HEADLINE: MRS. BUSH HAS TEA AT THE WHITE HOUSE, NOTING SHE HAS BEEN THERE MANY TIMES;

SHE AND HILLARY CLINTON EXCHANGE WARM GREETINGS, HAVE "VERY FRIENDLY" VISIT

BYLINE: The Associated Press

DATELINE: WASHINGTON

BODY:

... gig, but Laura Bush showed she could handle herself at the White House when she stopped by for tea Monday with Hillary Rodham Clinton.

As Mrs. Clinton sought to shoo the media away - "We're going to go in and have a visit," she said - Mrs. Bush paused and turned ever ...

... Bedroom."

She got a tour anyway, of the second- and third-floor residences, said Erika Batcheller, a spokeswoman for Mrs. Clinton. The tour took place after tea in the Yellow Oval Room. The total visit, which Batcheller described as "very friendly," lasted for about an hour.

President-elect George W. Bush's camp offered few details. "Mrs. Clinton invited her to have tea and look around the White House," said Karen Hughes, a spokeswoman for Bush.

Not everything went totally smoothly.

Mrs. Clinton spent seven minutes cooling her heels in the south vestibule waiting for Mrs. Bush; she passed the time by peeking and waving playfully to reporters.

Then, there were those two steps that Mrs. Bush took in the wrong direction as she and Mrs. Clinton turned to go indoors. Mrs. Clinton, holding Mrs. Bush's hand, gently steered her back in the right direction.

And in between, there was the car door that would not open.

Mrs. Clinton strode out, coatless and confident in freezing temperature, to meet Mrs. Bush. Then she watched with rising concern as an aide tugged at the car door with no success. "We've got a frozen door here," Mrs. Clinton called to a Secret Service agent, who rushed over and lent extra muscle to the process.

Finally freed from the car, Mrs. Bush - also coatless - chimed a cheerful hello. "I'm glad to see you," Mrs. Clinton replied with warmth, clasping the hand that Mrs. Bush extended.

As Mrs. Bush arrived to check out her next home, Mrs. Clinton laughed off reporters' questions about whether hers would be a multimillion-dollar mansion in Washington's Georgetown section. "Are you going to help me?" she teased.

Jake Siewert, the White House spokesman, confirmed that the Clintons were seeking a second home. "Mrs. Clinton obviously needs a place to hang her hat here in Washington," Siewert said.
