Dear Hillary:

I am writing to inquire about the possibility that you would have time in your schedule to have lunch or dinner with a group of women, which we casually call the Women's Policy Roundtable. Essentially, it is a group of women who share professional achievement and interest in politics and policy. We have been meeting periodically with various policymakers, from Madeleine Albright to Henry Kissinger and Bill Richardson. It is a fascinating group and we would be honored to be with you anytime it is convenient.

I am enclosing a list of the women who participate. We usually limit each dinner or lunch to 30 people and meet in my house in NYC, but we could also arrange to meet with you in Washington. If this is of any interest, please let me know.

Otherwise, I send you my very best wishes, as well as my heartfelt thanks for all you do for the nation, and for women in particular. You make all of us understand the possibilities. Thank you.

All my best,

Sincerely,

Lynn Forester
