"The choices that I've made in my life are right for me," Mrs. Clinton told a panel of journalists, declining to discuss the details but saying they were rooted in her religious faith and "strong sense of family."

Mr. Lazio, trailing Mrs. Clinton in a new statewide poll, refused to touch the subject, saying he respected her private choices. The Republican candidate preferred to ...

A Quinnipiac poll released Friday gave Mrs. Clinton a lead of 50 to 43 percent, with a margin of error of plus or minus 3.5 percentage points. That is the same lead Mrs. Clinton had in an earlier Quinnipiac poll, one conducted after the first Clinton-Lazio debate on Sept. 13.

Pollsters said voters criticized Mr. Lazio after that debate for walking over to Mrs. Clinton's side of the stage and demanding that she sign a written agreement to restrict campaign spending - an incident the first lady cited ...

Melvina Stohldrier, a retired bank teller from New Rochelle, said she is leaning toward Mrs. Clinton because of her hard work and her knowledge of state and local issues.

"I think she's going to help the schools and the kids," Ms. Stohldrier said.

At the end of Sunday's debate, Mrs. Clinton noted Mr. Lazio's attempts to make her the issue. She cited a Lazio fund-raising letter that told donors "all you need to know about this election are six words: I'm running against Hillary Rodham Clinton."

Rick Lazio, who has spent much of his Senate campaign arguing that he is a New Yorker and Hillary Rodham Clinton is not, received little help yesterday from his friend and fellow Empire Stater, Governor George Pataki.

Lazio and Mrs. Clinton were asked during their debate yesterday how they would define "a New Yorker." Mrs. Clinton, quoting the writer E.B. White, said New York was great precisely because it has always been "a magnet for people from ...

While Hillary Clinton's aides say the intensity of her husband's involvement varies from day to day, depending on the pull of his other duties, his influence is felt as ...

... President and his aides have gone to some lengths to play down what he is doing in New York, concerned partly that his involvement would suggest that Hillary Clinton's political skills are not up to the demands of this race.

"I've seen it when he was the candidate and she was the spouse, and now when she is the candidate and he is the spouse, and their roles have totally flipped," said Mark Penn, the longtime Clinton pollster whom Hillary Clinton installed in a senior role at her campaign at the strong urging of her husband.
