William D. Hassett, Secretary to The President,
The White House,
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Hassett:

Your gracious acknowledgement of my earlier contribution to the campaign impels me to send you herewith, for the President, a copy of an unpublished chapter from my suppressed book which deals with the isolationists records, and the use made of them, of Messrs J.S. Kemper and H. Hoover. x 115

With this mss I also enclose copy of Mr. Hoover's little book "Shall We Send Our Youth to War", which was published a few weeks before Hitler invaded Poland in 1939 and is still being distributed (I bought this copy on West 45th Street, New York City, today).

I decided that I should send the copy of the book itself with the mss of my own use of it so that, should the President desire to quote Mr. Hoover's own words in his address on Saturday evening he would not need to rely upon those excerpts which appear in my mss.

I can imagine no more effective way of developing the actual future menace of Mr. Dewey's background, as far as the public is concerned, than by disclosing at this time some of this Hooverian maudlin pacificism in its context with the near approach to treason in this volume of propaganda. Incidentally it appears that Mr. Hoover is still collecting his royalties on this vile stuff while the nation's youth are dying to prevent the war from being fought in New Jersey and New York instead of Holland and Germany.

France is not alone in having a Laval.

Sincerely

Howard W. Ambruster

Dear Mr. Adams:

The President has asked me to thank you for your letter of November fourteenth and for your kindness in sending him that photograph. He is most appreciative, too, of your expression of confidence in his leadership.

I regret that I must return the other copy of your picture to you unsigned by the President. He is so extremely busy with the many urgent official duties demanding his attention every hour of the day that we have found it necessary to ask that he be excused from complying with requests for his signature. I am truly sorry to disappoint you.

RECEIVED

The President
White House
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President:

During all these difficult years, since you have made your home in the White House, I have had a feeling of confidence and happiness in the knowledge that the guidance of our country has rested in your hands.

Your voice and the messages it conveys, coming into my home by means of the radio, have aroused a deep affection that cannot be expressed by mere words.

Inspired by these emotions, I have made a photographic copy of the portrait that appeared in Sunday's New York Times.

I am sending you herewith two copies of this photograph.

One, I hope that you will keep for yourself.

I will consider it a great honor if you will be good enough to autograph the other and return it to me in the enclosed folder.

I shall always prize it as one of my most valued possessions.

Most sincerely yours,

Irving P. Adams

Dear Mr. President:

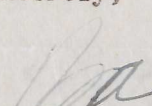

A friend has purchased this book, "The Gentlemen Talk of Peace," and has asked that we send it to you.

It has been described as one of the most important books written in this decade. Its author is William B. Ziff, who wrote the 1942 best seller, "The Coming Battle of Germany."

"The Gentlemen Talk of Peace," published by Macmillan November 14, is not a peace plan but a realistic account of the underlying factors in existence in the world without which the true situation cannot be understood.

I trust you will enjoy reading "The Gentlemen Talk of Peace."

Sincerely,

Ben Abramson

Dear Mr. President:

As a private citizen interested with you in permanent peace, with three sons fighting in the Navy, I earnestly and respectfully ask you to consider the following:

There can be no lasting peace built upon nationalism, commercialism, or might. In the past all these foundations have crumbled and fallen. There are alarming recent signs that history may repeat itself.

Lasting peace can be built only upon those unselfish principles of brotherhood proclaimed by the Man of Galilee. Whether Christianity is accepted as a religion or as a philosophy it is the last hope of humanity for freedom from greed, hate, and war.

If this spirit is not emphasized and included at the peace table another death warrant will be signed for millions of human beings.

With faith in you and with appreciation of your powerful influence and grave responsibility I present to you Blue Skies Beyond (pages 189-199) which express the convictions of millions whose sons are suffering and dying for our American ideals.

A voice from the people who furnish the men of war should be considered.

Very sincerely,

ANDERSON WOOD WORKING COMPANY

INCORPORATED

LOUISVILLE KENTUCKY

December 11, 1944.

Dear President Roosevelt:

This will acknowledge letter received today from your Secretary, Miss Grace G. Tully, and it is a pleasure to advise that I am sending you by Express, a Marqueterie, which features the B-29 Superfortress.

This plaque, of course, made of wood -- our product -- shows the real beauty that can be obtained in high grade woodwork. There are sixteen different kinds of wood featured in this plaque, and shows the Superfortress emerging from the storm, in which the black clouds are featured in Dark Rosewood Crotch Veneer; the lighter clouds above and below in Maple Burl and Madrone Burl, also there are several of the clouds in Amboyna Burl. The sun, of Satinwood, breaking through these clouds shows its reflection on the ocean in which Stained Curly Maple is used. The shadow of the plane, as reflected on the ocean, shows Narra and Walnut. The plane itself is of English Harewood, with its white lines of Holly, and with the Engine and Propellers of French Walnut and Macassar Ebony. The other woods, as shown on the attached memorandum, are featured in the clouds and on the border surrounding the inlay.

Extending to you the Season's Greetings, I am,

Sincerely,

Frank C. Anderson

Maple Burl	U. S. A.	Boxwood	West Indies

Amoth Says He Will Not Run as Independent

His decision not to run as an independent candidate for governor of Wisconsin was announced here last night by Ralph F. Amoth, one of the three unsuccessful candidates for the Progressive nomination for governor at the Aug. 15 primary.

Amoth, who had previously announced that he was contemplating running as an independent candidate at the November election, declared that he wished to devote his
"entire time and effort to the re-election of our president."

The text of his statement follows:

"After due consideration I have definitely decided not to become a candidate for the office of governor of Wisconsin on an independent ticket. I feel I want to devote my entire time and effort to the re-election of our president, F. D.

The President of the United States

The White House

Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President:

I am indeed happy to have the honor of writing to extend my congratulations to you on your coming fourth-term inauguration. You are certainly well able to, as well as, deserving of the position you hold to conduct the United States of America. Millions of Americans, I am sure, believe as I do. We all realize very well the responsibilities you are now shouldering, but God will help you to have the energy and the strength to withstand all the difficulties in your present term of office.

The whole world looks toward you and is patiently awaiting your judgment in the National situation after the Victory is won, for they trust in your great leadership. When Victory is here, the people shall rise up and listen, just as the bible says, "When Christ will come to the world, all will rise up and listen."

Among the suffering nations of the world, is one small suffering nation, namely Armenia. The people of this country have been in their state of misery for centuries and centuries, and they are also patiently waiting for Victory and praying for your health and blessing from God. They are expecting your kind mercy, as stated in the late President Wilson's "Fourteen Points", -- Self-determination, -- the right for each nationality to decide its own political status.

I offer this gift as a little remembrance. Perhaps at sometime when you are tired, you can enjoy some of these cigarettes, which you have previously sampled.

Dear Miss Ayres:

Mrs. Roosevelt has referred to me your very nice letter of January twenty-ninth, addressed to her. The President is most appreciative of your kind offer to make a slip cover for his chair. However, as the furniture in his office makes a complete set, we feel that a slip cover on his chair would not appropriately fit in.

You are more than kind to offer to make this gift to the President, but we hope you will understand the reasons for declining.

With every best wish,

it states "for the use of

It also describes a route "To Paris by way of Tomins and then Somme". In the telling, it is mentioned of "epidemic of paralysis of vocal chords among editors, professors etc.". There is a curious

Between these two widely separated bringing psychological insight to has succeeded in presenting a three-dimensional portrait of one of the most elusive and contradictory

entangled our interest to the extent that we not only account for him;
we largely exculpate him. Never, we

Dear Mr. President:-

The portrait which I am sending you, was drawn the same day that the United States of America declared war on Japan. It is now the most important date in the history of this country.

I remember Theodore Roosevelt's visit to my birthplace, San Juan, Puerto Rico, in 1906. I was a little boy at the time, and fortunate enough to shake hands with him.

Since then, I was sure that this country would be safe in the hands of the Roosevelt family.

I am not a man of means, and having a large family, all born in the U. S., I was not able to have any art training; I am self taught.

In order to show my appreciation to you for what you have done for this country I would consider it a great honor if you would accept the portrait I am sending you.

God be with you till Victory is won.
