HEADLINE: LAZIO OVERPLAYED HIS HAND ON CHARACTER ISSUE

BODY:

Rick Lazio talked plenty about character in his debate the other night with Hillary Rodham Clinton. But poor Lazio seems to have learned the wrong lesson about character from the Clintons.

Lazio seems to think the way to prove you have ...

... yet another time on national television, and doing it no better than we did the first time.

Here is Lazio lustily blaming Hillary Clinton for being shameless, for lacking character, for embarrassing America in a case where any fair-minded ...

... guaranteed to embarrass his opponent, even though it reflects much less on her than on her husband?

Can Lazio really argue that Hillary Rodham Clinton lacks the character to serve in the Senate because she lashed out too strongly, at a time of stress, against people accusing her ...

... think he understands that if he hopes to win a contest of character, he needs to show some restraint himself.

Lazio may be right that Hillary Clinton should have found a better way to defend her husband - or not defend him at all. But does that mean he needs to hammer away ...

... stress often behave badly. Maybe Lazio can understand how such things happen now that he has done exactly what he accuses Hillary Clinton of doing.

HEADLINE: They're off to the races in New York

BYLINE: David S. Broder; WASHINGTON POST

BODY:

The first televised debate in the New York Senate race proved two things. The "stature gap" between Hillary Rodham Clinton and her challenger, Rep. Rick Lazio, is smaller than many Democrats would wish. And, second, it is going to be harder for the first lady to ...

... away from the legacy her husband has left than it has proved to be for Vice President Gore to declare himself "my own man."

Mrs. Clinton did not wilt or falter in the 60-minute interrogation, and she managed at least half a dozen times to remind ...

... said -- not the man whose lies she accepted and passed on to the public.

But Lazio, who was the aggressor most of the evening, is using Mrs. Clinton's history as a defender of the president to back up his charge -- trumpeted in a new flight of ads -- that "you can't trust" what she ...

... about policy as you would expect an eight-year veteran of the House to be.

Two polls taken just before the debate showed Mrs. Clinton with a microscopic lead in the race, based largely on greater agreement with her on the issues. But the Quinnipiac University ...

... a note of total absurdity, with Lazio proclaiming that he has refused "soft money" contributions to his campaign and thrusting a paper at Mrs. Clinton in which both would promise to "forswear" those six-figure contributions from corporations, unions and wealthy individuals. She backed away, insisting that he first ...

She challenges GOP Senate candidate on record; he raises character issue

SOURCE: Washington Bureau of The Dallas Morning News

BYLINE: David Jackson

DATELINE: BUFFALO, N.Y.

BODY:

BUFFALO, N.Y. - If polls are to be believed, nearly all New Yorkers know Hillary Rodham Clinton and have a strong opinion about her one way or the other.

They are less familiar with Rick Lazio.

The two rivals tried to close the perception gap Wednesday during an acrimonious debate, the first in the nation's most watched and expensive Senate race.

Mrs. Clinton, whose move to New York just last year remains an election issue, said length of residency should not be the test.

... he'll have to show he can be in the big leagues."

During the one-hour showdown at a public television station, Mrs. Clinton repeatedly tried to link Mr. Lazio with former House Speaker Newt Gingrich, a conservative Republican who remains unpopular in this primarily Democratic state.

Citing the 1995 government shutdown and attempted cuts in education and health care, Mrs. Clinton mocked Mr. Lazio's claim to be a mainstream moderate.

"Listening to the congressman's response reminds me of a word I've heard a lot of this past year: chutzpah," Mrs. Clinton said. "Time and time again, when he's had a choice to make he stood with the Republican leadership and Newt Gingrich."

Saying his record had been distorted, Mr. Lazio accused Mrs. Clinton of trying to redefine the word chutzpah, telling her that "you of all people shouldn't try to make guilt by association."

"Newt Gingrich ...

... running in this race; I'm running in this race," Mr. Lazio said. "Let's talk about my record."

Mrs. Clinton later fielded a question about her husband's impeachment over sworn statements he made about his relationship with Monica Lewinsky. The ...

... stemmed from a "vast right-wing conspiracy."

"Obviously, I didn't mislead anyone - I didn't know the truth," Mrs. Clinton said. "And there's a great deal of pain associated with that."

Mr. Lazio stood by comments in a fund-raising letter that the first lady "embarrassed our country."

At one point, Mr. Lazio approached Mrs. Clinton's lectern and asked her to sign a pledge to forgo unregulated soft money, which the parties and outside groups often spend on television commercials attacking candidates.

Mrs. Clinton chuckled at Mr. Lazio's offer, noting that conservative groups across the country have pledged millions to help defeat her.

"You know, I admire that - that was a wonderful performance and you did it very well," Mrs. Clinton said.

Countering that liberal groups are spending millions on her behalf, Mr. Lazio said to Mrs. Clinton: "Why don't you show some leadership? Because it goes to truth and character."

The two candidates left the stage without shaking hands.

What the polls say

Mrs. Clinton headed into the showdown with a slight lead, according to two newly released polls.

A Quinnipiac poll put Mrs. Clinton ahead 49 to 44 percent among likely voters, with a margin of error of plus or minus 3.5 percentage points. That ...

... know enough about him to have a favorable or unfavorable opinion.

Only 2 percent said they don't know enough about Mrs. Clinton.

Another poll this week by the Marist Institute for Public Opinion reflected a closer race among likely voters. Mrs. Clinton led that poll 48 to 46 percent, a statistical dead heat given the error margin of plus or minus 4.5 ...

... a whole lot to define himself at this point."

But Utica-based pollster John Zogby said he believes Mrs. Clinton "has reached her peak" and that "this race is Rick Lazio's to lose."
