Dear Lissa,

At last...BUT it was worth waiting. It felt like we knew each other for ages (although we don't want to discuss age) I will call you towards the end of next week to follow up our professional discussion. But, meanwhile, if you have any inquiries or any personal need to talk, feel free to call me any time.

Truly yours,

Daphne Barak

Attention to Lissa Muscatine

Paris Match Magazine

1633 BROADWAY
NEW YORK, NY 10019

Dear Mrs Muscatine,

as we enter the last months of Mr Clinton's presidency, it becomes clear that not since Eleonor Roosevelt, has anyone had more impact on the role of the First lady than Mrs Clinton. Her actions, on behalf of women's rights, health care and children's issues, concentrated public attention on these important causes. She has been a respected example, around the world, of a modern woman claiming her rights and performing her duties.

Paris Match, France's preeminent weekly magazine (1 million copies, 5 millions readers worlwide) would like to conduct an interview with Mrs Clinton, including a photo session. Our focus would be the balance Mrs Clinton has struck between continuity and change in the role of the First Lady.

Jean Louis Atlan, our correspondant in Washington DC and I, as the bureau chief of Paris Match, would like very much to meet you, at your convenience, to discuss the possibilities of such an interview.

We look forward to speaking with you.

Best regards

Romain Clergeat
