TESTIMONY OF LARRY E. JOYCE

U.S. SENATE
ARMED SERVICES COMMITTEE

MAY 12, 1994

Mr. Chairman, on behalf of my wife, Gail, and my daughter-in-law, DeAnna, both of whom are here with me today -- as well as the rest of our family who are anxiously following the actions of this committee -- thank you, first of all, for calling this hearing.

I firmly believe my son, Casey, and his 17 brave comrades who gave their lives in Mogadishu last October are looking down on us right now and saying, "well done."

Secondly, I'm sure I'm speaking for all the families of those 18 courageous young men when I say "thank you" for ordering the thorough and conscientious investigation that your staff has recently completed.

We only hope that the Committee's inquiry into the policies and decisions that led to the tragedy that robbed our families and the nation of these incredibly dedicated young men will not end today.

We hope you will agree with us that the implications of those ill-fated policies and decisions also pose ominous threats for this country.

Only a thorough review and corrective action can prevent future Somalias.

I served two combat tours in Vietnam.

I survived the 1968 Tet Offensive.

And I want to tell the President and his administration: Now it's MY turn to protest.

Because my Ranger son and I, both, served the same bogus policy -- a generation apart.

I want them to know that I am pointing at that beautiful but sad memorial at the other end of the Mall -- the one that carries the names of 58,191 of my comrades -- and I'm asking, "When will we ever learn that committing troops to enforce an invalid foreign policy leads to disaster."

I wrote President Clinton on October 22 and asked to meet with him so I could implore him to get the foreign policy side of his administration in order.

I told him I didn't seek retribution, but only wanted to see future military disasters are avoided.

I wanted him to see for himself the grim parallel between the ill-fated policies of Presidents Kennedy and Johnson that I survived, and his Somalia policy that Casey did not survive.

The President called me on November 10 and told me he wanted to meet and discuss what I had learned during my informal investigation.

I followed up several times, only to be told he was too busy to meet with me.

He still hasn't fulfilled his promise.

So, Mr. Chairman, I'm doubly glad you fulfilled yours.

Our purpose here should be to tell every American who and what contributed to this tragic episode -- no matter how much the President and his advisers would like us to forget it along with the heroes who gave their lives in Mogadishu last October.

We should also let everyone -- especially the policy makers -- know the consequences of foreign policy that is developed haphazardly and implemented by amateurs.

Too frequently, policy makers are insulated from the misery they create.

If they could be with the chaplain who rings a doorbell at 6:20 in the morning to tell a 22-year-old woman she's now a widow, they'd develop their policies more carefully.

This is why this hearing and, hopefully, future hearings on Somalia are so important. This is why you must not stop here.

Call in the National Security Adviser. Ask him to explain his role.

Call in the Secretary of State and his key staff. Call in the Ambassador to the U.N. Call former and current DOD officials -- military and civilian.

Find out what role the President played.

In other words, don't just examine the actions of military field commanders. They had the unenviable task of having to implement a flawed mission.

They cannot answer the questions the White House has left unresolved:

And these are questions I would want asked:

Who changed our mission in Somalia from one of humanitarian relief to one of direct combat?

Why did they do it?

Why did we reduce our forces in Somalia from 30,000 to less than 5,000, and then launch offensive operations?

As you know, the vast majority of those remaining troops were in support units -- not combat units.

Who decided capturing Mohammed Farah Aidid was in our national interest?

Was it President Clinton, or did the Secretary General of the United Nations manipulate that decision?

If Boutros Boutros-Ghali extracted that decision from the administration-- if he put out a contract on Aidid and President Clinton took it -- then I contend that the President abdicated his constitutional and moral responsibility as commander-in-chief.

Why was only one company of Rangers sent to capture Aidid?

How would they be reinforced?

Why was the Specter gunship not available to them?

Why were they denied armor?

In short, this was an inadequate force structure from Day One. Why?

Did field commanders and staff officers advise against the frivolous mission the Ranger task force was eventually given?

I have enough faith in my old comrades-in-arms to say, "Yes they did." I hope I'm not wrong.

Surely, they said it would be virtually impossible to track down an expert in urban guerrilla warfare in the alleys of Mogadishu -- where he was once the police chief.

Surely, they said the intelligence apparatus in Somalia was inadequate to support such a mission.

And surely, they advised the administration that light infantry should never be committed into a situation where they are likely to become decisively engaged, with no way to reinforce or extract them.

Was this advice given? If not, why not? If it was, why was it ignored?

In late September, I wrote Casey and predicted that he and his fellow Rangers would be coming home in October because it was clear to me that the President had decided on a diplomatic rather than a military solution.

It was much later that I learned former President Carter had been in contact with Aidid and had reported back to President Clinton in September that a diplomatic solution was the only solution for Somalia.

I felt it was obvious that any political settlement would have to involve Aidid because he was the most stabilizing, if not the only stabilizing, influence in Somalia.

So, my question is a simple one: If the President had already decided, in September, to seek a diplomatic solution with Aidid, why were the Rangers ordered on October 3 to conduct a raid that, by its very nature, would be the most dangerous mission yet?

If we were going to negotiate with Aidid, why did we continue to put our soldiers at risk by trying to capture him and his henchmen?

And did we negotiate and collaborate with Aidid? We sure did. We didn't just negotiate, we catered to him.

Senators, I can't tell you how angry I was when I learned, two months after my son was killed, that the American mission in Somalia ordered American soldiers to provide Aidid an armed escort from his headquarters to the Mogadishu airport so he could be flown to Addis Ababa aboard a U.S. Army airplane.

It was Amateur Hour all over again!

And it's going to be hard to convince me that amateurs are not the cause of my son's death -- and the deaths of every soldier who was killed in Somalia last October.

Now, if he's listening, and I hope he is, I have a question for President Clinton.

Mr. President, if capturing Aidid was so important on August 22 when you ordered the Ranger task force to Somalia, why was capturing him suddenly so unimportant on October 4?

How do I explain to my family that Casey didn't die in vain?

Mr. President, he did die in vain because the mission you sent him on was seriously flawed and your weren't even committed to it.

He and his fellow Rangers, and the soldiers who fought to rescue them, were betrayed by an administration that gave them a no-win mission and didn't provide them the resources and moral support they desperately needed.

Mr. Chairman, if we learn nothing else from this foreign policy debacle it should be this: Before we send American troops into combat, three questions must be asked?

1. Is the mission attainable?
2. Are American national interests at stake? And perhaps most critical --
3. Are we willing to stay the course?

Now, apply those questions to Desert Storm and then to Somalia.

Desert Storm gets three thumbs up.

Somalia gets three thumbs down.

(PAUSE)

Maybe some of you remember where you were and what you were doing last October 3.

I certainly do -- as do all those who were closely associated with the events in Somalia that day.

My life was as close to being perfect as it had ever been -- or will ever be again. I had a 7:30 tee time at a public course that runs along Lake Michigan.

It was a cool and beautiful Sunday morning in Chicago.

But -- half way around the world -- it was a hot and dusty Sunday afternoon in Mogadishu where Casey and his Ranger and Delta Force comrades were taking off in helicopters.

While I was putting on the third green, Casey was dodging AK-47 rounds as he was rescuing PFC Todd Blackburn.

As I was trying to get out of the rough and on to the fifth fairway, Casey was fighting his way to the crash site where Warrant Officer Briley and Warrant Officer Wolcott were pinned in the wreckage.

As I was walking off the ninth green, some of Casey's buddies were fighting their way back to the Mogadishu airport in a Humvee with Casey's lifeless body on board.

In the time it takes to play nine holes of golf, a tragedy of enormous proportions had unfolded. Lives -- including my son's -- had been taken.

Other lives -- including my wife's, my daughter-in-law's, and my own life -- had been destroyed.

And yet, we are more fortunate than some. My heart aches for those mothers and fathers who know the bodies of their sons fell into Somali hands.

I emphasize with Jim and Carol Smith who live every waking moment wondering if Jamie would be alive today if he could have been evacuated before he bled to death.

I want to help Carmen Houston of Mobile, Alabama who can't get a straight answer on how her husband, SGT Cornell Houston, died.

He was assigned to C Company, 41st Engineer Battalion from Ft. Drum.

She can't even get an autopsy report.

If any member of this committee wants to help Carmen, please let me know.

The Rangers and the wives of the 3rd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment have been a great source of comfort and support to Gail, DeAnna and me.

They have my undying gratitude.

I'm grateful to you, Mr. Chairman, for your kindness when you met with Gail, the Smiths, and me last month at Ft. Benning.

Thank you, also, for inviting us to testify here today.

I'm also indebted to Rick DeBobes of this committee's staff for his candor and his responsiveness to my questions.

To certain members of this committee, especially Senator Hutchinson, and the other members of Congress, like Senator Gramm and Congressman Dornan, who reached out to us in those first few terrible weeks -- thank you for your compassion and your support.

But, to those who wish the nation would just forget what happened on October 3 -- forget those "unfortunate losses" President Clinton referred to last October when he was trying to get Somalia behind him -- let me close by reading the eulogy I gave my son so you, like I asked President Clinton to do, can put a face on at least one of those "unfortunate losses."

(READ EULOGY)

I might add that our pack is stronger now. It's been strengthened by the thousands of Americans who have expressed their support for us over the past seven months.

To each of them -- Thank You!

Mr. Chairman, members of the Committee, please take an important step so that Casey, Jamie Smith, Dominick Pilla, Cornell Houston and all the other brave young men who died and were wounded in Somalia did not do so in vain. Don't let this be your last hearing. You can make sure the mistakes of Somalia don't happen again.

Thank you for your attention.

TESTIMONY: SENATE ARMED SERVICES COMMITTEE
MAY 12, 1994
JAMES H. SMITH

STJ

Mr Chairman and Committee Members, I wish to express my appreciation for the opportunity to testify at this committee hearing. I would also like to take this opportunity to express my gratitude for the committee's diligent work in investigating the events preceding, during and after the Mogadishu battle of October 3, 1993.

My name is James H. Smith. I am joined today by my wife Caroline. Immediately after graduating from high school in 1965, I enlisted in the Army. I was only 17 years old, but I wanted to be a Paratrooper. I responded to the challenge of military life and was fortunate to attend Officers Candidate School. I was commissioned a Second Lieutenant in the Infantry and served in Vietnam with the 4th Infantry Division and the 25th Infantry Division. In July 1967, as member of the 3rd Brigade Task Force (Tropic Lightning), I was severely wounded in a firefight. I spent the next two years in an Army Hospital recovering. I survived, but my left leg was amputated just below the knee.

In the early evening of October 4, 1993, my wife Carol arrived home from work to be met by two Army officers. The officers performed their obligation with professionalism and compassion. Our son Jamie had been killed in action. Carol called me at work and I immediately left a business meeting to be with my family. That evening I met with the press. After the expected questions of: "How would you describe your son?", and, "What were his hobbies?" I was asked two very pointed questions: "Did my son's death serve a purpose?" -and- "Am I angry or do I blame anyone? My answer was also direct: "If my son's death can keep Somali children from starving, my son's death had a purpose", "No, I am not angry. My son was a Ranger. He knew the risks and so did I. I do not blame anyone!"

On October 12, 1993 Jamie was buried at Fort Benning. Immediately after the services I met with some of the veterans of the Mogadishu battle. They had bandaged arms, casts on their legs, walked with crutches and were in wheelchairs. We talked for several hours. I left that meeting with three firm beliefs:

First: My son's death served no purpose. His courage and sacrifice had been wasted.

Second: The Rangers had been betrayed. Denied proper combat support and unreliable U.N. allies, disaster was preordained. There must be accountability.

Third: I was angry. As a disabled Vietnam Veteran I had the responsibility, the obligation, to insure that my son's generation did not suffer the the fate of his father's generation.

My meeting, on October 12th, with the veterans of the Mogadishu battle was to be the first of many meetings and conversations. These contacts would be in the barracks, hospital, headquarters, on the telephone and in our home. I have spoken with virtually every veteran of that battle and the entire command structure - from squad leader to commanding general. Unknown to me at that time, Larry Joyce was proceeding on a parallel inquiry. When Larry and I met at the 3rd Ranger Battalion memorial service in November 1993, we compared our findings. We had independently come to the same conclusions.

I am in complete agreement with Larry's comments. However, I would add that beyond the failures of the White House leadership to supply proper combat support and mismanaging the Somalia policy; the unacceptable conditions that existed in Somalia with the United Nations officials and peacekeeping forces, as they negatively effected our troops, must be investigated.

Although the concept of a U.N. multinational peacekeeping force appears the appropriate direction for U.S. involvement in such conflict situations, the conditions in Somalia resulted in the Rangers being placed in a situation without reliable allies and, in certain cases, U.N. peacekeeping forces actually supporting the enemy. Specifically:

- * U.N. peacekeeping forces were fragmented by geographic areas of responsibility. Forces from one country routinely refused to come to the aid of another nation's military unit that was under attack if the battle was outside their geographic area of responsibility. For example: the Italians did not come to the aid of the Nigerians. Therefore, when the Americans required assistance the Malaysian had no desire to support the Americans - since the battle was not their concern.
- * Aidid's informers or sympathizers had completely infiltrated the U.N. bureaucracy, the peacekeeping forces and charitable organizations. Additionally there were numerous examples of U.N. officials and peacekeeping forces actively or tacitly supporting Aidid. Therefore, secrecy in military operations was impossible. For example: there were numerous reports of Aidid's forces using U.N. or charitable organization's radios and telephone as his military communications network.
- * Other than the U.S. forces, there was no effort on the part of other U.N. peacekeeping units to disarm the militia and maintain order. For example: Egyptian peacekeeping forces, rather than disarm the militia, would give receipts for weapons so that when the militia left their area the weapon could be returned.

- * Except for U.S. forces, the multinational peacekeeping units ignored their responsibilities to secure their areas and eliminate the flow of weapons into Mogadishu. Trucks would enter the Italian sector from outside the city and the Italian peacekeepers would only direct traffic and not inspect the trucks. The result was a buildup of weapons by Aidid's militia and the ability of this force to attack the Rangers with superior numbers and firepower.

These conditions could not be resolved by our military field commanders. These problems are strictly political in nature. Their resolution could only come from our political leaders demanding that the U.N. leadership correct the situation. This was never done, and to the best of my knowledge, correcting these conditions was never attempted. The result was my son's Commander-in-Chief allowed American troops into a combat situation that at best had unreliable allies, or at worse, allies that actively supported the man who had already killed American soldiers.

This condition is unacceptable. It is imperative that these issues be investigated and resolved. This resolution can only be satisfied by holding those in elected and appointed positions of authority accountable for their inaction or dereliction. This requires that additional hearings be held by the Armed Services Committee for these issues can only be answered by the White House staff members involved in the decision making process.

Specifically we must learn: What was the decision making process in the White House? Who was involved?. When were they involved? To what extent was the President, Vice President, National Security Advisor, Secretary of Defense, Secretary of State and the Ambassador to the United Nations involved? Additionally, what input did U.N. Envoy Jonathan Howe and U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros Ghali have on the deployment, combat support and rules of engagement decisions. To determine the cause of the Somalia fiasco these concerns must be clarified.

Our men and women in uniform deserve better than the "disaster waiting to happen conditions" that existed in Somalia. As a disabled Vietnam veteran, I do not want any young man or women to experience my pain when wounded; nor as a parent of a soldier killed in action, do I want other loved ones to experience my grief -- because of a flawed foreign policy or a failure to support our troops in battle.

Additional hearings must be held. Not as a witch hunt to blame field commanders. The officers made no tactical errors and the troops perform magnificently. Nor as revenge or retribution for past mistakes by elected or appointed officials. But as a quest for the truth so that future Vietnams and Somalias are avoided.

Last weekend my wife and I visited Arlington National Cemetery, not as tourists, but to honor the grave of Sergeant James C. Joyce. I had prepared myself emotionally for this pilgrimage, but I was not prepared for the reality. As I stood saying a silent prayer at Casey's grave, I noticed that to the left of Casey's grave was the grave of MSG Timothy Martin, and to the left of his grave was the grave of PFC Richard Kowalewski. With tears streaming down my face I remembered my first visit to the Vietnam Memorial. Over 58,000 names carved in stone. Now I was gazing upon three more names carved in stone - soldiers who gave the last full measure. Sadly, like the generation before them, the sacrifice of these three brave soldiers had been wasted.

It is probable that America's military will be called to battle in the future. However, our men and women in uniform must never again be placed in a "Somalia" situation. A quarter of a century ago my generation was ground up in the rice paddies and jungles of Vietnam. We must not allow the next generation to suffer the same fate. If additional hearings are not held, I fear that more Americans will suffer the fate of Vietnam and Somalia.

Thank-you!

SUBJECT: Case of Somali Police General Ahmed Jama Musse

DATE: May 10, 1994

The attached memo offers several ways of resolving the agonizing case of Ahmed Jama, without setting a binding precedent which would require the United States to indemnify/compensate anyone who could prove he/she or their property had been damaged by US forces. It also talks about a reasonable sum (rather than the astronomical sum which the lawyer initially requested and obviously now regrets). I believe it is in US interests, for several reasons, to resolve the case satisfactorily, (inter alia to keep it from becoming a public issue in this country). There is the moral argument, which is especially strong because of the magnitude of the error made by US forces. (This sort of action shows much less concern about Somali life, much more undisciplined hostility, and much more absence or disregard for common sense as well as standing orders than other cases involving US forces. It should have been so obvious that Jama was in no way a threat or a member of a hostile organization.) Then there is the argument of his having played an important role in helping UNITAF and USLO establish the interim police force and providing valuable political advice. (I can attest to this personally, since Jama met with me frequently. So can senior UNITAF officers). And there is the argument that he can still be valuable to the UN, the US and Somalia in the current program we are sponsoring jointly to develop a Somali police force. He has a powerful reputation for integrity and professionalism.

By using the police connection, one can fend off others who might ask for similar compensation, as well as justify helping Jama as part of the ongoing program.

It is always difficult to obtain a consensus within the Executive Branch on this sort of issue, given the plethora of cautionary legal and fiscal arguments. However, in my judgement, if you three could arrive at a common position on what compensation to provide Jama and how to do it, the lawyers and comptrollers would be able to support it. I urge you to do so, starting with getting him into Walter Reed when he is ready to leave Saudi Arabia next month.

Re: General Ahmed Jama Musse, Former
 Commandant, Somali National Police Force

Dear Ambassador Oakley:

I am representing General Ahmed Jama Musse, whom I have known for more than 25 years, with respect to his claims for injuries and loss of property sustained as a result of actions of the 214th Quick Reaction Force, Falcon Brigade, Alpha Company, in September 1993. Ann Wright suggested that I contact you.

Enclosed is a copy of my last letter to Ambassador James Dobbins which summarizes the status of discussions with the Departments of State and Defense concerning the General's claims.

I would appreciate the opportunity to meet with you to discuss what can be done on the General's behalf.

Sincerely,

O'DONNELL, SCHWARTZ & ANDERSON, P.C.

ICITAP Police Training in Somalia

Program Developments

- o ICITAP has established training facilities on the UNOSOM compound in Mogadishu and the Indian military compound in Baidoa. The temporary training center in Mogadishu has four classrooms with space for 120 students.
- o ICITAP has its logistics system in place to deliver equipment and supplies to support the program.
- o Instructors have been identified and hired to teach five courses.
- o ICITAP has adapted its training courses and plans for use with the Somali police.
- o ICITAP's project manager has secured the cooperation of officials in the UNOSOM military and civilian police training programs.

Delivery of Equipment and Training

- o ICITAP has donated and demonstrated the use of record-keeping supplies to police at twenty stations in the Indian AOR.
- o Three training teams of 2-3 persons each are enroute to or already in Nairobi waiting country clearance to travel to Mogadishu.
- o These teams will instruct Somali trainers. They want to run three sections of the basic refresher course between April 26 and May 19 in Mogadishu and Baidoa. The teams also will teach a course on the care, use and secure storage of the .45 caliber pistol and the M16 rifle provided from DOD surplus stocks.
- o Three additional courses are scheduled in May: Station Administration, Urban Disorder/Security, and Police Personnel Systems.

TABLE D

STATUS REPORT

FY1994 PLANNED DFA OBLIGATIONS OF $12 MILLION

Bureau for Africa has budgeted for FY1994 $12 million of Development Fund for Africa (DFA) funds for programming in Somalia.

The split of funds is as follows:

UNICEF--Integrated Health and Nutrition Project
$3.0 million

UNICEF Somalia will help to rebuild the foundation for primary health care in Somalia. It will be concentrated in the central and southern zones of Somalia.

World Food Programme--Food Security and Infrastructure Rehabilitation Project
$2.0 million

WFP Somalia will expand and extend its programs in Somalia into development activities. WFP will directly implement development activities using food as a resource. It will also help to establish essential food and crop monitoring activities in the central and southern zone.

CARE--Somalia Rehabilitation and Reconstruction Project
(PVO Umbrella grant)
$4.6 million

Funds to be added to a cooperative agreement with CARE Somalia to execute subgrants with indigenous and international PVOs in the areas of health, agriculture and employment generation. $1.5 million of sub activities already funded for subprojects such as SCF/UK health program in Somaliland and health education program in Bari region.

UNDP--UN Development Office for Somalia
$2.0 million

UNDP Somalia will use funds to establish Office that will (a) support Somali regional and national institutions to plan and manage rehabilitation and reconstruction and provide a secretariat for the SACB and its standing committee.

Program Design and Support
$0.4 million

Funds will be used for program related design and development studies.
