

In addition everything we buy save a few items have taxes imposed upon them, cutting down our opportunities for purchasing those items not taxed. As a consumer I find Phase II prices escalating and my husband's income remaining constant.

Now you probably ask why am I continuing my education, why don't I work also? Mr. President, if you worked for $2.50 per hour and spent $1.00 per hour for child care, until the local, state, and federal taxes were deducted, I probably wouldn't have enough to cover my gasoline necessary for transportation!

I also have additional reasons for continuing my education. Two years ago, we were residing in your native state, California. My husband was going to work at his normal time-4:15 A.M, our child was three weeks old. I hope you will take the time to read the enclosed traffic accident report. Upon checking with the Lynwood Police Department, I found that Mr. Lopez had already an esteemed criminal record, why was he on the road in the first place? This accident has cost us $7093.94--Manual Lopez was held for ninety days and was put out on probation with the stipulation that he repay us the hospital fee of $4,500.00. To date, even after writing the Los Angeles Probation Department, we have received a mere $200.00! My husband has had two operations and requires a third; he will need medical treatment until his death. And to top it all, I have to hire a lawyer, Mr.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Waltemath:

The President has asked me to thank you for your recent letter concerning the Administration's position on aid to non-public schools. This past June and again in August, when testifying on H.R. 16141 (the Carey-Mills bill), Administration spokesmen publicly endorsed legislation for tax credits for tuition to non-public schools. This, in President Nixon's judgment and the judgment of others concerned with the crisis of the non-public schools, is the most promising way to obtain that help.

You may be assured that the President will not relax his efforts until he is convinced the non-public school system is on the road to recovery. This is essential, for pluralism in education is an American tradition which supports the diversity of our society. America's non-public schools enrich not only those who attend them and those who teach in them, but all of us in this land. Our non-public schools need help, and the President is irrevocably committed to providing that assistance.

With my best wishes,

Sincerely,

Dear Sir: Lucy D. Waltemyer

I recently received your answer via L.M. Pellerzi in a numbered reply--ARC-37-3-132. I thank you for your reply; however, I feel disappointed with the contents of the reply; it offered no directional course to follow.

I realize that I am one of 2 million people from whom you receive complaints, but I also realize that I have an annual income under $5000.00 of which approximately $1400.00 will be returned to the Federal and State governments--the largest expenditure to the Federal government. Aren't I supporting a government which views me only as a computerized number which pays yearly federal income tax?

You do realize that the offender, Mr. Lopez, is out on probation not meeting the requirements of his probation dictated by law and that this incident can be repeated upon another innocent victim?

Is it only if he tries to murder a Federal employee that it becomes recognized as "Federal Interest?" Sir, is it asking too much for you to understand the financial hardship incurred from this unnecessary incident; are we not justified in complaining over California's 2½ year put-off for a court date?

Can we really afford as a nation to compartmentalize justice? When you and Mrs. Nixon send your best wishes, as your recent campaign telegram recently said, ask yourselves.

Respectfully yours,

Lucy D. Waltemyer

Dear President Nixon:

First, let me say how very proud I was to see you take the courageous action you did to bring our prisoners home. I am confident that without the heavy bombing of key targets and the mining of the harbors, our men would not have been released. For these very tough decisions which you so courageously made, every true American Citizen owes you a heartfelt thanks. I, personally, most humbly and gratefully thank you.

I am also extremely grateful to you, Sir, for the strong and tough stand you are taking on law enforcement and drug abuse. Having headed the Senate investigation of the International Narcotics Traffic and its Impact on U. S. Security, I am very conscious of the terrible danger facing our Nation from the threat of drugs. I firmly believe that this problem must be solved inside our borders. We must eradicate the drug pushers and the addicted. These two groups constitute the market and so long as the market is here we will not be able to stop the majority of the supply, either at its source, in foreign countries, or during transient to the U. S. market.

The President

I am also convinced that our drug problem is not one to be solved primarily by our national and state governments. It is a community "illness" and must be solved at the community level with support from the state and national level.

May God continue to bless you, Mr. President, in your burdensome and awesome duties.

Dear Dick:

Knowing of your interest in psychological initiatives, I thought you might like to know about two recent developments.

Several of us, working on our own time and primarily through friends on the Hill, have forced the Kennedy Center to withdraw an anti-American film from the festival which will mark the opening of the new movie theatre at the Center next week. 'State of Siege,' the film in question, is described by its maker as being designed to justify intellectually and morally the killing of American diplomats. Details attached.

On a more positive note, we have suggested to the Department of State that immediate thought be given to how we can use the decoration of our new Liaison Office in Peking to help convey America's message to people who have shut themselves off from the world for nearly 25 years. It is my feeling that an outstanding job can be done at almost no cost to the American taxpayers by exploiting talent which has been offered to us free by such organizations as the National Geographic Society, and possibly Walt Disney Productions. Details on this proposal, which has been sent separately to John Holdridge, are also attached.

4/2 Farm Wife March 30, 1973

Dear Mr. Nixon farmer

RE I am a farmers wife and have two sons that are trying to farm. One of my boys has been in the National Guard for seven years and my other son spent fourteen months in Vietnam with the 4th Infantry and was in the very worst part of the fighting.

How do you suppose they can even begin to farm? Have you checked the price of tractors, wire, fertilizer, work clothes, implements to say nothing about the price of cars, shoes, hospitals, dentists, doctors, insurance, lumber, utilities, and above all (Labor)?

Every week you change the farm program.

Why do you let George Meany govern you in your decisions? Are you just for big business and corporations?

Some of the people in these United States don't even know what a farm looks like.

Would you and Mr. Meany care to come out here and move some of these feed bunks from one mud hole to another so your cattle can eat, (to feed the ignorant city people) and be sent to market? We invite you and any one else to come and drag through this ③ mud and see how much the farmer is making.

The farmers have taken this sitting down for a good number of years. Because no one, not even you, our President will listen to us.

Why don't you put a ceiling on everything else that we have to buy? Did you ever check the price of a pickup, which a farmer must have.

We are not like the woman who is trying to live on $9,000 a year. We live on much less than that. We don't have two snow-mobiles nor a swimming pool. We do have gardens and we do can all summer. We don't buy

(4) T. V. dinners and potted pies and ready made pie trip
and a few of the other easy ready made food stuffs. Did you and the house wife ever stop to think about these things?

So, just because some ignorant woman sends you
peanut butter sandwiches
because she can't afford to buy meat, you have to put a ceiling on meat only! why don't you check her and she if she minds
the high price of tobacco, liquor, movies and a few other non-necessities.

I say again, if you are
to put a ceiling on meats
why not on labor? Cut back

⑤ your prices on all other products.

Also, why do you let this abortion law persist? Don't you know this is murder? Why would it be any more legal to kill an unborn baby than it would to put to death an elderly person who is just existing?

Mrs. Bettie Waltemath
King City

doubt that you, Mr. Nixon, will ever read this letter, but I at least feel that the farmers wife can at least voice an opinion

Dear Mr. Miller:

This is in further reference to my letter of March 14 acknowledging your cordial invitation to the President to address the Walt Whitman High School Commencement.

This invitation has been held for consideration as the President's schedule for June was planned but as the official calendar has developed, it is now evident that it will not be possible for him to participate in the commencement ceremony on June 14. The President has asked me to express his thanks for your thoughtful invitation.

With the President's continued best wishes,

Sincerely,

Terrence O'Donnell
Deputy Special Assistant to the President

Mr. Jonathan D. Miller
