President Nixon said in 1968 that the Spanish-speaking people of America would cease to be the "forgotten" minority under his Administration.

Thus you have but a sampling of what President Nixon has done for the Spanish-speaking people of America. It serves, however, to convey how well the President has remembered his country's "forgotten" people, and shows the direction of his future efforts that point to the day when it will be a minority forgotten no more - and by no one.

Spanish Speaking Fact Sheet

In 1968 Richard Nixon promised the Spanish-speaking people that they would not take a back seat to any other Americans in receiving appropriate government programs and aids. The President has kept his promise. Here is his record.

Appointments - To better understand-and solve- the problems of Spanish Americans, the President has brought the Spanish-speaking into his administration.

Now Spanish-speaking Americans are directly influencing the government programs that affect their lives. He has appointed nearly fifty Spanish-speaking Americans to executive level, policy making government positions; over five times more than the Kennedy and Johnson Administrations combined. These positions include:

Romana Banuelos - Treasurer of the United States
Henry Ramirez - Chairman, Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for the Spanish-speaking people.
Philip Sanchez - Director, Office of Economic Opportunity.

He initiated the "16 Point Program" to bring Spanish-Americans into all levels of government. As a result more Spanish-speaking persons were hired in the past year than people of any other group.

He set up a Cabinet Committee on Opportunities for the Spanish-speaking People and directed it to develop new programs for Spanish-speaking Americans. The President and the Chairman of the Committee meet four times a year to discuss Spanish-speaking concerns.

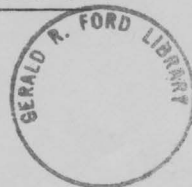

Education - President Nixon has created special programs for Spanish-speaking children.

He has developed the concept of bi-lingual education into a way of life. Today Spanish-speaking children learn in Spanish as they progress in English. At the same time they enjoy and appreciate the rich history and culture of the country of their parents.

He has increased funds for the Office of Economic Opportunity to provide college opportunities for Spanish-speaking youth from inner city schools.

He has supported special programs which help migrant children to reduce their drop out rate and realize college potential.

Housing - Under President Nixon, innovative housing programs have been undertaken, which provide both better homes and more jobs for Spanish-speaking Americans. Today 87 housing projects providing over 6,000 units of low income housing are being built by Spanish-American contractors, subcontractors, and workers - for Spanish-American families.

Health - President Nixon has approved more and more funds for improved health care programs especially for Spanish-Americans.

Under his administration the Office of Economic Opportunity has established a network of health care clinics which provide medical and dental health to Spanish-speaking Americans.

His Department of Health Education and Welfare now provides a comprehensive health care program for migrant workers from maternal and child health services to out-patient clinics and disease control programs.

Economic Opportunities- President Nixon has worked to increase business and job opportunities for Spanish-speaking Americans.

He created the Office of Minority Business Enterprise which has helped to develop 28 Spanish-owned businesses. As these businesses grow, they will provide more and more jobs for other Spanish-Americans, and contribute to the growth of the Hispanic community.

He has helped Spanish-speaking business during the past four years through the efforts of the Small Business Administration. The SBA made over $58 million in loans last year alone to Spanish-speaking Americans.

He has provided opportunities for Spanish-speaking communities to form their own banks. After a twelve month period, Spanish owned banks had nearly $64 million in deposits.

He has helped unemployed Spanish-speaking Americans to learn new skills and go on to new jobs through his Department of Labor's manpower programs. Last year alone nearly 197,000 Spanish-speaking persons benefited from these training and work programs.

Drugs - President Nixon has moved to combat drug abuse in Spanish-speaking communities. His Drug Abuse Program is providing special programs in drug education and treatment with rehabilitation programs for Spanish-Americans who already have a drug problem.

BILINGUAL EDUCATION

1968	0 million dollars	0 children involved
1969	7.5 million dollars	27 thousand children involved
1970	21.2 million dollars	59 thousand children involved
1971	25 million dollars	86 thousand children involved
1972	35 million dollars	106 thousand children involved
1973	41 million dollars budgeted for	125 thousand children

The President has moved to assist the children in the Spanish-speaking community by providing the means to achieving a bi-lingual, bi-cultural education. The programs continue from grade school through college level.

One hundred thousand dollars starts off the bi-lingual program in Hayward, California. In five years 1.3 million dollars will have been used to teach both Spanish and English to Spanish-speaking and other children.

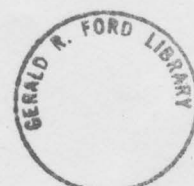

70 million dollars have been spent over the past 3 years in 49 districts of Texas. "7 year old Jose is no longer being told that he must call himself 'Joe'," says Raul Munoz, the Director of the Dallas program.

Spanish one day, English the next is the system used in the San Diego school programs. They use the same system for parents' meetings. Federal funds provided headphones so that the parents could have instant translations. Hundreds of visitors from all over the country have come to see how the program works.

In Austin four year olds get bi-lingual education to get ready for kindergarten while their older sisters and brothers do third grade math in Spanish. Non-migrant children help the migrants. Shortly the project will move up to the junior and senior high school levels.

The Federal Government's Office of Education has provided 1 million dollars to decrease the number of high school dropouts. The University of California at Santa Cruz works with Mexican-American students who will get their degrees after taking courses in either English or Spanish, whichever is stronger. They will then qualify for teaching credentials.

The first bi-lingual college campus is in Calexico, California. The college stresses the prestige of Mexican history and culture.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

President Nixon has taken active measures to encourage equality in provisions for economic development opportunities. He appointed Hilary Sandoval of Texas to head the Small Business Administration. Mr. Sandoval is the first Spanish-speaking person to hold this important position.

As part of the President's supplemental budget, contracts totaling nearly $4 million were awarded to five Spanish-speaking oriented business developments in February of 1972. They include:

1. National Economic Development Association - $2,860,000 to provide business assistance to Spanish-speaking businessmen throughout the nation.
2. Puerto Rican Forum - $600,000 for business assistance services to Spanish-speaking persons in the New York area.
3. Colorado Economic Development Association - A one year contract for $280,000 to assist Spanish-speaking economic development in Colorado.
4. East Los Angeles Community Union (TELACU) - A contract for $140,000 for business assistance services to Spanish-speaking applicants in the Los Angeles area.
5. South Bronx Puerto Rican Development Corporation - a one year contract for $115,000 to provide guidance and counsel to Spanish-speaking businesses.

Nearly $3 million was awarded by the Commerce Department to agencies to assist groups, especially the Spanish-speaking, seeking to establish and develop business assistance - financial, technical and advisory.

The Small Business Administration made over 2,500 loans totaling approximately $58 million in 1971 alone to Spanish-owned businesses, 50% more in number of loans, and 60% more in dollars than the previous year.

The Office of Minority Business Enterprise was created by President Nixon's Executive Order. Its purpose is to make available to every American who desires them:

1. Management skills.
2. Opportunity for creating a new business or expanding an existing one.
3. Access to adequate capital.
4. Continuing managerial and technical assistance.

With the Treasury, OMBE launched a joint government/private business bank deposit program. At the end of the first year, Spanish owned banks received nearly $64 million in deposits

MIGRANT PROGRAMS FOR SPANISH SPEAKING

President Nixon has recognized that the migrant and seasonal farm workers in this country represent an invaluable underdeveloped human resource. He has taken firm action toward making more opportunities available to migrants in education, job training, job placement and economic development.

The following few facts represent only a small part of the total program dedicated to providing greater opportunities for migrants, 80 percent of whom are Spanish-speaking Americans:

Approximately $65 million in funds from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare enabled 47 states to operate migrant programs in 1972. The number of Spanish-speaking children participating in these programs has increased from about 64,000 to nearly 240,000 in just a few years.

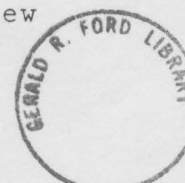

A total of 13.4 million has been allocated from H.E.W. specifically for migrant health services. As a result, a comprehensive health care program has been developed which provides care for migrant workers from maternal and child care services to out-patient clinics. An important part of this program is a $760,000 allocation for migrant disease control programs.

Head Start funds from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare now amount to $51 million. These programs are providing an extra learning opportunity to 25,000 Spanish-speaking migrant and seasonal farm workers each year.

The High School Equivalency Program, administered through the office of Economic Opportunity, recruits students from the migrant stream and rural areas of America. Students live on campus and receive financial support while they attend classes in preparation for the High School Equivalency Test. After they obtain their diplomas, they are either placed into a job situation or placed into a college or university to pursue a professional, business or vocational career. To date, approximately 176 of these former drop-outs have continued into college and 2,341 now have productive employment. Most of the students in H.E.P. programs are Spanish-speaking Americans.

The Department of Labor has allocated $15 million for a special migrant worker program, known as "The Last Yellow Bus." This program served nearly 4,000 migrant workers the first year, providing them with valuable marketable skills which allow them to settle out of the migrant stream.

Migrant Economic Development Programs are funded by the Office of Economic Development. These migrant businesses are provided with loans and assistance to get the business off the ground and running efficiently. Current economic development projects now serving Spanish-speaking people include a cattle feeder cooperative in New Mexico and a modular construction corporation in California.
