REGIONAL CONFERENCE SUMMARY REPORT:
WHITE HOUSE CLIMATE CHANGE CONFERENCE

Location: _____

Number of attendees: _____

KEY FINDINGS:

I. Climate Science and Health and Environmental Impacts

1. What were the key conclusions reached by attendees concerning the current state of science related to climate change? What evidence was found to be most compelling? What areas of uncertainty were identified for additional research?
2. From the region's perspective, which of the possible health or environmental impacts were found to be most of concern? From the national and global perspectives, which areas of potential impact were of most concern?
3. Based on the available evidence, was the prevailing view of the attendees that an adequate scientific basis existed for prudent action to be taken?

II. The Role of Technology

4. From the regional perspective, what technologies appear most promising for reducing greenhouse gas emissions?
5. What are the actions that the government and private sector should consider to spur these technological advances?

III. Economic Impacts

6. From the region's perspective, what are the likely economic impacts of taking action to reduce greenhouse gas emissions?
7. What steps can be taken to minimize any adverse impacts?
8. What policies make it most possible to reduce greenhouse gas emissions while maintaining our economic prosperity?

IV. International Issues

9. Given the global nature of this issue, what are key aspects of any international accord?
10. Are there ways to structure a global treaty which achieves the greatest reductions for the lowest costs? Which treats equitably developed and developing countries?

V. Other Issues

Key impacts on early panel

REGIONAL CONFERENCE SUMMARY REPORT:
WHITE HOUSE CLIMATE CHANGE CONFERENCE

Location: _____
Number of attendees: _____

KEY FINDINGS:I. Climate Science and Health and Environmental Impacts

1. What were the key conclusions reached by attendees concerning the current state of science related to climate change? What evidence was found to be most compelling? What areas of uncertainty were identified for additional research?
2. From the region's perspective, which of the possible health or environmental impacts were found to be most of concern? From the national and global perspectives, which areas of potential impact were of most concern?
3. Based on the available evidence, was the prevailing view of the attendees that an adequate scientific basis existed for prudent action to be taken?

II. The Role of Technology

4. From the regional perspective, what technologies appear most promising for reducing greenhouse gas emissions?
5. What are the actions that the government and private sector should consider to spur these technological advances?

III. Economic Impacts

6. From the region's perspective, what are the likely economic impacts of taking action to reduce greenhouse gas emissions?
7. What steps can be taken to minimize any adverse impacts?
8. What policies make it most possible to reduce greenhouse gas emissions while maintaining our economic prosperity?

IV. International Issues

9. Given the global nature of this issue, what are key aspects of any international accord?
10. Are there ways to structure a global treaty which achieves the greatest reductions for the lowest costs? Which treats equitably developed and developing countries?

V. Other Issues
