December 2, 1996

Mr. Bill Clinton
President of the United States
The White House
Washington D.C. 20520

Dear Respected President Clinton:

Your Excellency! How are you? My name is Jea Soo Kim living in Ridgewood, New York. I truly congratulate you -- with my all heart -- on your re-election as President of the United States.

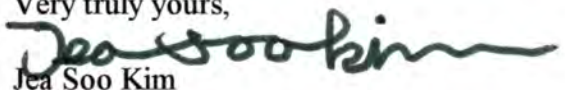

I have never met you, Your Excellency, but this is my fourth writing to you, and thus it is as if you are my old acquaintance. I am again sending you a piece of my formulated plan of the universe, which was drawn according to the Law of the Circle, to congratulate you on your re-election. I hope that you will hang this plan in your office.

A painting or piece of writing painted or written by a famous artist/another is only the painting or writing itself, but it is not a thing which lives and changes with life. However, the formulated plan of the universe which I am sending you reflects the mysterious universe itself which is forever living and changing. Among almost 150 countries on the earth where we live, there is no president who has the formulated plan hanging on his presidential wall. Thus, you can be especially proud of the plan hanging on the wall of your Presidential Residence

The Law of the Circle which I am enclosing here is my completed and formal thesis about the Great Law of the Universe. The Law of the Circle cannot be compared with, for example, Einstein's Theory of Relativity. Why can it not be so compared? The reason is that the circle itself is 666, and 666 is the The Law of the Circle. Thus, this theory of unlimited energy is the very Law of the Circle and the Law of the Universe.

Respected President Clinton! I hope that you will remain a strong leader for the 21st century, for the prosperity of the great USA, and for World peace. And it is my sincere hope that all your family -- you, your wife, and daughter -- will always be healthy and happy. God bless you !

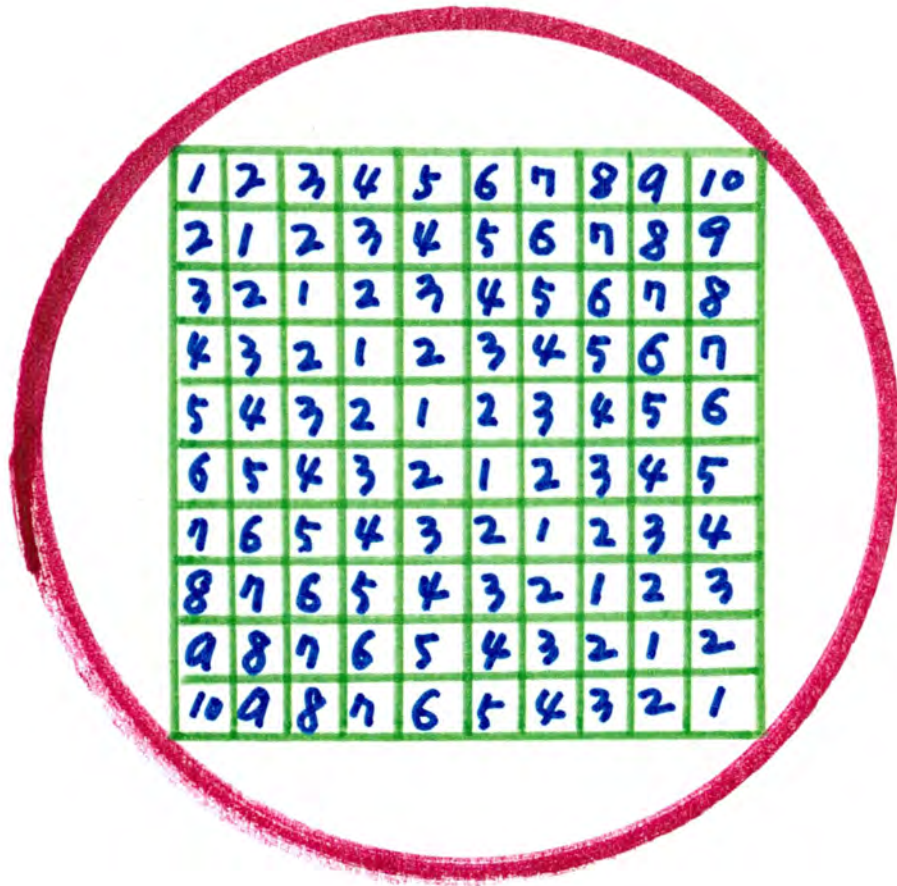

Very truly yours,

Jea Soo Kim

The numbers are arranged in a 10x10 grid, with the first row containing 1 through 10, the second row containing 2 through 1, and so on, following a circular pattern. The grid is circled in red.

GIVING MEANING TO THE THEORETICAL LAW OF THE CIRCLE

The form of the circle among the elements that God gave to this world or universe is most great. I call it "The Theoretical Law of the Circle" because the form of the circle is so significant. The circle form has no beginning and no end. The circle is a moving form and a living form. The circle is at the very origin of all things that are living and moving. This world and the universe were made by the Law of the Circle. All the things in the world abide by the Law of the Circle. Creation and destruction, appearance and disappearance are bound by the Law of the Circle.

Theory

The composition of the circle is the circle itself, but its area cannot be expressed in writing. First of all, all human beings are bound by the circle -- all animals, plants, insects, even inanimate objects follow the Law of the Circle. The circle is at the origin of all things which human beings use for daily practical living and for maintaining life. The animals' reproductive and generative structure is made of and formed by a circle, and the plants' roots and vessels conveying nutritive substances are also circular in form. The birds that fly in the sky also fly in a circular pattern. Although we call the circle God's form, this is no mere exaggeration. Even as God rules over this world, we cannot escape the area and dominion of the Law of the Circle. All things made of, for, and by human beings' advanced intelligence are born of, apply to, and adapt to the Law of the Circle. Human beings simply did not know the terminology -- the Law of the Circle. The center of a storm, the eye of a hurricane also has its origin in the Law of the Circle. The tidal wave, the ebb and flow of all waves constitutes the rolling form of a circle. The wind and rain blow also according to the Law of the Circle.

If a shooting star appears in space and collides with another shooting star, we call this an extraordinary phenomenon in the universe, but this, too, belongs to the Law of the Circle. The appearance and disappearance of everything is designed to achieve an ecological balance, and balance and perfection itself are based on the circle. An unusual change in weather, a natural disaster, the eruption of a volcano on the earth on which we live -- all of these are new beginnings or new endings, and all are evidence of the supremacy of the circle: the notion of maintaining harmony and balance and parallelism on earth as in the universe. The reason is this, I think: if a person or an animal only eats and does not excrete, how can they be, how can they exist? In the end, their bellies would burst, and they would die. Thus, the circle is the end product. The circle is most pure and perfect and harmonious. The purity of the circle is absolute and inviolate because the circle has no angles, no beginnings, no conclusions. Therefore, the life we are living on earth and the universe are based on the circle. Even the very origin of life, the DNA-based "double helix" molecule is spiral or figure "8" -- and that, too, is a circle!

Perhaps, you will have a question in return regarding my argument -- the Law of the Circle that I mention, but before you ask me, you should first do the following, and then, you will have your answer!

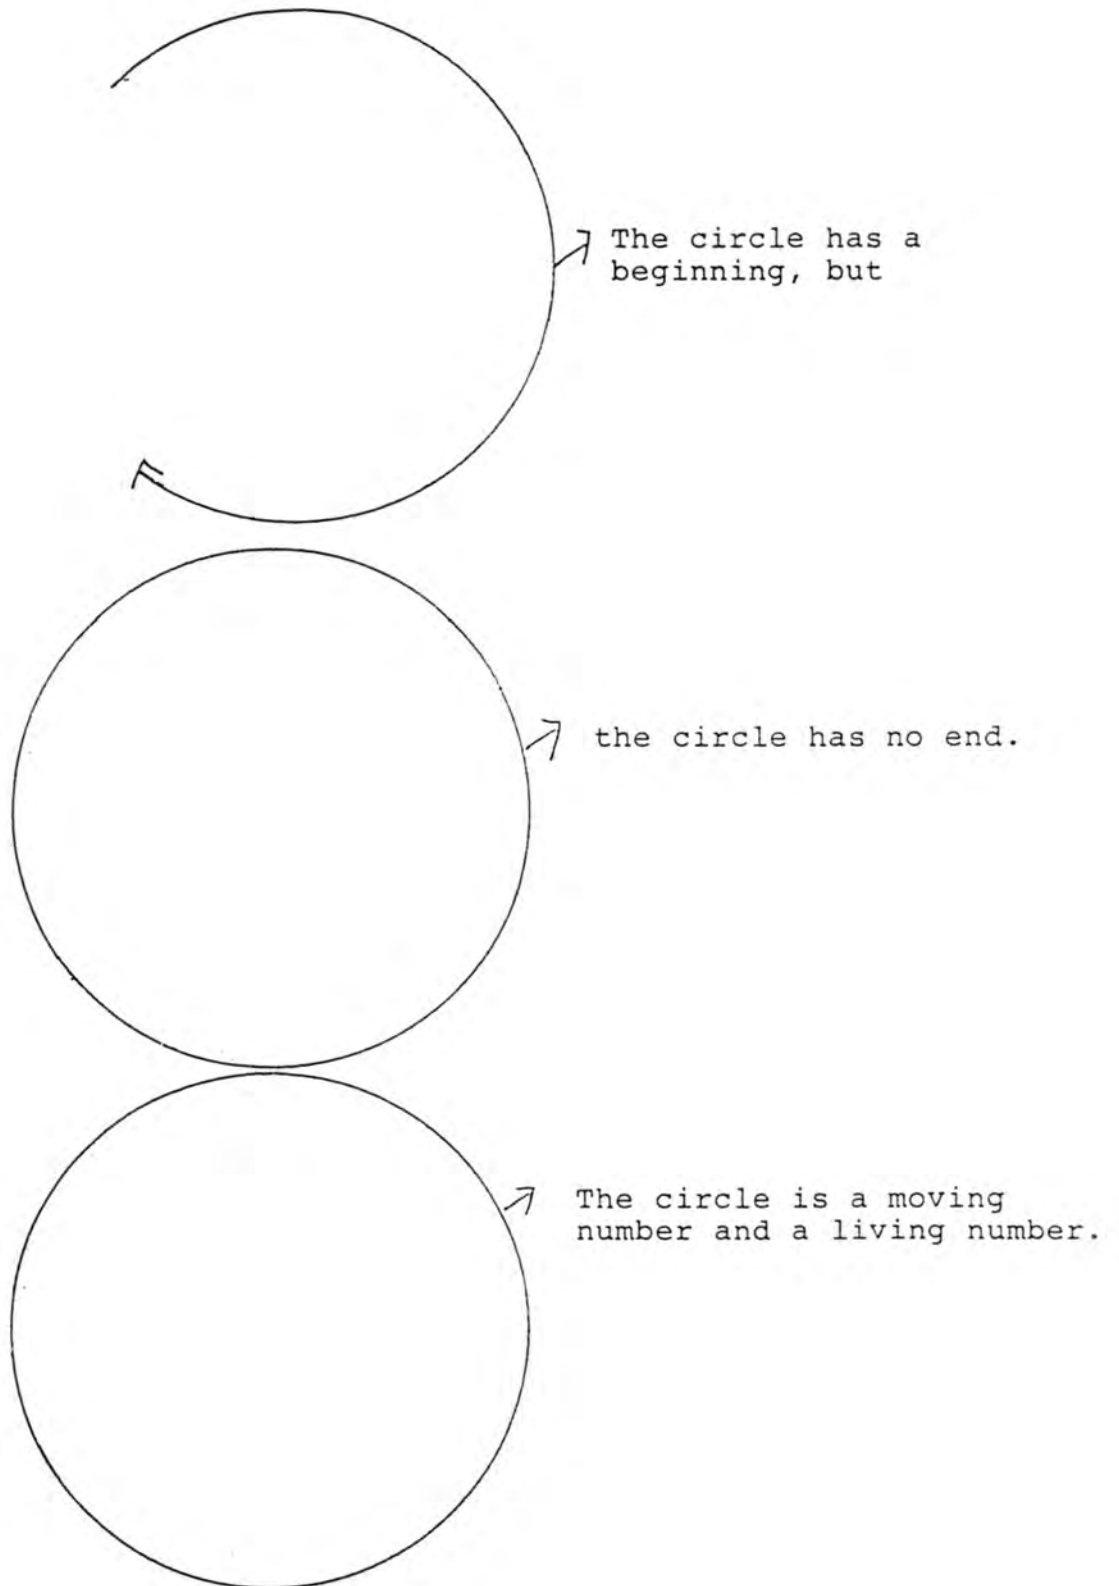

If you throw a stone into a tranquil lake, the water will spread out evenly in the form of ever-growing concentric circles. Also, if you strike a metal container with a rod, the sound waves spread out in the form of a circle. There are countless examples: people's voices, animal sounds, insect noises -- all sounds disperse in the form of a circle. The baseball that leaves the pitcher's hand also moves in the form of a circle, and flies through the sky as a circle -- like arc. The arrow that leaves the bowstring also flies in circular form, and the bullet shot from the barrel of a gun flies like a circle. Do you think that is a human being or God that made all wavelengths circular in form. No, it is not. It is rather based on the Law of the Circle.

The source of all energy is the Law of the Circle, and energy is utilized in a circular manner. This universe, the earth, and all heavenly bodies are spheres moving and revolving eternally according to the Law of the Circle.

The coming and going of all things -- day and night, rising and setting of sun and moon, hot and cold, birth and death -- forever repeat. And the universe and the earth follow always, and without fail, the infinite Law of the Circle, which is without beginning and without end.

In our beginning is our end; in our end, our beginning -- so it is said!

OUTLINE OF THE LAW OF THE CIRCLE

The universe and the earth are a circle.

They say that the constellations floating in the universe, according to a theory, are as numerous as the number of people on earth where we are living. If such numerous constellations are accurate in arrangement, their order is perfect and their works are accurate. As we human beings have laws that we must obey in our daily living (e.g., Do not commit murder), The constellations have such laws. We people are living on the earth, and we do not know the truth of the universe so well. Observe the behavior of animals. Animals take food when they are hungry, and of course, they reproduce.

But when they have a full stomach, they do not want food. Meat-eating animals or plant-eating animals do not eat food until their stomachs burst. Meat-eating animals absolutely do not kill unnecessarily after they have full stomachs.

The birds flying in the air move according to the truth of the universe.

All birds belong to the family of birds -- whether they are birds living in warmer climates or colder climes or mid-range climes -- and well understand the changes in weather. Birds that have lived in warmer places migrate to the warm place if the climate becomes cold; birds that have lived in colder places migrate to the cold place when the weather becomes hot. If they suspect that there will be a typhoon, severe coldness, or unusual changes in weather, they realize this first and seek shelter in a safe place however dear is their nest.

The Behavior of Organisms that Crawl on Earth

These living creatures almost hibernate in winter. They also eat food as they want when they are hungry, but they are not greedy for food. Besides the ant family, the organisms that belong to the snake or frog family eat a lot of food in order to maintain their health and body temperature until the next spring comes, for it is a long hibernation they endure within tunnels or within the earth during winter. They also seek shelter in a safe place when they expect heavy rain or a typhoon. Also, if they expect that there will be severe cold during their hibernation, the snake family hibernates as a group in a very deep tunnel or within a sunny mound of stones.

The Behavior of the Plant Family, Bee Family, and Butterfly Family

The relationship among plants, bees, and butterflies is inseparately connected to each other. Almost all plants have help from the bees and the butterflies, except those which grow by roots or spores. These plants exactly resemble the universe. If we look at the composition of the tree from its side, we do not know it well; but, if we look at the tree from its top or from far away, it is the very circle itself, and the composition of the roots are in the shape of a circle as well. Also, hundreds of flowers consist exactly of circles, if we arrange their edges. All varieties of fruits also, whether we can eat them or not -- almost all seeds are in the form of a circle. Among them are also the very long ones. Fruits which grow larger within the earth, like potatoes or sweet potatoes, clearly constitute a circle.

The Behavior of Insects

Among the insects, there are ephemerids (like mayflies) or shor-lived insects. While they maintain their short lives, they do serious harm to other living things or they do not. In their breeding, they barely leave their larva before they themselves die. These insects can do great damage to people, animals, plants, or living things, or to inanimate matter within the water, or they can be of great benefit to them. They also clearly have the circle, like the pupil, in a part of their body. I believe that this group of tiny insects can always live on a planet, if they are given living conditions.

The Movement of Water

Water exactly flows from a higher area to a lower area, but sometimes, water flows backward (or upstream). They say that water takes up much more of the earth than land, but still the land precisely holds the water. Water is a life-giving power. All things which live and breathe will die if there is no water. This earth where we live will burn up if there is no water. Thus, sea water holds all kinds and wanders of nature on the earth where we live.

Sea water evaporates and forms clouds of condensation, and whenever we think that all living things on earth need water, it rains. If it is winter, when the weather becomes colder, the water falls as snow. If there were no sea on the earth where we live, how could the earth survive? It is not possible that the entire sea overflows, even though we have a great flood.

The quantity of sea water is always the same value, never more or less. The sea is sometimes violent and sometimes calm. The sea bears numerous lives, and it feeds and brings them up. And the sea is always richer than the living things on earth, and there is no famine in the sea.

Many things living in the sea know no national boundaries. According to their precise living conditions, they can live anywhere. Therefore, there are two worlds on the bountiful earth where we live. The one is the world of land, the other is the world of water.

The sea does its mysterious work. There are icebergs on the South Pole and North Pole. They are really awesome. This iceberg maintains the life-giving power of all living things on earth. The iceberg controls the sea water. The iceberg melts when the temperature rises during the summer season, and provides rain and moisture to the land -- however much the land needs. In winter season, it again becomes an iceberg as it was in its signal state -- conforming as always to the principle of the circle.

The Movement of the Constellations in the Universe

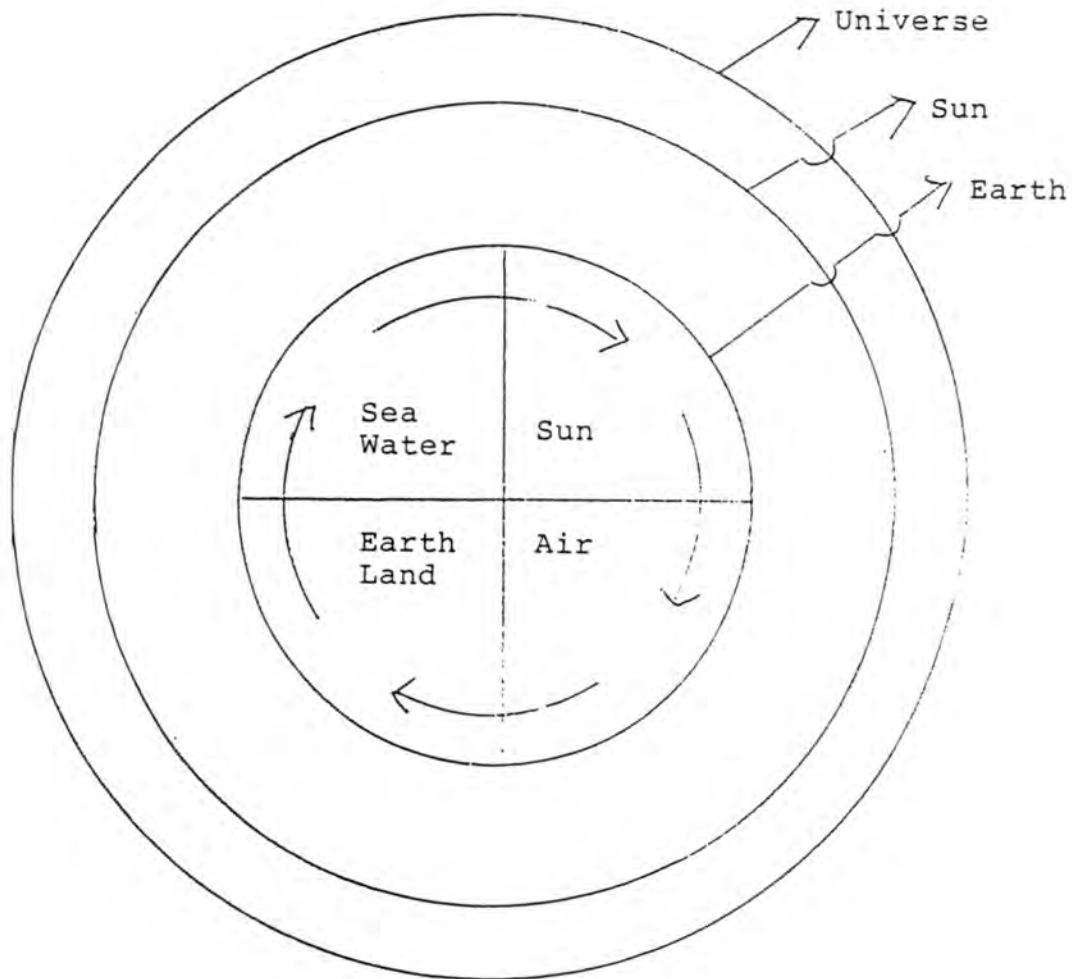

The constellations within the universe also have their repetitive motions as the earth itself does. These cyclic movements are, as usual, circular in nature. We who live in this bountiful earth must have proper appreciation of the universe. The sun always floats in the universe. The relationship between the sun and the earth, the relationship between the sun and the stars, the relationship between the stars and the earth does not make even the tiniest of mistakes, even for a moment. This is the Law of the Circle.

There are many earths just like the earth on which we live. These are very preliminary earths. They could provide the conditions for life, but there is no air and water there.

I can clearly say that the apple tree is the apple tree even though tens of thousands of years have passed, that apple tree cannot bear the fruit of the banana; and that the banana tree is the banana tree even though tens of thousands of years have passed, and the banana tree cannot become an apple tree and cannot have apples. What does this mean? The living things that are living on earth can survive only on earth, like air and water. There are appearances and disappearances within the Law of the Circle. Although the earth on which we live comes to an end, all the living things on earth have no ending. Even one living thing does not disappear, and continues as it is. Human beings as human beings, animals as animals, birds as birds, plants as plants, organisms as organisms, insects as insects, and fishes as fishes -- an inorganic substance disappears, but organic matter exists as it is. This is the Law of the Circle.

The earth, once prepared, always can generate the process of appearance, if only water is persist. If you see the following chart, you will understand it.

Surrounding the earth, there are numerous particles in the air. When but are composition forms, it can create unlimited living power.

These particles in the air manage all living things on the earth, and they completely block any disease or unnecessary union, and combine only homogenous materials. The reason that all matter is not affected by other matter is that these particles in the air block all other matter. If these particles did not exist in the air, the process of reproduction of all living things would be confused. Because there are particles in the air, all living things on earth have a protective power, by themselves, from their diseases. They have their own genetic relationship -- human beings as human beings, birds as birds, plants as plants, and insects as insects. Thus, sunlight, air, and water are equal to all living things. Air and water are absolutely the power of (A) alpha.

The universe has prepared itself for all possibilities. And the world of constellations absolutely cannot survive by themselves, and they must always co-exist together symbolically. Sometimes, there inevitably appears a mutation in the world of constellations and among living things on earth.

The sun is the eye of the universe.

The sun does not radiate light and emit heat by itself. The sun emits light and heat because the energy of the universe gathers to the sun. The sun and the eye of the human being have common features. We people's eyes transmit sight and feeling to our brains because the aggregate of all nerves of human body and nourishment are supplied to the eyes. And the sun receives an enormous amount of energy from the universe, which changes into light and emits heat. Then, it reflects other stars. That is, it has a reflecting role like a mirror. The sun itself is a passive or neutral body. The energy which the universe sends to the sun transforms it into a positive body. The thing that comes from the outside is the positive body, and the thing to receive it is the negative body. Refer to the chart below.

The light that the sun sends to the earth or other stars is reflected light. The sun has no air. The energy which was gathered to the sun from the universe is in the form of electricity. The sun has a composition like the filament of an electric light bulb. But the difference is that whereas the bulb of an electric lamp changes its energy to light, it wastes the energy as it is; but the sun changes the energy into light, and the quantity wasted is extremely small. That is, it is reflected light, like a mirror. The reflected light does not mean the light like a mirror by which it receives the light from the outside and sends it to the earth or other stars; but it means that the process whereby the light is transmitted operates "like a mirror." The process whereby the light from the sun arrives to a given substance is only as light, and it does not come as radiation or as the generation of heat. That is, if the body receiving the light does not emit a synthetic heat, even if the body receives the light, its temperature rises only slightly.

Therefore, the earth is warm because it synthesizes that the sun sends, and the basic temperature of the earth remains the same. The place on earth where a great deal of synthetic heat is produced is the desert. Thus, the desert is extremely hot during the day and cold at night. If the sun were light coming from radiation and generation of heat, the stars near would be completely melted. The high-flying airplane would be completely melted by passing near the surrounding sun. That is, the hot heat of the blast furnace is the heat itself, but not the light. Therefore, the thing that is coming from the sun to the earth is the light itself. Thus, on the earth, even if it is a very hot day, if we climb up a high mountain, we feel cool, and if we climb up to the top of a high tower, we feel cool. The reason is that we have no synthetic heat surrounding us. The approximate electrical quality of energy that is gathered to the sun from the group of constellations in the universe is 50,000,000,000 Q.P.T. (1 Q.P.T. = 10,000,000,000 kw). We people, from now on, must find our energy only on the earth, which is no more than a single point when it is being seen from the universe. But we must find our energy from the universe, where the huge amount of energy is unlimited.

Herein, I have explained the movements of the animals, the movements of birds flying in the air, the movements of organisms crawling on earth, the movements of plants and bees and butterflies, the movements of water, and the movements of the constellations in the universe -- in outlining the Law of the Circle. The common feature of all these is that the repetitive process consists of the circle, and it exactly follows the Law of the Circle.

The Law of the Circle is not merely simple terminology. All the processes of nature, whether so huge a thing as our universe and its celestial bodies, or so small a thing as the pupils of our eyes, obey the Law of the Circle. It is infinity which has a beginning but no end.

December 1994

This is an angle of energy in the process by which the energy that occurs from the group of constellations in the universe is gathered by the sun. the constellations within the universe are revolving and floating by a 1×6 formula that is the Law of the circle and the Law of coexistence. in the process of revolving, energy is produced, and there is a mutual "give and take" with each other. the energy produces a chain reaction, and forms a finite angle from infinite to the sun, which is a pivot of the universe. the energy radiates toward the sun, which is a negative-emitting body, and it revolves and floats through the constellations, including the sun. the constellations give and take energy from each other; they turn, revolving around the sun, which is the pivot of the universe.

the universe is a huge electromagnet of a 1×6 formula. as a result, its constitution is governed by the basic rule in which the majority interacts with minority. the stars surrounding the sun, which is the central point of the universe, including the earth, are the most blessed of stars from God the Creator. the name and number of universal energy is $Q \times 1$.

President of the Republic of Korea

July 11, 1993

Dear President Bill Clinton,

May your vision of the "New Covenant" revitalize the United States of America and help create a "New America." May your consummating leadership generate a new world order for all nations on earth!

In commemoration of your first official visit to the Republic Korea,

김영삼

Kim Young Sam

A PRAYER FOR PRESIDENT BILL CLINTON

Our Almighty God! On this auspicious occasion of President Bill Clinton's first official visit to the Republic of Korea, I thank Thee for providing us with a special opportunity to further consolidate historical ties between our two nations.

I perceive Thy divine providence which has guided President Clinton throughout his life. As you summoned Moses and David in the past, You have called President Clinton at this critically unstable moment in the history of human being for him to lead not only the United States but also the whole world. How else can I appreciate the fact, other than believing in the divine providence, that a young governor of a small mid-western state has taken such a supreme office as President of the United States? President Clinton's early life was full of difficulties, but through all sorts of trials and tribulations, Thou hast trained him to bear the profound responsibility of global leadership. Praise the Lord!

Our Gracious Lord! To Thee I implore to bestow upon President Clinton the wisdom of King Solomon and the courage of King David to deal with difficult issues judiciously and to always stand for what is right. Lead him, Heavenly Father, over the world's tempestuous sea until he safely reaches his destination. In times of despair and sorrow, please render him your comfort and encouragement.

May President Clinton's vision of "New Covenant" become a reality. May the American people be revitalized by his captivating vision. May he reinvigorate American economy and promote human rights globally. May his outstanding leadership be empowered to turn the present course of human history from moving toward an abyss of destruction to a new path toward a new and sound world order.

Our Beloved Lord! In spite of the differences of personal backgrounds between us, President Clinton and I basically share the same philosophy of life and faith. I too came from a remote fishing village and have passed through all sorts of adversities. I too have a religious faith and received Thy vision from above to create a "New Korea." I too believe Thy promise, "Seek ye first his kingdom and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." Finally I too have based my reform policies to create a "New Korea" upon Thy Word, "For the kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost."

Our Holy Lord! President Clinton and I remain committed to the sacred mission to advance Thy kingdom in this world. I am rejoiced for the prospect of working closely with President Clinton to contribute to the prosperity and peace of mankind as brothers in Christ. By joining hands under Thy blessing, we will not only strengthen the ties between our two nations but also brighten a new dawn of history for the expansion of Thy kingdom "to the farthest corners of the earth."

In the name of our precious Lord, I pray.

1ST SESSION

H. R. 433

To amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to allow the casualty loss deduction for disaster losses without regard to the 10-percent adjusted gross income floor.

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

JANUARY 9, 1995

Mr. BERMAN (for himself, Mr. McKEON, Mr. BEILENSON, Mr. WAXMAN, Mr. MOORHEAD, and Mr. DIXON) introduced the following bill; which was referred to the Committee on Ways and Means

A BILL

To amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to allow the casualty loss deduction for disaster losses without regard to the 10-percent adjusted gross income floor.

1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representa-
2 tives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

3 SECTION 1. ELIMINATION OF 10 PERCENT FLOOR FOR DIS-

4 ASTER LOSSES.

5 (a) GENERAL RULE.—Subparagraph (A) of section
6 165(h)(2) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (relating
7 to net casualty loss allowed only to the extent it exceeds
8 10 percent of adjusted gross income) is amended by strik-
9 ing clauses (i) and (ii) and inserting the following:

“(i) the amount of the personal casualty gains for the taxable year,

“(ii) the amount of the federally declared disaster losses for the taxable year (or, if lesser, the net casualty loss), plus

“(iii) the portion of the net casualty loss which is not deductible under clause (ii) but only to the extent such portion exceeds 10 percent of the adjusted gross income of the individual.

For purposes of the preceding sentence the term ‘net casualty loss’ means the excess of personal casualty losses for the taxable year over personal casualty gains.”

(b) FEDERALLY DECLARED DISASTER LOSS DEFINED.—Paragraph (3) of section 165(h) of such Code is amended by adding at the end the following new subparagraph:

“(C) FEDERALLY DECLARED DISASTER LOSS.—The term ‘federally declared disaster loss’ means any personal casualty loss attributable to a disaster occurring in an area subsequently determined by the President of the United States to warrant assistance by the Federal Government under the Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act.”

(c) CLERICAL AMENDMENT.—The heading for paragraph (2) of section 165(h) of such Code is amended by striking “NET CASUALTY LOSS” and inserting “NET NONDISASTER CASUALTY LOSS”.

(d) EFFECTIVE DATE.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to losses attributable to disasters occurring on or after January 17, 1994, including for purposes of determining the portion of such losses allowable in taxable years ending before such date pursuant to an election under section 165(i) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986.

Dear Mr. McLarty,

I received your March 8 letter and was surprised to read that ethical guidelines prohibit you from taking Christian News. I'm not a lawyer, but I don't see this as any different from any citizen sending you a letter every week of the year except August (CN's publication schedule). Also, the subscription rate for CN is $20, which would fall at the maximum gift you said was acceptable. I could have easily sent it without tell you who bought it. I noted from the news that the President and many White House officials, including, reportedly, you, were allowed to attend a White House Correspondents' Dinner in a waiving of ethical guidelines.

Unless you notified Christian News, Box 309A, Route 1, New Haven, MO 63068 that you can't take CN, I suspect they'll still send it. You could send them a check for $20 yourself if you want. If you want CN to stop coming, you or an assistant will have to inform CN if you haven't already.

I truly hope you didn't send me the letter you did because you looked at CN and didn't like it. Give CN a chance.

Sincerely yours,

David Becker

Thank you very much for your recent letter informing me of your gift of the Christian News newspaper. I appreciate your generosity but will not, unfortunately, be able to accept the gift.

White House officials are proscribed by law from accepting gifts in excess of twenty dollars. As such, receipt of your newspaper would likely be a violation.

Again, I appreciate your thoughtfulness and generosity.

BODY:

From Professor Emeritus David J. Finney

Sir, My recent encounters with an ingenious attempt to exploit gullibility may serve as a warning to some of your readers. I am a retired academic, of no great fame but whose scientific publications have inevitably put me on many lists of names. Two or three years ago, I was requested by the American Biographical Institute or ABI (of Raleigh, North Carolina) to supply biographical information for what I assumed to be a reference book similar to Who's Who; I complied, but declined to buy this expensive and unwanted volume. In June last, I received a letter telling me that the institute, having noted my 'achievements and dedication toward exemplary goals' (qualities that my own friends appear not to have observed) had chosen me for the award of the accolade '1995 Man of the Year'. The only formality required of me was a remittance of $195 or $250 for a copy of the decree that put me among several hundred men similarly selected this year.

My failure to reply was followed recently by a charming personal letter notifying me of my 'nomination for membership of the ABI Research Association's Board of Governors'. This new distinction 'carries with it the distinguished title of Deputy Governor', entitling me to use the initials 'DG' after my name and to be addressed as 'The Honorable'. I fear that my neglect of paying the fee of $925 will force me to remain, Sir,

Yours Undistinguishedly,

DAVID J. FINNEY,

13 Oswald Court,

South Oswald Road,

Edinburgh.

HEADLINE: Keep that junk mail pouring in - Diary of a Private Investor / The postman slways knocks twice for Kevin Goldstein-Jackson

BYLINE: By KEVIN GOLDSTEIN-JACKSON

BODY:

'DEAR Mr Goldstein-Jackson, You have been elected a nominee for a rare honour. I am delighted to be the one to congratulate you on your nomination election for the MOST ADMIRE MAN OF THE DECADE.

' Thus began a letter I recently received from the American Biographical Institute, based in Raleigh, North Carolina, which pointed out that 'to be 'most admired' is one of the highest accolades given to an individual'.

I had been nominated for the award 'following a vote by inter-continental representatives' of the Institute's Board of International Research who had selected a 'small number of men' for their 'influence, fame or ideas that have had visible impact on professions and communities'.

Unfortunately, my nomination had an expiry date of June 12 and to 'certify' my election I would have pay Dollars 195 (Pounds 107) as a 'contribution fee towards all crafting processes' in producing a proclamation 'done in two striking ink colours' plus 'hand lettering' by a 'scribe'. For Dollars 250 I could have, instead, a proclamation 'custom laminated on to Finland birchwood'.

I decided not to accept this 'rare' honour in the hope that someone might nominate me for a 'columnist of the year' award, or maybe even a knighthood or a CBE instead.

The institute's letter was just one of the many unsolicited junk mail offerings which pour through my letter-box every week.

As a private investor who has subscribed to Business Expansion Schemes, bought privatisation-issued shares, holds a number of credit cards and owns a number of insurance policies, as well as being a donor to charity, I appear to be on a considerable number of mailing lists.

Somewhat surprisingly, I find much of the junk mail quite entertaining - even the numerous issues from Reader's Digest inviting me to participate in various prize draws.

However, it is the financial junk mail that fascinates me the most. Companies still seem to be falling over themselves to lend money to my family.

My wife has been offered 'up to Pounds 10,000 to spend as you wish' by RAC personal loans, which offered her a 'free Pounds 30 bonus' if she took out a loan. As an RAC member she 'automatically qualified' for 'competitive terms'.

But why would she (or anyone else, for that matter) want to borrow from the RAC at an APR of 29.9 per cent for a loan of up to Pounds 2,500 and 27.9 per cent for loans over Pounds 2,500 when they can probably get, say, an unsecured loan of Pounds 10,000 from Barclays Bank for 23.4 per cent APR? Or - better still, depending on individual circumstances - pay actual interest of 12.

7 per cent by increasing their mortgage with a home-owner loan from Barclays? Why pay high interest rates to lenders which have to charge such rates partly because of their high number of defaulters? Other banks and institutions offer a wide variety of low-cost loans such as Lloyds Gold Service at 15.3 per cent APR. It obviously pays to shop around rather than respond immediately to 'competitive terms' through the mail.

One of the benefits of all the financial regulatory organisations is the increased amount of information which approved organisations have to give potential clients. However, they differ widely on how they present certain information.

For example, I recently received in the post details of the Norwich Union Supersaver with profits savings plan. This offered 'automatic acceptance for a big cash payout', without the need for a medical and offered a variety of free gifts - ranging from a matching three-piece luggage set to a radio alarm clock.

Norwich Union provided a clearly set out table illustrating the effects of early surrender for a variety of age groups and monthly premiums.

clear. My wife received a mailshot from Bristol and West about a 10-year endowment savings plan with Eagle Star. The surrender examples were only for males aged 35 and 45 and paying Pounds 15 per month or Pounds 50 a month. The cash amount of surrender value was given, but not the total paid in premiums.

For example, it stated that a man aged 35 paying Pounds 50 per month would possibly receive Pounds 3,310 if he surrendered the policy at the end of year five. The reader had to calculate himself how much he would have paid in premiums by that time (Pounds 3,000).

Friends Provident, in a recent mailing, offered a 10-year Maxima Savings Plan, and gave just three examples of ages (males aged 25, 40 and 65) and only one example of contributions (an initial Pounds 10 per month) but at least stated the total amount of contributions paid by surrender date.

Far too many people are still taking out long-term policies and then finding they either cannot continue with the monthly payments or, perhaps, are persuaded by certain 'advisers' to cash in their policies in favour of another company's product.

In some cases this may well be justified by the better financial performance of the new company, but in others it may just be the result of an 'adviser' wanting to gain lucrative commission.

Perhaps the 'surrender value' statements for insurance companies should be prefaced by a statement, similar to that required for cigarette advertisements, stating: 'IF YOU STOP YOUR POLICY EARLY YOU COULD LOSE LOTS OF YOUR MONEY.'

' Personal Equity Plan managers are another source of large amounts of junk mail. Sometimes I wonder why people who only make capital gains from shares of a few thousand pounds a year - well within their tax-free capital gains allowances - bother to take out Peps when, if they had invested such modest sums directly in shares instead they would have achieved tax-free capital gains anyway.

True, within a Pep, the dividends are not subject to tax, providing they remain for investment purposes within the plan, but much of this income will be eaten up by the plan's management fee.

One area of financial mailshots that I feel ought to be encouraged is promotion of individual companies for investment. I have already received three separate letters from Wellcome concerning its forthcoming offer of shares. It would be nice to receive details of other individual companies which want to increase the numbers of their private shareholders.

It ought to be possible for a company to write to me even when it is not having a share offer, pointing out its track record and financial prospects and encouraging me to contact my stockbroker or other suitable adviser to seek advice on buying its shares.

If you want to increase the amount of junk mail you receive, you can request a form from the Mailing Preference Service, Freepost 22, London W1E 7EZ and indicate on that form their special interests: financial, sporting, home and leisure, and so on. The service has around 10,000 names on file of people who have asked to receive more junk mail.

If you want to receive less junk mail, write to the same address to request its members to remove your name from their mailing lists. Last year, about 95,000 people made such a request but I shall continue to look forward to the post.

You are right! The candy really is (was) wonderful. Mr. Grice and the employees of ADEC can be justifiably proud of their work.
