking about current circumstances, and I asked for Billy Graham's prayers for the wisdom and guidance of God. That is a part of his ministry as well.

Perhaps the most moving example of that came when Billy Graham spoke along with me and a number of others at the service shortly after the bombing in Oklahoma City. He knew he was speaking to a vast array of people who had been wounded by that incident. Most of them were Christians, but not all of them were. Yet he sought to speak to all of them, and he gave what I thought was one of the most honest messages I had ever heard a minister of the Word give. I thought to myself as I watched him give it that only a man completely convicted, completely secure in his own faith, could have looked out at that vast, wounded array of human beings and said, something like this: "I wish I could tell you that I understand completely why things like this happen. But I don't. Even after all these years, I don't. I don't know why this happened. I don't have an explanation for it. But the God we love is a God of love and mercy amidst all the suffering we are asked to endure. We are not supposed to understand everything, but instead to lean on God."

Finally, I thank Billy Graham and Ruth Graham for the ministry of their life and their personal example, for their extraordinary achievement of five children, 19 grandchildren, and I think now eight great-grandchildren. If that achievement could be mirrored by every adult in America we would have about 10 percent of the problems we've got today in this great country of ours.

I thank them for countless personal gestures that demonstrate that as private people they are what they seem to be in public. I thank them for always doing things that will enable them to minister to people they may not even know. I have said this in public before, but I want to say it again. When I was a small boy, about 12 years old, Billy Graham came to Little Rock, Arkansas, to preach a crusade. That town was torn apart by racial conflict. Our high schools were closed there, and there were those who asked Billy Graham to segregate his audience in War Memorial Stadium so as not to roil the waters.

And I'll never forget that he said -- and it was in the paper -- that if he had to speak the word of God to a segregated audience he would violate his ministry, and he would not do it. And at the most intense time in the modern history of my state, the forces of separation caved. Blacks and whites together poured into the football stadium. And when the invitation was given, they poured down together, down the aisles, and they forgot that they were supposed to be mad at each other, angry at each other, that one was supposed to consider the other somehow less than equal.

He never preached a word about integrating the schools. He preached the word of God and he lived it by the power of his example. And one young boy from a modest family for a long time thereafter took just a little money out of his allowance every month and sent it to Billy Graham's Crusade. I've lived with that all my life.

I'll never forget that when Billy Graham came back to Little Rock 30 years later, probably the most well-known man of God and faith in the world, he took time out one day to let me take him to see my pastor whom he'd known for 30 years, because he was dying. And my elderly pastor, with only a few weeks to live, sat and talked to Billy Graham about their life, their work, their trips to the Holy Land, and the life to come. There was no one there. There were no cameras, there were no reporters, there was nothing to be gained. It was a simple, private, personal expression of common Christianity and gratitude for the life of a person who had given his life for their shared faith.

And finally, he got up to go. Billy looked at my pastor, W.O. Vaught, shriveled to less than 100 pounds, and he said, "Smile, W.O., next time I see you we'll be outside the Eastern Gate." I'll never forget that as long as I live.

So the Congress did a great thing; you have done a great thing; Billy and Ruth Graham have done a great thing in sharing this award with future generations of people who will need their help and their ministry even after they have passed their time on this Earth. For all that, as President and in my personal role as a citizen and a Christian, I am profoundly grateful.

I'd like Reverend Graham to come out now, and I will give him a copy of the bill which I signed and the pen with which I signed it. And perhaps he'd like to say a word to you tonight.

Billy.

DR. GRAHAM: I'm glad that that's on tape so I can play that to my neighbors and friends -- for years to come. Because President Clinton has been a friend for so many years, I feel like it is very difficult after he became President, because I led the Inaugural prayer, and when I stepped down I said, "Mr. President," and I almost said, "Bill," because I'd called him Bill so long. And I feel like calling him Bill again tonight after those warm words of a brother.

So much has been said today, and I only have one little story to tell you that I've told you before, about a time when I was on an airplane. And we were going from New York to Charlotte. And a man got on board and he was as drunk as any man I've seen. And he sat down, and he finally decided that he wanted to fly the plane. So he got up and staggered toward the cockpit. And the copilot had to come back and put him back in his seat.

And the man sitting across the aisle from him was the Mayor of Charlotte by the name of John Belk. And this man turned to me and he said, "You're Billy Graham." I was sitting behind him, and I said, "Yes, I'm Billy Graham." I admitted it. And he said, "Put her there." He said, "Your sermons have certainly helped me." So not all the sermons and not all the travel has accomplished everything that we would like.

But I want to say a word of appreciation and thanks to the President, to all of those who participated today, and to the hospitals -- the Memorial Mission Hospital in Ashville, and for that magnificent Children's Hospital that they've built, which is going to take care of hundreds of children from Appalachia and different parts of the world. They brought a tremendous staff there. I held in my hand a few days ago a baby, one pound and one ounce, and they'd already given him open-heart surgery. And he was going to make it.

And that's the kind of thing that they're doing. And whether you have any money or don't have any money you can get in there and they'll take your children. And we're so grateful that that is in North Carolina, and we're so grateful that Ruth and I don't know how to express it. We never dreamed that it would be named for us. But we consider that we're a part of that hospital now.

I had a member of my staff, T.W. Wilson, who was disappearing every little while. I wondered where he was going, and I would ask. And they said, "Willy has a hospital meeting in Ashville." I thought they meant that he was going to the hospital. But they had put him on the committee, and he helped, and we're very grateful.

And I'm grateful to all of you tonight for every part that you've put in this. And if you're from that part of North Carolina, I hope to see you down there, maybe not on the golf course as the President said -- I played golf every day of my life nearly until a few years ago, except Sundays, and I gave it up. I'm not going to tell you why I gave it up -- but there wasn't enough exercise to me, and there's not enough money to pay those fees. I almost went to the government for a loan.

So, thank you, and God bless you all.

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT
AT BANQUET IN HONOR OF DR. BILLY GRAHAM
AND MRS. RUTH GRAHAM
Capital Hilton Hotel
Washington, D.C.
May 2, 1996

Good evening. The first time I ever met Paul Harvey, he and his son played through a foursome I was in on a golf course in Chicago. He never told me the score. But since then he's tried to tell me the score about a lot of other things. And I've enjoyed it every time.

To the members of the Graham family, the members of Congress who are here, ladies and gentlemen: I'm deeply honored to join with you tonight in honoring two of America's finest citizens, two of the world's greatest human resources, Billy and Ruth Graham.

When Billy and Ruth received the Congressional Gold Medal today they received only the 114th medal in the 220 year history of this country. Since, as Paul Harvey said, George Washington received the first one in 1776, followed by Thomas Edison, Marian Anderson, Eli Weisel, Winston Churchill -- Billy and Ruth Graham belong in their company, and more.

I am going to make a presentation in a moment related to that, but I wanted to say a few words first. I'm very proud that Billy and Ruth have decided to share this honor with The Billy and Ruth Graham Children's Center of Memorial Mission Hospital in Ashville, North Carolina.

In Galatians 6, St. Paul said that, while each of us must make our own efforts to sustain ourselves, we are also reminded to "bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ." Sharing this medal in this way does that.

But in so many ways Billy and Ruth have fulfilled the law of Christ. First, in the ministry of the word going into all nations: I hardly ever go to a place as President where Billy Graham hasn't been there before me, preaching. And I feel like a poor substitute from time to time, because often what I'm trying to do is get people to lay down the hatreds of the heart and reach down into their spirits and treat people who are different from them with the same dignity that all God's children are entitled to.

Billy and Ruth also have practiced the ministry of the deed. Hundreds of times the Bible calls upon us to minister to the poor and the needy, as they did in trying to help disaster victims in Guatemala and countless other places. Yesterday Billy and I were talking about how proud he was of the work that his son, Franklin, has done, and I saw some of that when I sent our troops into Bosnia and I met some people who had worked with Franklin Graham to try to help the poor children in that war-torn land.

Billy and Ruth Graham have practiced the ministry of good citizenship, being friends with Presidents of both parties, counseling them in countless ways, always completely private, always completely genuine. Yesterday we sat in the Oval Office reminiscing and talking about current circumstances, and I asked for Billy Graham's prayers for the wisdom and guidance of God. That is a part of his ministry as well.

Perhaps the most moving example of that came when Billy Graham spoke along with me and a number of others at the service shortly after the bombing in Oklahoma City. He knew he was speaking to a vast array of people who had been wounded by that incident. Most of them were Christians, but not all of them were. Yet he sought to speak to all of them, and he gave what I thought was one of the most honest messages I had ever heard a minister of the Word give. I thought to myself as I watched him give it that only a man completely convicted, completely secure in his own faith, could have looked out at that vast, wounded array of human beings and said, something like this: "I wish I could tell you that I understand completely why things like this happen. But I don't. Even after all these years, I don't. I don't know why this happened. I don't have an explanation for it. But the God we love is a God of love and mercy amidst all the suffering we are asked to endure. We are not supposed to understand everything, but instead to lean on God."

Finally, I thank Billy Graham and Ruth Graham for the ministry of their life and their personal example, for their extraordinary achievement of five children, 19 grandchildren, and I think now eight great-grandchildren. If that achievement could be mirrored by every adult in America we would have about 10 percent of the problems we've got today in this great country of ours.

I thank them for countless personal gestures that demonstrate that as private people they are what they seem to be in public. I thank them for always doing things that will enable them to minister to people they may not even know. I have said this in public before, but I want to say it again. When I was a small boy, about 12 years old, Billy Graham came to Little Rock, Arkansas, to preach a crusade. That town was torn apart by racial conflict. Our high schools were closed there, and there were those who asked Billy Graham to segregate his audience in War Memorial Stadium so as not to roil the waters.

And I'll never forget that he said -- and it was in the paper -- that if he had to speak the word of God to a segregated audience he would violate his ministry, and he would not do it. And at the most intense time in the modern history of my state, the forces of separation caved. Blacks and whites together poured into the football stadium. And when the invitation was given, they poured down together, down the aisles, and they forgot that they were supposed to be mad at each other, angry at each other, that one was supposed to consider the other somehow less than equal.

He never preached a word about integrating the schools. He preached the word of God and he lived it by the power of his example. And one young boy from a modest family for a long time thereafter took just a little money out of his allowance every month and sent it to Billy Graham's Crusade. I've lived with that all my life.

I'll never forget that when Billy Graham came back to Little Rock 30 years later, probably the most well-known man of God and faith in the world, he took time out one day to let me take him to see my pastor whom he'd known for 30 years, because he was dying. And my elderly pastor, with only a few weeks to live, sat and talked to Billy Graham about their life, their work, their trips to the Holy Land, and the life to come. There was no one there. There were no cameras, there were no reporters, there was nothing to be gained. It was a simple, private, personal expression of common Christianity and gratitude for the life of a person who had given his life for their shared faith.

And finally, he got up to go. Billy looked at my pastor, W.O. Vaught, shriveled to less than 100 pounds, and he said, "Smile, W.O., next time I see you we'll be outside the Eastern Gate." I'll never forget that as long as I live.

So the Congress did a great thing; you have done a great thing; Billy and Ruth Graham have done a great thing in sharing this award with future generations of people who will need their help and their ministry even after they have passed their time on this Earth. For all that, as President and in my personal role as a citizen and a Christian, I am profoundly grateful.

I'd like Reverend Graham to come out now, and I will give him a copy of the bill which I signed and the pen with which I signed it. And perhaps he'd like to say a word to you tonight.

Billy.

DR. GRAHAM: I'm glad that that's on tape so I can play that to my neighbors and friends -- for years to come. Because President Clinton has been a friend for so many years, I feel like it is very difficult after he became President, because I led the Inaugural prayer, and when I stepped down I said, "Mr. President," and I almost said, "Bill," because I'd called him Bill so long. And I feel like calling him Bill again tonight after those warm words of a brother.

So much has been said today, and I only have one little story to tell you that I've told you before, about a time when I was on an airplane. And we were going from New York to Charlotte. And a man got on board and he was as drunk as any man I've seen. And he sat down, and he finally decided that he wanted to fly the plane. So he got up and staggered toward the cockpit. And the copilot had to come back and put him back in his seat.

And the man sitting across the aisle from him was the Mayor of Charlotte by the name of John Belk. And this man turned to me and he said, "You're Billy Graham." I was sitting behind him, and I said, "Yes, I'm Billy Graham." I admitted it. And he said, "Put her there." He said, "Your sermons have certainly helped me." So not all the sermons and not all the travel has accomplished everything that we would like.

But I want to say a word of appreciation and thanks to the President, to all of those who participated today, and to the hospitals -- the Memorial Mission Hospital in Ashville, and for that magnificent Children's Hospital that they've built, which is going to take care of hundreds of children from Appalachia and different parts of the world. They brought a tremendous staff there. I held in my hand a few days ago a baby, one pound and one ounce, and they'd already given him open-heart surgery. And he was going to make it.

And that's the kind of thing that they're doing. And whether you have any money or don't have any money you can get in there and they'll take your children. And we're so grateful that that is in North Carolina, and we're so grateful that Ruth and I don't know how to express it. We never dreamed that it would be named for us. But we consider that we're a part of that hospital now.

I had a member of my staff, T.W. Wilson, who was disappearing every little while. I wondered where he was going, and I would ask. And they said, "Willy has a hospital meeting in Ashville." I thought they meant that he was going to the hospital. But they had put him on the committee, and he helped, and we're very grateful.

And I'm grateful to all of you tonight for every part that you've put in this. And if you're from that part of North Carolina, I hope to see you down there, maybe not on the golf course as the President said -- I played golf every day of my life nearly until a few years ago, except Sundays, and I gave it up. I'm not going to tell you why I gave it up -- but there wasn't enough exercise to me, and there's not enough money to pay those fees. I almost went to the government for a loan.

So, thank you, and God bless you all.

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT
AT BANQUET IN HONOR OF DR. BILLY GRAHAM
AND MRS. RUTH GRAHAM
Capital Hilton Hotel
Washington, D.C.
May 2, 1996

Good evening. The first time I ever met Paul Harvey, he and his son played through a foursome I was in on a golf course in Chicago. He never told me the score. But since then he's tried to tell me the score about a lot of other things. And I've enjoyed it every time.

To the members of the Graham family, the members of Congress who are here, ladies and gentlemen: I'm deeply honored to join with you tonight in honoring two of America's finest citizens, two of the world's greatest human resources, Billy and Ruth Graham.

When Billy and Ruth received the Congressional Gold Medal today they received only the 114th medal in the 220 year history of this country. Since, as Paul Harvey said, George Washington received the first one in 1776, followed by Thomas Edison, Marian Anderson, Eli Weisel, Winston Churchill -- Billy and Ruth Graham belong in their company, and more.

I am going to make a presentation in a moment related to that, but I wanted to say a few words first. I'm very proud that Billy and Ruth have decided to share this honor with The Billy and Ruth Graham Children's Center of Memorial Mission Hospital in Ashville, North Carolina.

In Galatians 6, St. Paul said that, while each of us must make our own efforts to sustain ourselves, we are also reminded to "bear ye one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ." Sharing this medal in this way does that.

But in so many ways Billy and Ruth have fulfilled the law of Christ. First, in the ministry of the word going into all nations: I hardly ever go to a place as President where Billy Graham hasn't been there before me, preaching. And I feel like a poor substitute from time to time, because often what I'm trying to do is get people to lay down the hatreds of the heart and reach down into their spirits and treat people who are different from them with the same dignity that all God's children are entitled to.

Billy and Ruth also have practiced the ministry of the deed. Hundreds of times the Bible calls upon us to minister to the poor and the needy, as they did in trying to help disaster victims in Guatemala and countless other places. Yesterday Billy and I were talking about how proud he was of the work that his son, Franklin, has done, and I saw some of that when I sent our troops into Bosnia and I met some people who had worked with Franklin Graham to try to help the poor children in that war-torn land.

Billy and Ruth Graham have practiced the ministry of good citizenship, being friends with Presidents of both parties, counseling them in countless ways, always completely private, always completely genuine. Yesterday we sat in the Oval Office reminiscing and talking about current circumstances, and I asked for Billy Graham's prayers for the wisdom and guidance of God. That is a part of his ministry as well.

Perhaps the most moving example of that came when Billy Graham spoke along with me and a number of others at the service shortly after the bombing in Oklahoma City. He knew he was speaking to a vast array of people who had been wounded by that incident. Most of them were Christians, but not all of them were. Yet he sought to speak to all of them, and he gave what I thought was one of the most honest messages I had ever heard a minister of the Word give. I thought to myself as I watched him give it that only a man completely convicted, completely secure in his own faith, could have looked out at that vast, wounded array of human beings and said, something like this: "I wish I could tell you that I understand completely why things like this happen. But I don't. Even after all these years, I don't. I don't know why this happened. I don't have an explanation for it. But the God we love is a God of love and mercy amidst all the suffering we are asked to endure. We are not supposed to understand everything, but instead to lean on God."

Finally, I thank Billy Graham and Ruth Graham for the ministry of their life and their personal example, for their extraordinary achievement of five children, 19 grandchildren, and I think now eight great-grandchildren. If that achievement could be mirrored by every adult in America we would have about 10 percent of the problems we've got today in this great country of ours.

I thank them for countless personal gestures that demonstrate that as private people they are what they seem to be in public. I thank them for always doing things that will enable them to minister to people they may not even know. I have said this in public before, but I want to say it again. When I was a small boy, about 12 years old, Billy Graham came to Little Rock, Arkansas, to preach a crusade. That town was torn apart by racial conflict. Our high schools were closed there, and there were those who asked Billy Graham to segregate his audience in War Memorial Stadium so as not to roil the waters.

And I'll never forget that he said -- and it was in the paper -- that if he had to speak the word of God to a segregated audience he would violate his ministry, and he would not do it. And at the most intense time in the modern history of my state, the forces of separation caved. Blacks and whites together poured into the football stadium. And when the invitation was given, they poured down together, down the aisles, and they forgot that they were supposed to be mad at each other, angry at each other, that one was supposed to consider the other somehow less than equal.

He never preached a word about integrating the schools. He preached the word of God and he lived it by the power of his example. And one young boy from a modest family for a long time thereafter took just a little money out of his allowance every month and sent it to Billy Graham's Crusade. I've lived with that all my life.

I'll never forget that when Billy Graham came back to Little Rock 30 years later, probably the most well-known man of God and faith in the world, he took time out one day to let me take him to see my pastor whom he'd known for 30 years, because he was dying. And my elderly pastor, with only a few weeks to live, sat and talked to Billy Graham about their life, their work, their trips to the Holy Land, and the life to come. There was no one there. There were no cameras, there were no reporters, there was nothing to be gained. It was a simple, private, personal expression of common Christianity and gratitude for the life of a person who had given his life for their shared faith.

And finally, he got up to go. Billy looked at my pastor, W.O. Vaught, shriveled to less than 100 pounds, and he said, "Smile, W.O., next time I see you we'll be outside the Eastern Gate." I'll never forget that as long as I live.

So the Congress did a great thing; you have done a great thing; Billy and Ruth Graham have done a great thing in sharing this award with future generations of people who will need their help and their ministry even after they have passed their time on this Earth. For all that, as President and in my personal role as a citizen and a Christian, I am profoundly grateful.

I'd like Reverend Graham to come out now, and I will give him a copy of the bill which I signed and the pen with which I signed it. And perhaps he'd like to say a word to you tonight.

Billy.

DR. GRAHAM: I'm glad that that's on tape so I can play that to my neighbors and friends -- for years to come. Because President Clinton has been a friend for so many years, I feel like it is very difficult after he became President, because I led the Inaugural prayer, and when I stepped down I said, "Mr. President," and I almost said, "Bill," because I'd called him Bill so long. And I feel like calling him Bill again tonight after those warm words of a brother.

So much has been said today, and I only have one little story to tell you that I've told you before, about a time when I was on an airplane. And we were going from New York to Charlotte. And a man got on board and he was as drunk as any man I've seen. And he sat down, and he finally decided that he wanted to fly the plane. So he got up and staggered toward the cockpit. And the copilot had to come back and put him back in his seat.

And the man sitting across the aisle from him was the Mayor of Charlotte by the name of John Belk. And this man turned to me and he said, "You're Billy Graham." I was sitting behind him, and I said, "Yes, I'm Billy Graham." I admitted it. And he said, "Put her there." He said, "Your sermons have certainly helped me." So not all the sermons and not all the travel has accomplished everything that we would like.

But I want to say a word of appreciation and thanks to the President, to all of those who participated today, and to the hospitals -- the Memorial Mission Hospital in Ashville, and for that magnificent Children's Hospital that they've built, which is going to take care of hundreds of children from Appalachia and different parts of the world. They brought a tremendous staff there. I held in my hand a few days ago a baby, one pound and one ounce, and they'd already given him open-heart surgery. And he was going to make it.

And that's the kind of thing that they're doing. And whether you have any money or don't have any money you can get in there and they'll take your children. And we're so grateful that that is in North Carolina, and we're so grateful that Ruth and I don't know how to express it. We never dreamed that it would be named for us. But we consider that we're a part of that hospital now.

I had a member of my staff, T.W. Wilson, who was disappearing every little while. I wondered where he was going, and I would ask. And they said, "Willy has a hospital meeting in Ashville." I thought they meant that he was going to the hospital. But they had put him on the committee, and he helped, and we're very grateful.

And I'm grateful to all of you tonight for every part that you've put in this. And if you're from that part of North Carolina, I hope to see you down there, maybe not on the golf course as the President said -- I played golf every day of my life nearly until a few years ago, except Sundays, and I gave it up. I'm not going to tell you why I gave it up -- but there wasn't enough exercise to me, and there's not enough money to pay those fees. I almost went to the government for a loan.

So, thank you, and God bless you all.