TECHNOLOGY

This year the Easter Egg Roll will be cybercast. Eight cameras on the lawn will capture performances, readings, activities, and the President's and First Lady's remarks. Unlike the cybercast of 1998, this will be a wireless project. The audio and video is captured with cameras and fed to a microwave truck parked on the grass on E. Exec. Av. From there it is sent up to a satellite, where it is encoded for Internet sites to pick up.

There are now 100 million users in the US with the capacity to see and hear this event. We will provide links from the WH web site, EarthLink, (world's second largest ISP) the top 100 web sites (Yahoo, Excite, etc), the Dept of Education, and the top children's and educational sites. Some of the celebrity readings will be available for viewing for about two weeks. The rest of the event will be available for several months.

Amazon.com is sponsoring ~~six~~ 8 kid reporters who will be covering the event, interviewing celebrities, performers, George Washington, etc, and filing stories from their press room, attached to the Click! tent. The children were selected by school superintendents in the Philadelphia and Washington DC areas.

All this material will be archived for the President's library, and for the National Park Service.

LAWN CHARACTERS

- The White House bunnies
- Paddington Bear
- Peter Rabbit
- Rapid Rabbit, and others

NEW THIS YEAR

We are moving one of the egg rolls to the area south of the fountain. Half of our visitors enter the lawn at the SE gate. We will direct them to the south egg roll and many activities in that area. The other half of our population (staff and guests) enter through the Kennedy Garden. They will find an egg roll in the traditional location in front of the S. Portico. We hope this change will improve traffic flow.

GIVE AWAYS

- On the lawn: M&M Mars candy tubes, as children finish rolling eggs
- As they exit: a wooden Easter egg for each child, and a large clear plastic envelope containing
  Easter poster (Mary Engelbreit)
  S. Lawn map by Craig Hatkoff, Jane Rosenthal and Robert De Niro,
  White House Easter Egg Roll book with a new cover design for 2000
  Large postcard painting of Egg Roll 1920s, from WH Historical Association
  Bookmark Prescription For Reading, signed by Mrs. Clinton and Surgeon General
- Sponsor bags, one per family as Reception guests exit to Lawn: Poster, egg, map, egg cookbook, various Easter books (It's a GREAT bag)

ON THE ELLIPSE

- Give Aways: Bunny Bundles (scrambled egg in pita), Dole juice, raisins, Krispy Kreme donuts, Walkers Shortbread
- Activities costumed characters and performers
- Hormel Kids Kitchen reading activities

CHAMBERS ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

Chambers Elementary School is located in East Cleveland. There are many wonderful things happening at this school. In addition to improvements to the building, Chambers is the recipient of an OHIO READS grant initiated by Governor Bob Taft. When the Governor visited the District last December, Brittany Smith, a third grader, read the class motto:

"The more you read, the more you know; the more you know, the smarter you grow; the smarter you grow, the stronger your voice, when speaking your mind and making your choice."

Because of this vivacious third grader, and the media attention, Gary Jacob, Producer of the White Easter Egg Roll, decided to invite Brittany and her entire third grade class to the White House for this historical event. Never before has this happened to any students in East Cleveland. The students will read from one of the stages and be part of the 2000 festivities.

Amazon.com is sponsoring ~~six~~ 8 kid reporters who will be covering the event, interviewing celebrities, performers, George Washington, etc, and filing stories from their press room, attached to the Click! tent. The children were selected by school superintendents in the Philadelphia and Washington DC areas.

All this material will be archived for the President's library, and for the National Park Service.

LAWN CHARACTERS

- The White House bunnies
- Paddington Bear
- Peter Rabbit
- Rapid Rabbit, and others

NEW THIS YEAR

We are moving one of the egg rolls to the area south of the fountain. Half of our visitors enter the lawn at the SE gate. We will direct them to the south egg roll and many activities in that area. The other half of our population (staff and guests) enter through the Kennedy Garden. They will find an egg roll in the traditional location in front of the S. Portico. We hope this change will improve traffic flow.

GIVE AWAYS

- On the lawn: M&M Mars candy tubes, as children finish rolling eggs
- As they exit: a wooden Easter egg for each child, and a large clear plastic envelope containing
  Easter poster (Mary Engelbreit)
  S. Lawn map by Craig Hatkoff, Jane Rosenthal and Robert De Niro,
  White House Easter Egg Roll book with a new cover design for 2000
  Large postcard painting of Egg Roll 1920s, from WH Historical Association
  Bookmark Prescription For Reading, signed by Mrs. Clinton and Surgeon General
- Sponsor bags, one per family as Reception guests exit to Lawn: Poster, egg, map, egg cookbook, various Easter books (It's a GREAT bag)

ON THE ELLIPSE

- Give Aways: Bunny Bundles (scrambled egg in pita), Dole juice, raisins, Krispy Kreme donuts, Walkers Shortbread
- Activities costumed characters and performers
- Hormel Kids Kitchen reading activities

WHITE HOUSE EASTER EGG ROLL
SCHEDULED FOR MONDAY, APRIL 24, 2000

- Event to be Cybercast Live on the Internet -

Washington, D.C. – The White House will hold its annual Easter Egg Roll on Monday, April 24, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the South Lawn and the Ellipse. This year's festivities include an egg roll for children ages 3 - 6, musical performances, historical reenactments, celebrity story-telling, egg-decorating and other activities to celebrate the holiday. Approximately 30,000 children and members of their families are expected to participate in the Easter Monday activities.

The Easter Egg Roll has been an American tradition since the mid-19th century. The celebration, begun on Capitol grounds, was moved to the White House's South Lawn in 1878 by Lucy Hayes, wife of President Rutherford B. Hayes. The Easter Egg Roll has taken place on the White House lawn every year since then, except during World Wars I and II, when it was moved to the National Zoo and other locations throughout Washington.

In keeping with the White House Millennium Council's theme of honoring the past and imagining the future, this year's Easter Egg Roll will feature historical reenactments by actors portraying George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt, and Benjamin Bannecker. In addition to the historical figures, other characters on hand to greet children on the South Lawn include the official White House Bunnies, Paddington Bear and Peter Rabbit, among others.

While honoring the past, the first Easter Egg Roll of the new millennium will also embrace a future in which people are more connected than ever. Many of the day's activities will be cybercast, allowing children from around the globe to take part in this year's festivities. Web users can link to the cybercast at the White House website (www.whitehouse.gov), at the Department of Education's website, at EarthLink and Apple, and at scores of other top Internet sites, including many of the most popular children's and educational websites. This technology makes it possible for more people to see and hear this year's Easter Egg Roll than all the people who have attended White House Easter Egg Rolls since 1878.

In addition to musical and historical performances, this year's Egg Roll continues to highlight Prescription for Reading, an innovative effort to emphasize the importance of reading to children. Based on research showing that reading to children in their first years of life enhances their healthy development, First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton in 1997 called on booksellers, libraries, hospitals, pediatricians and others to work together to make sure that infants and toddlers have access to books when they visit their doctors, and are encouraged to read regularly at home. In response to Mrs. Clinton's challenge, the Prescription for Reading Partnership was established to coordinate and build on existing efforts to "prescribe" reading for children. As part of this initiative, children and families at the 2000 White House Easter Egg Roll will receive Prescription for Reading bookmarks signed by Mrs. Clinton and Surgeon General David Satcher.

As in years past, Administration officials will also emphasize the importance of reading to children by reading aloud some of their favorite stories. Attorney General Janet Reno will read Voyage to the Bunny Planet; White House Chief of Staff John Podesta will read Because You're Lucky; Secretary of Health and Human Services Donna Shalala will read The Berenstein Bears' Easter Surprise; and Secretary of Transportation Rodney Slater will read The Little Engine That Could. Other Administration officials joining in the story-telling include Surgeon General David Satcher and Treasury Secretary Lawrence Summers, among others.

Celebrity story-tellers include J.K. Rowling, who will be reading from her Harry Potter series; Julie Andrews, reading from her own children's book, Little Bo: The Story of Bonnie Boadicea; and Deborah Norville, reading from her book, I Don't Want to Sleep Tonight. Christopher Paul Curtis will read from his highly acclaimed Bud, Not Buddy, which was awarded the John Newberry Medal, the most prestigious award in children's literature. Justin Timberlake and Lance Bass of N'Sync will serve as masters of ceremonies for the celebrity story-telling stage.

For the seventh year in a row, the White House Easter egg collection will be on display in the East Colonnade of the White House during tours for three weeks prior to Easter. The collection, which features real eggs decorated by artists from each of the 50 states and the District of Columbia, was introduced by Mrs. Clinton as part of the White House Easter Egg Roll in 1994. Coordinated by the American Egg Board, different artists from around the country are invited each year to create an egg for the collection. (Note: The collection will not be visible from the Easter Egg Roll activities on the South Lawn.)

Displays created by embassies from Japan to Hungary, Latvia to Luxembourg, Panama to Poland, and many countries in between, will show children how springtime is celebrated across the globe.

This year's official White House Easter Egg Roll poster, program and commemorative wooden eggs were designed by well-known artist Mary Engelbreit. Known throughout the world for her colorful and intricate designs, Ms. Engelbreit's artwork adorns more than 14 million greeting cards and 2,000 other products sold each year. Along with the Prescription for Reading bookmark and The White House Easter Egg Roll book, each child attending the Egg Roll will receive the official poster and commemorative egg designed by Ms. Engelbreit.

Tickets are required for the South Lawn Easter Egg Roll activities, and can be picked up at the Visitor's Pavilion on the Ellipse on Monday, April 24. Distribution of tickets begins at approximately 7 a.m. One person can request up to four tickets, but one of these tickets must be used by a child between the ages of 3 and 6. The South Lawn will be open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tickets are not required for activities on the Ellipse, which will feature music and complimentary snacks such as juice, fruit, doughnuts and other treats.

HARD-BOILED FACTS ABOUT THE WHITE HOUSE EASTER EGG ROLL

- There will be 20,000 souvenir wooden eggs distributed at this year's event. The souvenir eggs, designed by Mary Engelbreit, feature a chick pushing an Easter egg in a carriage on the South Lawn, and include the signatures of the President and First Lady.

- There will be 7,200 hard-boiled eggs used for the Egg Roll. The eggs are dyed by the White House chef. An additional 2,500 eggs are cooked for the egg-decorating activities.

- Nearly 500 volunteers help to make the White House Easter Egg Roll a special event for the families who visit. This massive effort is coordinated through the White House Volunteers Office.

- In order to accommodate more families attending Easter Monday activities, the President and Mrs. Clinton expanded the festivities from the South Lawn to the Ellipse in 1993.

- President Clinton is the first president to attend every Easter Egg Roll during his tenure in office.

- Adults must be accompanied by a child age 3 to 6 years to enter the White House South Lawn. All persons are required to have a ticket. (The timed ticket system was created so that families would not have to wait in long lines to gain access to the Easter Egg Roll.)

- American Sign Language interpreters are available for both the South Lawn and the Ellipse activities. Signs at the gates direct hearing-impaired families to these services.

- In the event of heavy rain or thunderstorms, Easter Egg Roll activities will be canceled and not rescheduled.

- Wooden Easter eggs are available for purchase at various kiosks and gift shops. The shop closest to the White House is the Visitor's Pavilion at the Ellipse, south of the White House. Wooden Easter eggs can also be ordered by phone at 800-566-8319; by fax at 888-476-8442; or online at www.whitehouseeasteregg.com. They are $3 each.

- Easter Egg Roll activities will be cybercast this year, and will be accessible at www.whitehouse.gov.

- For additional information, members of the public can call the White House Visitors Office 24-Hour Public Events Line at 202-456-7041, or visit the White House website at www.whitehouse.gov.

The Easter Egg Roll has taken place on the White House lawn every year since then, except during World Wars I and II, when it was moved to the National Zoo and other locations throughout Washington.

In keeping with the White House Millennium Council's theme of honoring the past and imagining the future, this year's Easter Egg Roll will feature historical reenactments by actors portraying George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt, and Benjamin Bannecker. In addition to the historical figures, other characters on hand to greet children on the South Lawn include the official White House Bunnies, Paddington Bear and Peter Rabbit, among others.

While honoring the past, the first Easter Egg Roll of the new millennium will also embrace a future in which people are more connected than ever. Many of the day's activities will be cybercast, allowing children from around the globe to take part in this year's festivities. Web users can link to the cybercast at the White House website (www.whitehouse.gov), at the Department of Education's website, at EarthLink and Apple, and at scores of other top Internet sites, including many of the most popular children's and educational websites. This technology makes it possible for more people to see and hear this year's Easter Egg Roll than all the people who have attended White House Easter Egg Rolls since 1878.

In addition to musical and historical performances, this year's Egg Roll continues to highlight Prescription for Reading, an innovative effort to emphasize the importance of reading to children. Based on research showing that reading to children in their first years of life enhances their healthy development, First Lady Hillary Rodham Clinton in 1997 called on booksellers, libraries, hospitals, pediatricians and others to work together to make sure that infants and toddlers have access to books when they visit their doctors, and are encouraged to read regularly at home. In response to Mrs. Clinton's challenge, the Prescription for Reading Partnership was established to coordinate and build on existing efforts to "prescribe" reading for children. As part of this initiative, children and families at the 2000 White House Easter Egg Roll will receive Prescription for Reading bookmarks signed by Mrs. Clinton and Surgeon General David Satcher.

As in years past, Administration officials will also emphasize the importance of reading to children by reading aloud some of their favorite stories. Attorney General Janet Reno will read Voyage to the Bunny Planet; White House Chief of Staff John Podesta will read Because You're Lucky; Secretary of Health and Human Services Donna Shalala will read The Berenstein Bears' Easter Surprise; and Secretary of Transportation Rodney Slater will read The Little Engine That Could. Other Administration officials joining in the story-telling include Surgeon General David Satcher and Treasury Secretary Lawrence Summers, among others.

Celebrity story-tellers include J.K. Rowling, who will be reading from her Harry Potter series; Julie Andrews, reading from her own children's book, Little Bo: The Story of Bonnie Boadicea; and Deborah Norville, reading from her book, I Don't Want to Sleep Tonight. Christopher Paul Curtis will read from his highly acclaimed Bud, Not Buddy, which was awarded the John Newberry Medal, the most prestigious award in children's literature. Justin Timberlake and Lance Bass of N'Sync will serve as masters of ceremonies for the celebrity story-telling stage.

For the seventh year in a row, the White House Easter egg collection will be on display in the East Colonnade of the White House during tours for three weeks prior to Easter. The collection, which features real eggs decorated by artists from each of the 50 states and the District of Columbia, was introduced by Mrs. Clinton as part of the White House Easter Egg Roll in 1994. Coordinated by the American Egg Board, different artists from around the country are invited each year to create an egg for the collection. (Note: The collection will not be visible from the Easter Egg Roll activities on the South Lawn.)

Displays created by embassies from Japan to Hungary, Latvia to Luxembourg, Panama to Poland, and many countries in between, will show children how springtime is celebrated across the globe.

This year's official White House Easter Egg Roll poster, program and commemorative wooden eggs were designed by well-known artist Mary Engelbreit. Known throughout the world for her colorful and intricate designs, Ms. Engelbreit's artwork adorns more than 14 million greeting cards and 2,000 other products sold each year. Along with the Prescription for Reading bookmark and The White House Easter Egg Roll book, each child attending the Egg Roll will receive the official poster and commemorative egg designed by Ms. Engelbreit.

Tickets are required for the South Lawn Easter Egg Roll activities, and can be picked up at the Visitor's Pavilion on the Ellipse on Monday, April 24. Distribution of tickets begins at approximately 7 a.m. One person can request up to four tickets, but one of these tickets must be used by a child between the ages of 3 and 6. The South Lawn will be open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tickets are not required for activities on the Ellipse, which will feature music and complimentary snacks such as juice, fruit, doughnuts and other treats.

HARD-BOILED FACTS ABOUT THE WHITE HOUSE EASTER EGG ROLL

- There will be 20,000 souvenir wooden eggs distributed at this year's event. The souvenir eggs, designed by Mary Engelbreit, feature a chick pushing an Easter egg in a carriage on the South Lawn, and include the signatures of the President and First Lady.

- There will be 7,200 hard-boiled eggs used for the Egg Roll. The eggs are dyed by the White House chef. An additional 2,500 eggs are cooked for the egg-decorating activities.

- Nearly 500 volunteers help to make the White House Easter Egg Roll a special event for the families who visit. This massive effort is coordinated through the White House Volunteers Office.

- In order to accommodate more families attending Easter Monday activities, the President and Mrs. Clinton expanded the festivities from the South Lawn to the Ellipse in 1993.

- President Clinton is the first president to attend every Easter Egg Roll during his tenure in office.

- Adults must be accompanied by a child age 3 to 6 years to enter the White House South Lawn. All persons are required to have a ticket. (The timed ticket system was created so that families would not have to wait in long lines to gain access to the Easter Egg Roll.)

- American Sign Language interpreters are available for both the South Lawn and the Ellipse activities. Signs at the gates direct hearing-impaired families to these services.

- In the event of heavy rain or thunderstorms, Easter Egg Roll activities will be canceled and not rescheduled.

- Wooden Easter eggs are available for purchase at various kiosks and gift shops. The shop closest to the White House is the Visitor's Pavilion at the Ellipse, south of the White House. Wooden Easter eggs can also be ordered by phone at 800-566-8319; by fax at 888-476-8442; or online at www.whitehouseeasteregg.com. They are $3 each.

- Easter Egg Roll activities will be cybercast this year, and will be accessible at www.whitehouse.gov.

- For additional information, members of the public can call the White House Visitors Office 24-Hour Public Events Line at 202-456-7041, or visit the White House website at www.whitehouse.gov.

WHITE HOUSE EASTER EGG ROLL
SCHEDULED FOR MONDAY, APRIL 24, 2000

Washington, D.C. – The White House will hold its annual Easter Egg Roll on Monday, April 24, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the South Lawn and the Ellipse. This year's festivities include an egg roll for children ages 3 - 6, musical performances, historical reenactments, celebrity story-telling, egg-decorating and other activities to celebrate the holiday. Approximately 30,000 children and members of their families are expected to participate in the Easter Monday activities.

The Easter Egg Roll has been an American tradition since the mid-19th century. The celebration, begun on Capitol grounds, was moved to the White House's South Lawn in 1878 by Lucy Hayes, wife of President Rutherford B. Hayes. The Easter Egg Roll has taken place on the White House lawn every year since then, except during World Wars I and II, when it was moved to the National Zoo and other locations throughout Washington.

In keeping with the White House Millennium Council's theme of honoring the past and imagining the future, this year's Easter Egg Roll will feature historical reenactments by actors portraying George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt, and Benjamin Bannecker. LEGENDARY ACTRESS AND STORYTELLER JULIE ANDREWS WRITES HER FIRST PICTURE BOOK FOR CHILDREN LITTLE BO

A CLASSIC TALE OF FRIENDSHIP BETWEEN A KITTEN AND SAILOR

New York, NY—Tony, Emmy and Academy Award-winning actress Julie Andrews Edwards will author her first picture book for children this fall with Hyperion Books for Children, an imprint of Disney Publishing Worldwide. LITTLE BO is the first in a continuing series about the endearing and unlikely friendship between a lost kitten (Little Bo) and a sailor (Billie). Beautifully illustrated by Henry Cole, readers will delight in the adventures of Little Bo and Billie. Andrews is an accomplished children's book author, whose two previous books for older children continue to generate stellar sales.

"It has been a great pleasure working on my children's book with The Walt Disney Publishing team. I do hope that the books will be worthy of the Disney tradition of quality and creativity," Andrews said.

"LITTLE BO is a beautifully written story of intrigue, adventure, and love. We are thrilled to be publishing this wonderful book," said Lisa Holton, Senior Vice President and Publisher of Disney Publishing Worldwide.

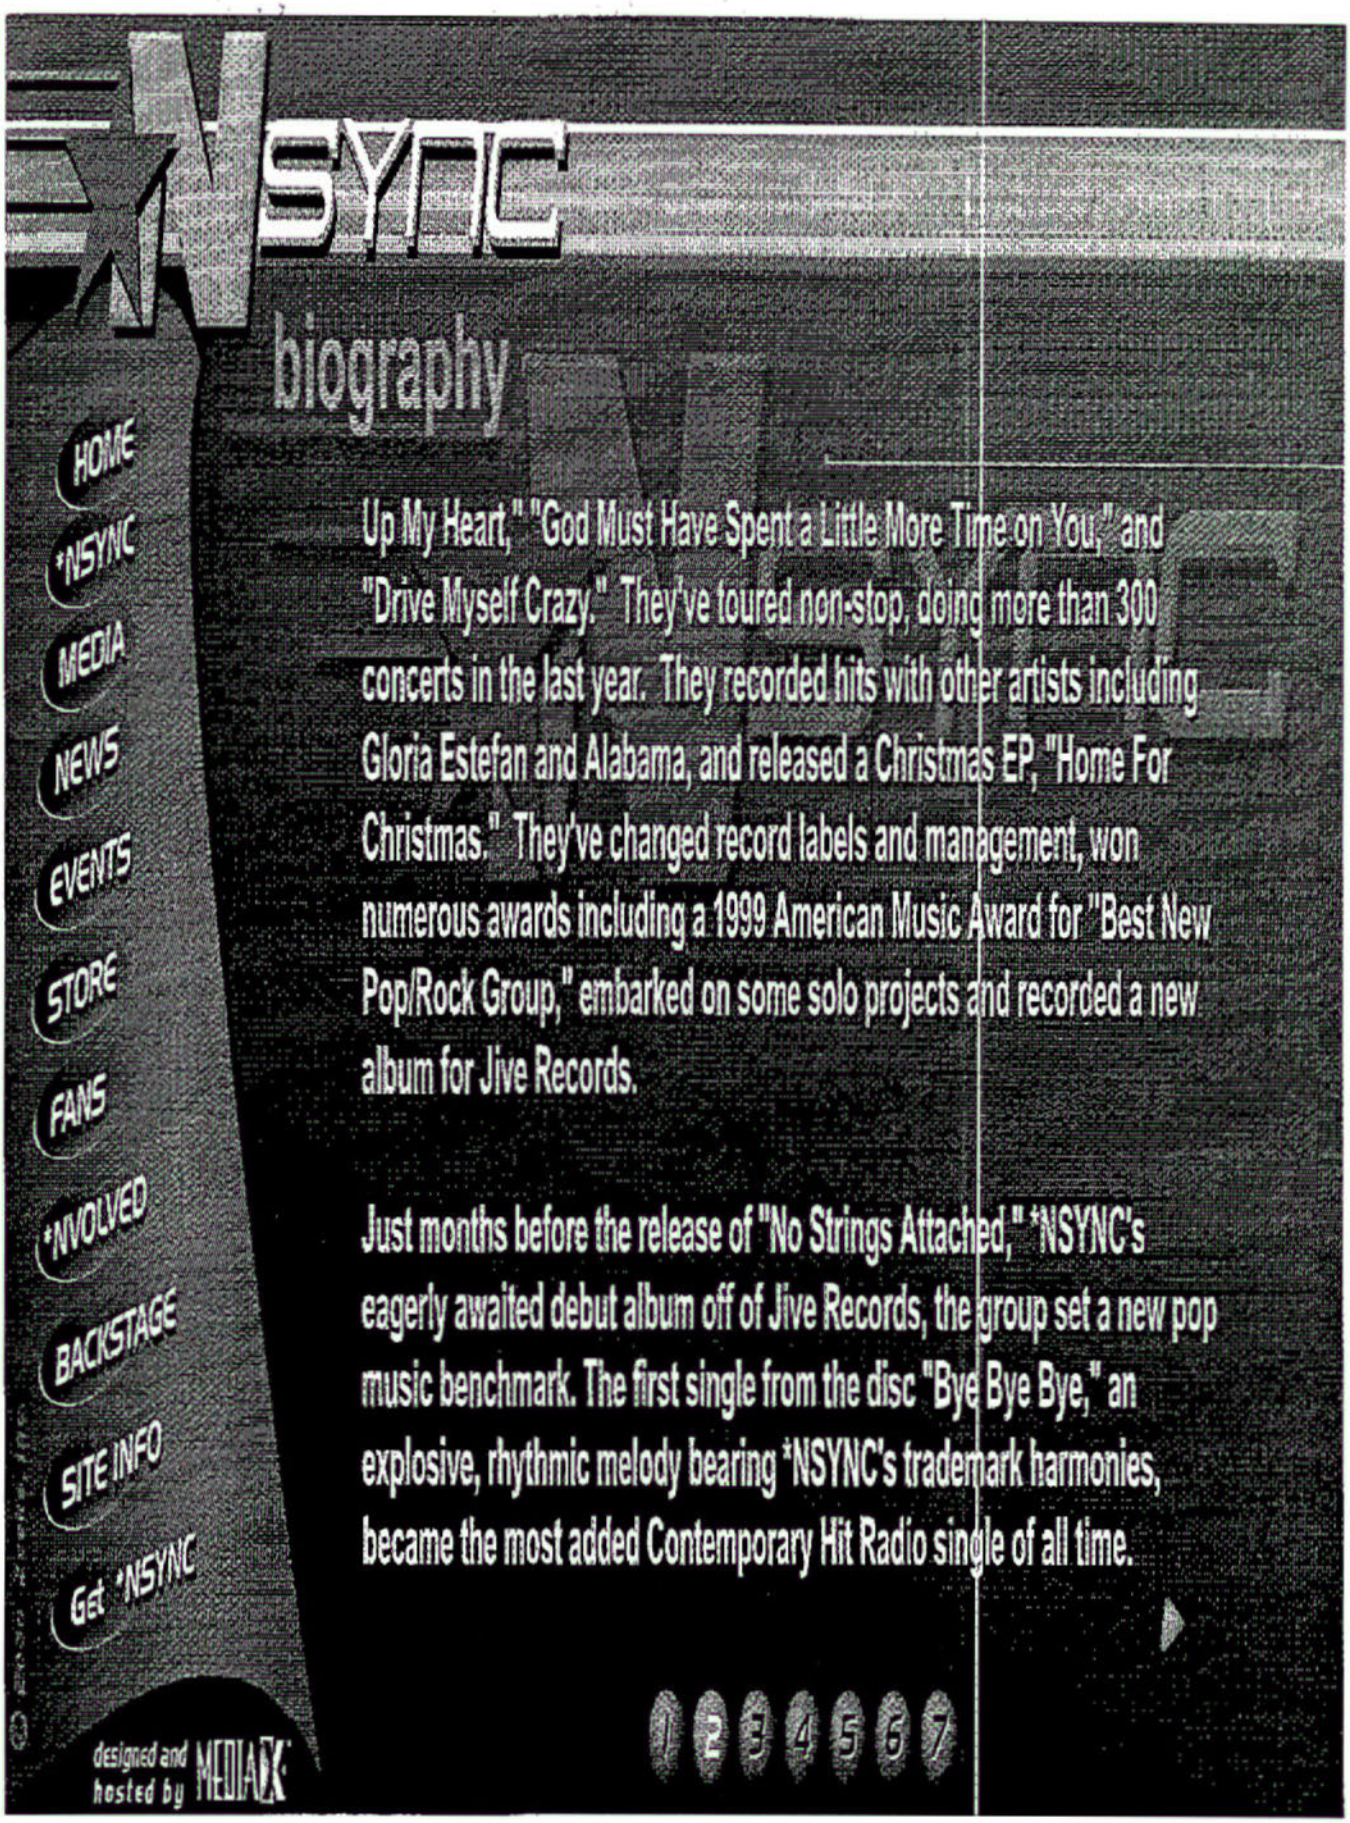

Julie Andrews is a beloved international celebrity known for her elegance, artistry, and integrity. She is an entertainment phenomenon with a record-breaking career that spans theater, motion pictures, music, television, and books. Ms. Andrews will star Thanksgiving in the TV movie One Special Night with James Garner. In Spring 2000, she will star in the movie Relative Values.

Andrews's theater work includes two Tony Award nominations for her roles in My Fair Lady and Camelot. Her recording of My Fair Lady still holds the record for longevity on the bestseller charts. She won an Academy Award for her motion picture debut in Mary Poppins, and Academy Award nominations for The Sound of Music and Victor/Victoria. Her ABC television series, "The Julie Andrews Hour," received eight Emmy Awards. She is the author of two children's books, Mandy (1971) and The Last of the Really Great Whangdoodles (1974), which remains one of the best-selling children's books of all time.

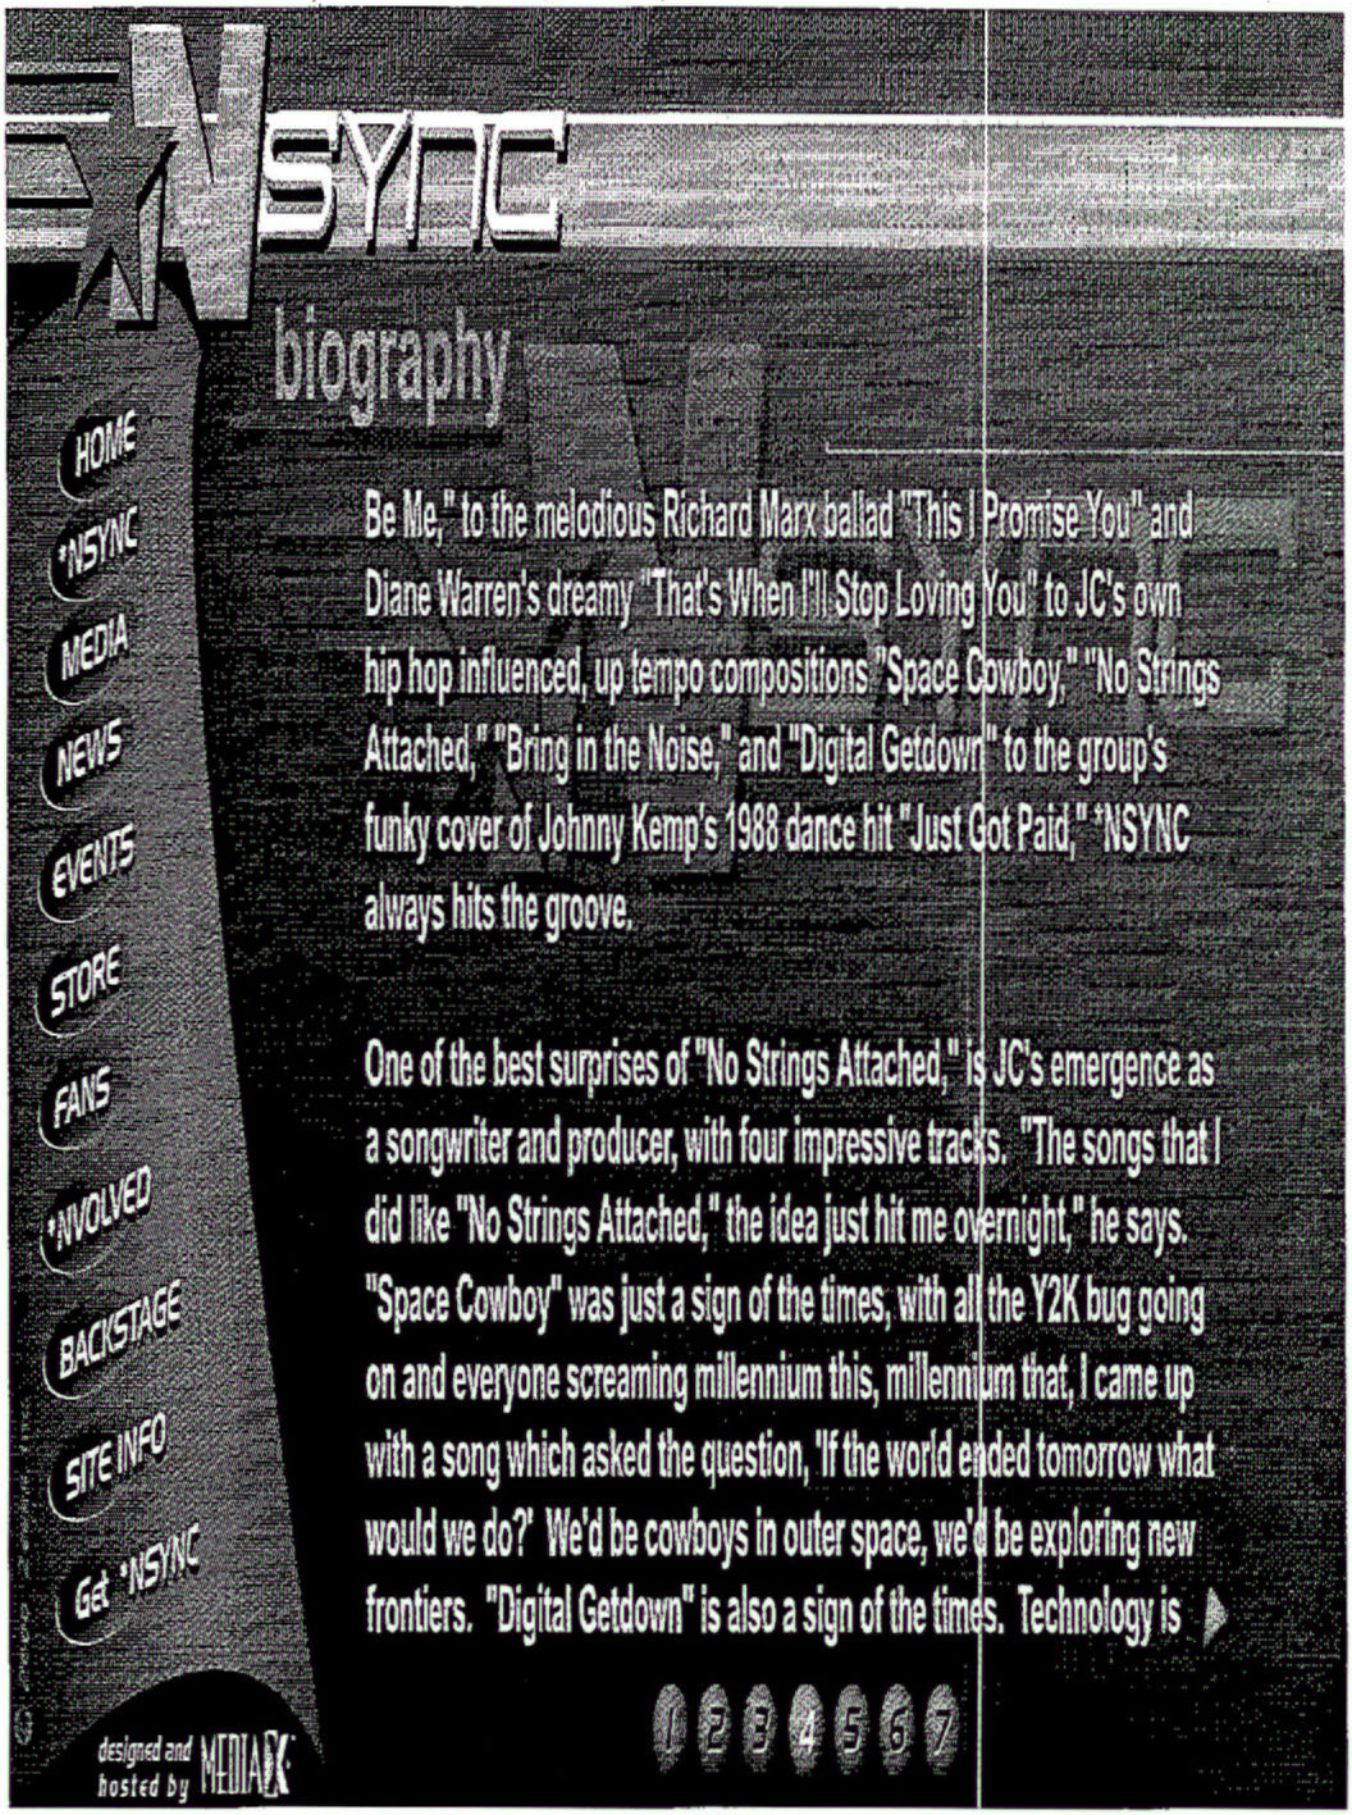

Disney Publishing Worldwide is the publishing subsidiary of The Walt Disney Company bringing informative and entertaining publications to readers of all ages domestically and internationally. Disney Publishing Worldwide reaches more than 50 million readers worldwide monthly and holds a leading position in children's publishing in all major markets. Around the world, Disney's books and magazines are printed in 37 languages and distributed in more than 100 countries. The group's U.S. businesses include Disney Children's Book Group, Disney licensed publishing, Disney visual and reference books, and the magazines Disney, Disney Adventures, Disney Magazine, and FamilyFun.

If it weren't true, someone would surely invent this story. Five handsome, charming and talented young men from all over America, each with a passion for singing and a dream of stardom come to Orlando, Florida. Soon after individual professional breaks, they form a vocal quintet. They take a name utilizing the last letter of each of their first names to signify the perfect unity of their harmonies. Less than a year later, the group cuts an album, which becomes a monster hit in Germany and then all over Europe. The album is released in the U.S., and almost overnight, the group attains staggering worldwide success and fame. This is the incredibly true story of *NSYNC.
In less than three years *NSYNC, which includes Lance Bass, JC Chasez, Joey Fatone, Chris Kirkpatrick and Justin Timberlake, have obtained global stardom. Their self-titled 1998 debut album sold over ten million copies and yielded four number one singles: "I Want You Back," "Tearing Up My Heart," "God Must Have Spent a Little More Time on You," and "Drive Myself Crazy." They've toured non-stop, doing more than 300 concerts in the last year. They recorded hits with other artists including Gloria Estefan and Alabama, and released a Christmas EP, "Home For Christmas." They've changed record labels and management, won numerous awards including a 1999 American Music Award for "Best New Pop/Rock Group," embarked on some solo projects and recorded a new album for Jive Records.

Just months before the release of "No Strings Attached," *NSYNC's eagerly awaited debut album off of Jive Records, the group set a new pop music benchmark. The first single from the disc "Bye Bye Bye," an explosive, rhythmic melody bearing *NSYNC's trademark harmonies, became the most added Contemporary Hit Radio single of all time.

"It was a challenge doing this record," Justin admits. "Picking out the right songs that fit where you want to go musically, where you want to take your fans. We went through a lot of things in 1999 and we went through them really fast. We have a very broad sound and there are some different directions we can take it, so we did as much of that as we could on this album. That's why we called the album "No Strings Attached." "We have no strings to hold us down. We're ready to show the world that."
"We did this album independently," Chris adds. "A lot of the songs were written and produced in-house. We're excited about this album!"
The songs on "No Strings Attached" not only display *NSYNC's wide musical range, but also showcase their artistic growth. From the well-known, pop-flavored Max Martin tunes "Bye Bye Bye" and "It's Gonna Be Me," to the melodious Richard Marx ballad "This I Promise You" and Diane Warren's dreamy "That's When I'll Stop Loving You" to JC's own hip hop influenced, up tempo compositions "Space Cowboy," "No Strings Attached," "Bring in the Noise," and "Digital Getdown" to the group's funky cover of Johnny Kemp's 1988 dance hit "Just Got Paid," *NSYNC always hits the groove.

One of the best surprises of "No Strings Attached," is JC's emergence as a songwriter and producer, with four impressive tracks. "The songs that I did like "No Strings Attached," the idea just hit me overnight," he says. "Space Cowboy" was just a sign of the times, with all the Y2K bug going on and everyone screaming millennium this, millennium that, I came up with a song which asked the question, 'If the world ended tomorrow what would we do?' We'd be cowboys in outer space, we'd be exploring new frontiers. "Digital Getdown" is also a sign of the times. Technology is everywhere and the Internet is the thing to do. It's about people hopping on line and hooking up with each other. "Bring in the Noise" was about a basketball game, what it's like as a basketball player playing the game.

"Everything on this album is well thought out and put together. There were no half steps. Every knob was tweaked. Every button pushed to make this the best sounding album it could be," JC adds. "A lot of my dreams were fulfilled in this album. Richard Marx was one of my idols growing up. The first song I ever sang in public was one of his."
"We worked with Teddy Riley and She'kspeare on this record, people we look up to in the business," Justin adds, "I grew up listening to Teddy Riley, Guy and his production on Michael Jackson."

Mary Engelbreit
Artist and Entrepreneur

While the name Mary Engelbreit may not sound familiar, chances are everyone's seen her artwork. With characters, sayings and scenes often springing directly from her observations and memories, Mary's drawings dramatize familiar human experiences. Her distinctive style is full of wit and nostalgia -- checks, cherries, colorful landscapes and sweet, rosy-cheeked characters. People magazine reports Mary Engelbreit's artwork "...has become as recognizable as the work of Norman Rockwell."

She is known throughout the world for her colorful and intricate designs that adorn over 14 million greeting cards sold each year. Engelbreit holds license agreements with 42 manufacturers to reproduce her popular designs on 2,000 products, including books, calendars, posters, stationery, dolls, jewelry, kitchen accessories and home accents. An estimated 25,000 retailers nationwide sell $100 million worth of product annually. The Mary Engelbreit Company operates eight retail stores in Atlanta, Chicago, Dallas, Denver, St. Louis, Seattle, Mall of America and Washington, D.C., and has plans to open more. In addition, Engelbreit publishes Mary Engelbreit's Home Companion, a national consumer magazine which shares with its namesake an active but easy approach to decorating and living, all in the artist's trademark style.

Her biography, Mary Engelbreit: The Art and the Artist, tells the story of how her dream of illustrating children's books was rejected by the New York publishing houses in 1977. One publisher recommended she try greeting cards. "I was kind of crushed," she recalls, but then recognized how suitable the suggestion might be. "Once I realized there was a market for my little one-shot illustrations, I decided to go for it."

In 1983, Mary and her husband, Phil Delano, started their own greeting card business. Hard work and perseverance paid off -- leading them to expand the business into an extensive licensing program.

With licensing as the core business, in 1996, Mary Engelbreit and Andrews McMeel Universal (a publishing company based in Kansas City, MO) launched the national consumer magazine, Mary Engelbreit's Home Companion. Articles, reflecting Mary's personal decorating vision, showcase creative people through their homes and their art -- offering tips on "Leading the Artful Life." Each issue features her artwork and a set of paper dolls, and covers topics including family life, food, decorating, craft projects, flea markets and collectibles. Published six times a year, the magazine has a circulation of over half a million.

In 1997, Cox Newspapers (a subsidiary of Cox Enterprises, Inc.) became a partner in Mary Engelbreit's Home Companion magazine. That same year, Phil Delano (Mary's husband) retired from the day-to-day operations and remains chairman of the board. Longtime friend and former lawyer Greg Hoffmann joined the company full-time as chief executive officer.

Now, Engelbreit and Hoffmann are pushing hard to expand the business to include a variety of new products and ventures. Expanding the business includes building and operating more stores along with eight stores in existence, each aptly named The Mary Engelbreit Store® and located in upscale malls across the country (Atlanta's North Point Mall, Chicago's Woodfield Shopping Center, the Dallas Galleria, Denver's Cherry Creek Mall, the Saint Louis Galleria, Seattle's Bellevue Square, Minnesota's Mall of America, and Washington, D.C.'s Tysons Corner Center). Hoffmann, with the retail company's chief operations officer, Jim Blatt, are spearheading plans to open 17 more Mary Engelbreit Stores in the next few years. The stores serve as freestanding advertisements for the Mary Engelbreit brand and showcase the breadth of the Mary Engelbreit line.

The Official Web site, www.maryengelbreit.com, features biographical information on Mary, her artwork, product, stores, magazine, recipes, frequently-asked questions, and coloring pages. Future plans include developing an e-commerce site for ordering product over the Internet.

All of these business endeavors combined show how, according to the Wall Street Journal, "Mary Engelbreit is Building (a) Vast Empire of Cuteness."

When Mary was young, people told her that being an artist was not a realistic way to make a living, but Mary Engelbreit was never one to be easily discouraged. "I believed in myself," she says, "and now I'm living my dream."

White House Press Office

Dear Jen,

I understand that you have taken over the responsibilites for this year's Annual White House Easter Egg Roll. WTTG Fox 5 TV has had live early morning coverage previewing the Egg Roll for the past ten years.

Our crew would need to arrive at 5:00am to go through the security clearance and be set up for our air time of 6:30am. Our broadcast runs till 9am. We would do approximately seven live tease hits between 6:30 and 9am, and have the opportunity to do interviews at 7:50 and 8:35 or 8:45. If need be we can shift our interview times a little if they conflict with requests from the Today Show.

We will need to rely on your office to provide us with some advance information on this year's special Egg Roll guests, and to facilitate an interview with a White House Egg Roll Spokesperson.

I will of course provide you with a list of vehicles and staff names, birth dates, and social security numbers. We usually bring a staff of at most six people, a microwave truck and a crew car.

I worked with you while Toby Graff was away last year. I'm hoping we can finalize things by the middle of the week of April 17th. The Fox Morning News office number is 202-893-3131. My personal voice mail is 895-3329. Thank you in advance for all of your help.

Sincerely, Lucille E. H. Baur

Dear Jennifer,

Hearst-Argyle Television would like to clear in the following people for the White House Easter Egg Roll on Monday, April 24, 2000:

Alexandra Lee	DOB	(b)(6)
William Smith	DOB
Andre Dunston	DOB
Erin McManamon	DOB
Jennifer Hitchcock	DOB
Rebecca Kutler	DOB

[005]

Only three of the above people will cover the event, but I do not know yet which three, which is why the list is so long. Also, we would like the individuals to be cleared in for 10am, so they can watch the President's remarks from the briefing room and be ready for the 11am escort.

If you have any questions please do not hesitate to call me or our Senior Executive Producer Nicole Young at (202) 457-0220.

Thanks for your help today,

Jennifer Hitchcock

April 18,2000

Dear Jenn,

As per our telephone conversation on April 18, 2000.

I am requesting that Washington Post Photographer, Dayna Smith (who has a hard pass) be allowed with Washington Post Reporter Silvia Moreno to cover the President and First Lady's remarks at the Egg Roll,and to have access to the Egg Roll also.

We want to really capture what the Egg Roll is and means to so many children in this area. We can't do that if we just do a quick hit and run. Let me know what kind of access we can have and who we coordinate this with. I look forward to hearing from you.

If you have any questions, please don't hesitate to contact me either by phone or email.

Silvia Moreno: DOB (b)(6) [007]

Dayna Smith Has a hard pass to the White House.

Sincerely,

Giuliana Nakashima

RE: Press information for Egg Roll

MORNING SHOWS

As in years past, Fox Morning News will again broadcast live from the South Lawn during the Easter Egg Roll. Fox will need access to the lawn starting at 4:45 a.m. for set-up, and will be off the lawn by 9 a.m. Unless you inform me otherwise, I will assume the Usher's Office will clear in their vehicles. (The First Lady's Press Office will clear in the driver and crewmembers.)

Nancy cleared Sunday.

ARRIVAL TIME:	4:45 a.m.
GATE:	SE Gate
VEHICLES:	1998 Ford Econovan (white); DC tag C-63530
	1998 Ford Taurus (silver); DC tag AG-7952

This year, Good Morning America will also broadcast live from the South Lawn. They will need to be on the lawn from 5 a.m. to 9 a.m., and will follow the same basic set-up that the Today Show has used in recent years. The GMA crew has already delivered their equipment to the briefing room, and will therefore not need to clear any vehicles or satellite trucks for the broadcast.

B-ROLL COVERAGE

In addition to the morning shows and the regular coverage of the President's remarks at the start of the Egg Roll, our office will be escorting crews around the lawn to get b-roll footage of the festivities. We will limit the number of crews on the lawn at any given time so as to not interfere with the planned activities.

Please call me this weekend if you have any questions or concerns. I should be in the office Saturday, and will be reachable by pager throughout the weekend.

CHAMBERS ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

Chambers Elementary School is located in East Cleveland. There are many wonderful things happening at this school. In addition to improvements to the building, Chambers is the recipient of an OHIO READS grant initiated by Governor Bob Taft. When the Governor visited the District last December, Brittany Smith, a third grader, read the class motto:

"The more you read, the more you know; the more you know, the smarter you grow; the smarter you grow, the stronger your voice, when speaking your mind and making your choice."

Because of this vivacious third grader, and the media attention, Gary Jacob, Producer of the White Easter Egg Roll, decided to invite Brittany and her entire third grade class to the White House for this historical event. Never before has this happened to any students in East Cleveland. The students will read from one of the stages and be part of the 2000 festivities.

WHITE HOUSE EASTER EGG ROLL
TALKING POINTS

- The Easter Egg Roll has been an American tradition since the mid-19th century. The celebration, begun on Capitol grounds, was moved to the White House's South Lawn in 1878 by Lucy Hayes, wife of President Rutherford B. Hayes. This is the 122nd White House Easter Egg Roll.

- 30,000 children and members of their families are expected for the festivities on the South Lawn. Those without tickets for the South Lawn activities can enjoy musical performances and refreshments on the Ellipse. (Incidentally, it was President and Mrs. Clinton who expanded the celebration to include the Ellipse in 1994 so that more children could participate in the Easter Monday celebration.)

- 250 terminally ill or disabled children from hospitals and hospice care in the Washington area are the first on the lawn at 8 a.m. (These children will be on the lawn for the last half of the morning shows.)

- In keeping with the White House Millennium Council's theme of honoring the past and imagining the future, this year's Easter Egg Roll will feature historical reenactments by actors portraying George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt, and Benjamin Bannecker.

- While honoring the past, the first Easter Egg Roll of the new millennium will also embrace a future in which people are more connected than ever. Many of the day's activities will be cybercast, allowing children from around the globe to take part in the festivities. Web users can link to the cybercast at the White House website (www.whitehouse.gov), as well as at many of the most popular children's and educational websites. (The webcast is coordinated by EarthLink.) This technology makes it possible for more people to see and hear this year's Easter Egg Roll than all the people who have attended White House Easter Egg Rolls since 1878.

- This year's Egg Roll continues to highlight Prescription for Reading, an innovative effort launched by the First Lady in 1997 to emphasize the importance of reading to children. Prescription for Reading uses the influence of doctors, health care professionals, librarians and others to ensure that all children become successful readers. As part of this initiative, children and families at the 2000 White House Easter Egg Roll will receive Prescription for Reading bookmarks signed by Mrs. Clinton and Surgeon General David Satcher.

- Administration officials reading to children this year include: Attorney General Janet Reno, White House Chief of Staff John Podesta, Secretary of Health and Human Services Donna Shalala, Secretary of Transportation Rodney Slater, Surgeon General David Satcher, Treasury Secretary Lawrence Summers, and Secretary of Education Richard Riley, among others.

- Celebrity story-tellers include Julie Andrews, who will read from her own children's book, Little Bo: The Story of Bonnie Boadicea, and Deborah Norville, reading from her book, I Don't Want to Sleep Tonight. Christopher Paul Curtis will read from his highly acclaimed Bud, Not Buddy, which was awarded the John Newberry Medal, the most prestigious award in children's literature. (Mr. Curtis is the first African-American to win this coveted award.)

- This year's official White House Easter Egg Roll poster, program and commemorative wooden eggs were designed by well-known artist Mary Engelbreit. Known throughout the world for her colorful and intricate designs, Ms. Engelbreit's artwork adorns more than 14 million greeting cards and 2,000 other products sold each year. Along with the Prescription for Reading bookmark and The White House Easter Egg Roll book, each child attending the Egg Roll will receive the official poster and commemorative egg designed by Ms. Engelbreit.

POTUS PARTICIPATION IN ANNUAL WHITE HOUSE EASTER EGG ROLL

DATE: Monday, April 24

LOCATION: Reception, State Floor
Event, South Lawn

TIME: 9:30 a.m. - 10:35 a.m.

STAFF CONTACT: Melinda Bates, 6-2324

I. PURPOSE

You participate in this annual White House Easter event by hosting a breakfast reception with receiving line for event sponsors, making remarks from a stage on the driveway, and blowing a whistle to start the egg rolling.

II. BACKGROUND

This is a traditional White House event, since Rutherford and Lucy Hayes, dating back to 1878. This is the 122nd White House Easter Egg Roll. We expect 30,000 guests. 250 terminally ill or disabled children from hospitals and hospice care in the Washington area are the first on the lawn at 8:00 am.

As always, children will again roll and dye eggs on the lawn. A 40' giant nest is available for children to play in. Presidential re-enactors, Cabinet Secretaries, the Chief of Staff, and others present stories, music and fables on five stages. This year's celebrity readers are Robert DeNiro, Julie Andrews, Deborah Norville, JK Rowling (author of Harry Potter). Mary Steenburgen and Ted Danson, Lance and Justin from 'N Sync, and Christopher Paul Curtis, who won both the Newberry Award and the Coretta Scott King award for Bud Not Buddy. He is the first person to win bothin the same year, and the first African American to win the Newberry.

"Beatrix Potter" and "Paddington Bear" join a host of other Easter and White House related strolling performers and costumed characters on the lawn.

Once again embassies are showcased in Springtime Traditions. Kodak provides digital photos with the White House in the background for families. Dole Foods sponsors musical stage entertainment about good nutrition. Each child takes home a souvenir wooden Easter egg, an Easter Egg Roll poster, a souvenir historical map of the south Lawn (provided by Jane Rosenthal, Craig Hadkoff and Robert DeNiro), a Prescription for Reading bookmark, and an Easter Egg Roll Book. 20,000 of these gifts will be given out. Our Easter Egg Roll producer is Gary Jacob, who has done this work for you for seven years.

In 1998 the Egg Roll was cybercast for the first time. We did not repeat the cybercast in 1999, because the audio and video technology was not yet as developed (clear) as we hoped. Now, in just two years, the technology has shot ahead with dramatic improvements in audio and video feeds. In the US alone, there are now 100 million computers with the capacity to hear and see this broadcast. Therefore, we have arranged that the 2000 Easter Egg Roll will be broadcast over the Internet, both on the day of the event, and, as archived material, for months after. Web users can link to the cybercast at the White House web site, at the Department of Education site, at EarthLink (world's second largest ISP) and at over 100 top Internet sites, including the most popular children's and educational sites.

Because of this cybercast, more people will be able to see and hear this final Clinton Egg Roll than all the people who have attended White House Easter Egg Rolls since 1878. You are truly opening the White House to the public in ways not imagined just a few years ago. Because anyone with a computer at home, at work, in a library or classroom will be invited "in" to the Egg Roll, it becomes more inclusive, engaging and educational than ever before. The cybercast of this event changes it forever in many of the ways you have both emphasized: it opens the White House to the people, it utilizes technology in easily accessible ways, and it promotes education in an enticing way. It is a true reinvention of government. This cybercast project is produced for us by Howard Lefkowitz, vice president of EarthLink, Inc., who brought us the original idea in 1998 and produced the first cybercast that year.

V. SEQUENCE OF EVENTS

You host sponsors and celebrity entertainers at a breakfast on the State Floor. These guests arrive on the State Floor at 8:30 am. You both go to the Blue Room at 9:30 am. There you receive the framed, original poster/program art from artist Mary Engelbreit of St. Louis. This is the first year the same artist provides the program and poster and egg art. She is a very popular and well known artist. Mary is accompanied by her mother.

You both then receive the annual special egg from American Egg Board Chairman Dolph Baker and President Lou Raffel. This egg was created by Natalie Stedman of Canandaigua, NY, a graduate of Pratt Institute School of Design. This blue egg has a jeweled door which opens to reveal the artist's interpretation of the First Lady's office. The view from the desk looks out the "window of opportunity" Mrs. Clinton has opened for so many during her years of service. Placed throughout the office are symbols of causes she has supported: a teddy bear for children, a medical symbol for health care, pictures to reflect her love of the arts.

You then greet all the sponsor guests, celebrities and their families in a receiving line. There are approximately 40 children in these family groups.

At 10:00 am you and the First Lady exit the state floor by the Red Room door, descending the steps to a stage on the driveway while the Marine Band plays In Your Easter Bonnet. On stage Mrs. Clinton makes brief remarks, then you make remarks, and blow the whistle handed to you by Bernie Fairbanks or a bunny. The egg roll lanes are directly in front of the stage; press are to your right. This year you will have a special whistle, in your pocket, to give back to Bernie Fairbanks, thanking him for his many years of Easter Egg Roll service. You then exit the stage, working the ropeline, if you wish. Some of your friends are gathered on the driveway to your left.

You proceed to the Diplomatic Reception Room. There you greet a Make-a-Wish family, Xxxxxxxxxxxx.

Next you greet guests from Easter Seals, in the Oval Office. (?)

THE WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON

April 20, 2000

Melinda Naumann Bates

[021] (b)(6) She attended Georgetown University's Institute of Languages and Linguistics. The first week of freshman year she met student Bill Clinton, who stuck out his hand and said "Hi, I'm Bill Clinton and I'm running for freshman class president". They have been friends ever since.

In the 1980s Ms. Bates was on staff at the National Gallery of Art, as an exhibition supervisor, organizing the large, special exhibitions which travel to this famous institution, starting with Treasure Houses of Britain, and including Impressionist Treasures from the USSR, Georgia O'Keeffe, Monet in Nice, and Japan, the Age of the Daimyo. Working with huge numbers of public visitors, smaller numbers of special guests, and celebrities of all kinds, and coordinating elegant special events turned out to be the perfect training for her current career as Director of the White House Visitors Office.

Ms. Bates was called to the White House on January 21, 1993, immediately following President Clinton's inauguration. She has served there ever since, making her one of the very few remaining original Presidential staff. Her lifelong friend, Bill Clinton, personally selected her for that position. She is the first Director of the Visitors Office to be appointed a Special Assistant to the President. Her office of seven staff, plus volunteers and interns administers all tours of the White House, some 1.5 million visitors each year. The Visitors Office also coordinates the larger special events at the White House, including the annual Easter Egg Roll, an event for 30,000 guests on Easter Monday. This is the largest event to take place at the White House each year, and requires a full year of planning. Other events include the July 4 fireworks viewing on the South Lawn for 12,000 White House staff and guests, arrival ceremonies for visiting heads of state, and special invitation tours for some 100,000 visitors who come to the White House each December to view the holiday decorations.

Ms Bates is divorced and the mother of Shiloh and Noah Bates. She hopes to remain in the Visitors Office until January 2001.
