11 June, 1933.

Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt,
On Board the "Amberjack II"
Marion, Mass.

Dear Mr. Roosevelt:

Knowing of your personal interest in the Navy of our Country, and having had the advantage of reading an article by you, in the New York Evening Post, Dec. 28, 1914, which gave me much valuable information, I am taking the liberty of asking your acceptance of a book, written by myself, entitled, "A Son of Old Ironsides", which I am sending you by parcel-post, to the same address. I hope you may find time during your cruise to look into its pages, for while it is intended primarily for boys of younger age than you; as our mutual friend, Admiral Philip Andrews said, it is "Just the book for a live boy, old or young".

added 7-6-33 em

x 365-

x P.P.F. 7/23

Admiral Andrews has told me of the lively interest and efficient aid you gave to the "Save Old Ironsides" campaign, which was much appreciated by him. Probably he has told you that, already.

x 200-A

It is very gratifying to know of the great interest the people of the Pacific coast are taking in the frigate, as she visits along from port to port. Commander Gulliver has written me of the inspiration he gets from the attitude of the visitors, who seem to worship the splendid vessel. I was able to watch the progress of restoration, and I know what a remarkable work Lieut. (now Mayor of Bath, Me.) John A. Lord did in reincarnating all the history and tradition in the present restoration.

So I hope the book I am asking you to read, will be another tie between you and the Nestor of our Navy, and help to keep her doing her patriotic duty.

May the voyage of the "Amberjack II" be very beneficial to you, in every way.

Very respectfully

John Stuart Barrows

Dear Mr. President -

Learning your admiration for marine subjects and fondness for the sea, am sending two paintings just completed to assure you how appreciative I am for the kindness recently extended.

The smaller one from a print by Associated Press of the fishing schooner Gertrude Thebaud. They have been much praised by competent critics. Wish I had the means to live on some scenic place and depict the ever-changing sea in its beauty. Sorry I had no picture of the Amberjack II while in Maine waters when beginning them, however, they may reflect present memories of delightful outings, with

"A wet sheet and flowing sea
A wind that follows fast
x x x x x x x
"There's tempest in you horned moon,
And lightning in you cloud;"
x x x x x x x

Am enclosing copy of letter from Interior Dept. which appears canny and elusive, but am not whining, knowing intricate political matters, although fate may be against me - savings gone through wife's stroke from paralysis - work as a printing Compositor (my vocation) impossible to secure, am informed even Government Printing Office help unemployed, however, wish Public Printer Carter would formulate some method to oust life-long Republicans and give a cradle-rocked Democrat a "break."

I would thankfully accept anything for an honest livelihood - either in or out of governmental employ.

With the most profound admiration and sincere concern for your Excellency's success and happiness, and praying my efforts to please you with such unequal compensation, I am,

Yours truly,

Dear sir:

My dear Mr. Borland:

In Mr. Early's absence I am taking the liberty of replying to your letter of June 30th.

It was very thoughtful of you to send the device and I am sure that the President will appreciate it.

I am sending it over to the White House today with your very complete instructions on its mounting.

Mr. Stephen T. Early,
Secretary to the President,
Washington, D. C.

Dear sir:

Reaction from sudden changes of temperature as experienced in artificially cooled buildings, are often enervating in the extreme, more especially, when one is an "out-door enthusiast" as reports of the President indicate, and only a mentally and physically healthy man can hope for a successful consumation of the various projects President Roosevelt has inaugerated.

To assist him in retaining his health and vitality; I am mailing (under separate cover addressed to the Chief Steward) a device for the President's use which will assure him rest, comfort and rejuvenation during his period of sleep, without the danger of catching "colds" in any normal summer or winter temperatures. This type of the device is portable and compact and can, with minor attachments, be adjusted to any bed or berth in less than one minute.

It was my desire to have this device manufactured from the finest materials but circumstances necessitated the use of materials available here. Do not be deceived by its simplicity however; Should it be necessary to avoid transgression of aesthetic tastes; You are authorized to have one made of materials and colors to contrast with the President's bed. Instructions, are with the device and the Chief Steward has been requested to inform you of its arrival.

Should there be any question of my integrity; You can have me investigated by anyone you are in touch with here. I have few political, but excellent fraternal affiliations. Am also a Spanish-American War Veteran and an observer of men and things. I have come to the conclusion in my last analysis that the President is, above all, a dynamic statesman. Years ago; Ella Wheeler Wilcox must have had President Roosevelt's type in mind when she wrote that poetic verse "Achievement".

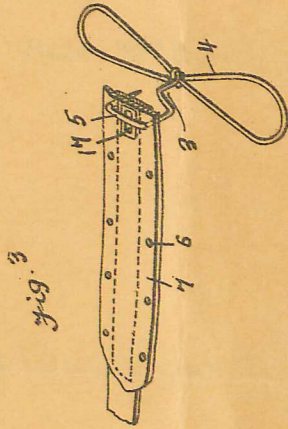

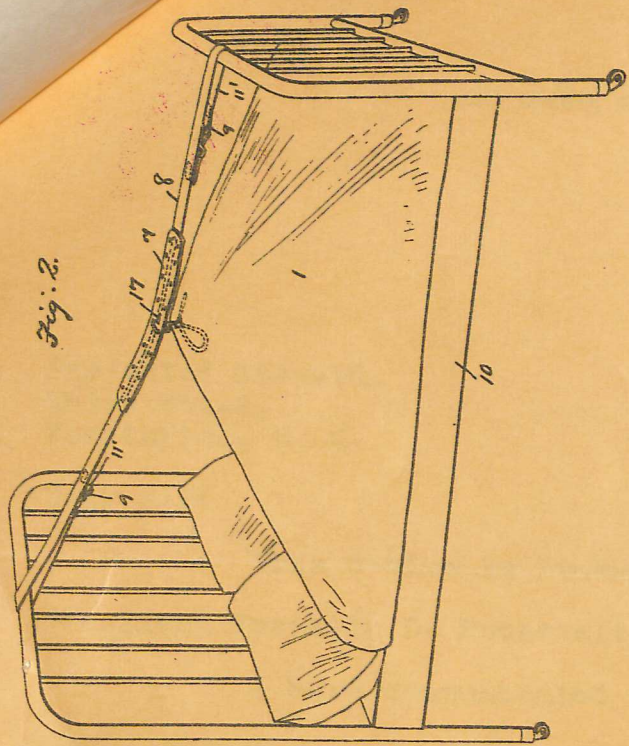

Thanks! for your time. My compliments to the President; I hope he proves a successful "Skipper" for this old U.S.A., fore-and-aft. "Thar's breakers! ahead".

Dear sir:

This device is forwarded to you for use of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

I have communicated to Secretary Stephen T.

THE REJUVENATOR .

-----INSTRUCTIONS-----

- 1st., In making bed, the sheets should lap two inches at head and tuck under at foot and sides, especially top sheet.
- 2nd., If solid head and foot boards, use rubber-covered clamps; If open head and foot boards; Attach main strap direct. Snap at the head and buckle at the foot. Strap should be about twenty inches above the counterpane at "center".
- 3rd., Hold hanger by sharpened hook underneath the strap at "center" and allow it to drop (after removing counterpane) note spot where center of hanger rests, and (standing at right of bed) place first two fingers of right hand on "spot" - Grasp hanger firmly in left hand (sharpened hook, up) slide it under all of the covering including top sheet, and pierce the covering with the sharpened hook using the two fingers of the right hand to work the hook through all the covering - Should you find it difficult; give the hanger a lateral motion. Cotton comforts only, are hard to penetrate.
- 4th., Raise the hanger and engage same in the double holes of the flexible leather strap viz: Up through the nearest hole and down through the opposite hole. To prevent accidents: place rubber protector over point of hook.
- 5th., If temperature is high: Flip all top covers (one corner at a time) up on the strap, leaving only the sheet in (tent-like) position. Leave all covering tucked under the mattress at the foot. Should the temperature lower during the night, the occupant of the bed can reach up and pull down sufficient covering for comfort. Should the temperature be low at first, leave all of the covering in a tent-like position. The body will furnish sufficient heat, for comfort, in a short time.
- 6th., In the morning after a perfect night's sleep, flip all of the covering up onto the strap and allow the bed to "air" - when it has aired sufficiently: remove protector and disengage the sharpened hook and allow clothing to drop in place - Smooth the bed-clothing without removing the hanger - the clothing has not been disturbed during the night and it will not be necessary to remove it to make the bed. If bulge of hanger-hook shows after the counterpane has been replaced - Drop a fancy pillow on it. The Strap can be removed during the day if necessary, but keep it handy, as, one having tasted its comforts and benefits, you will not easily dispense with it.
- 7th., If the bed-sheets are changed daily, of course it will be necessary to remove the hanger each morning, but I have found that with this device, and hours airing each morning, the sheets can be used a week or more without the slightest trace of B.O. in them, where light pajamas are used.

With minor attachments this device can be attached to any bed or berth and continued use leaves lasting results in health and vitality. If the sleeper desires to have the bed-clothing touch his back; loosen from one side of the bed, leaving it tucked under at the foot.

Figures at the left show a new and improved device whereby it is possible to remove a sleeper while at the same time covering a sleeper while at the same time by such clothes.

It is well known that the health of a person receiving fresh air to a considerable extent serves also as a means for the proper health of the person. It is for the skin while a person is sleeping such person warm.

Referring to the drawings at the left, the strap 8 at the center thereof is passed through a button hole in the clothes. The supporting laces along the strap 8 is an additional supporting device usually necessary and the device is shown in Fig. 13.

The essentials of my invention are the strap 1, rope 12 and pulley 13. The proper functioning of the device can be easily carried out on any bed in less than a minute. The device will be fully covered to a large amount of the body. This is exceedingly superior to other bed clothes supports. The device is and rejuvenated and is used for transporting the heavy weight of the skin of the body close to the body. The device is shown in fully covered

41-6:17

A NEW BED COVER SUPPORT

The figures at the left show a new and improved support for bed clothes whereby it is possible to remove the weight of the clothes covering a sleeper while at the same time preserving the warmth secured by such clothes.

It is well known that the health of a person is dependant upon the skin of the person receiving fresh air since the skin itself to a considerable extent serves also as a respiratory organ. It is essential for the proper health of the person that the skin be exposed to fresh air and by my invention it is possible to provide ample fresh air for the skin while a person is asleep and at the same time to keep such person warm.

In Figure 2 of the drawings at the left it will be noted that a strap 8 passes over the head and the foot rest of the bed. Depending from the strap 8 at the center thereof is supporting member 4 which can be passed through a button hole 2 shown in Figure 6 provided in the bed clothes. The supporting member 4 can be positioned at different places along the strap 8 as shown by the apertures 6 in Figure 3.

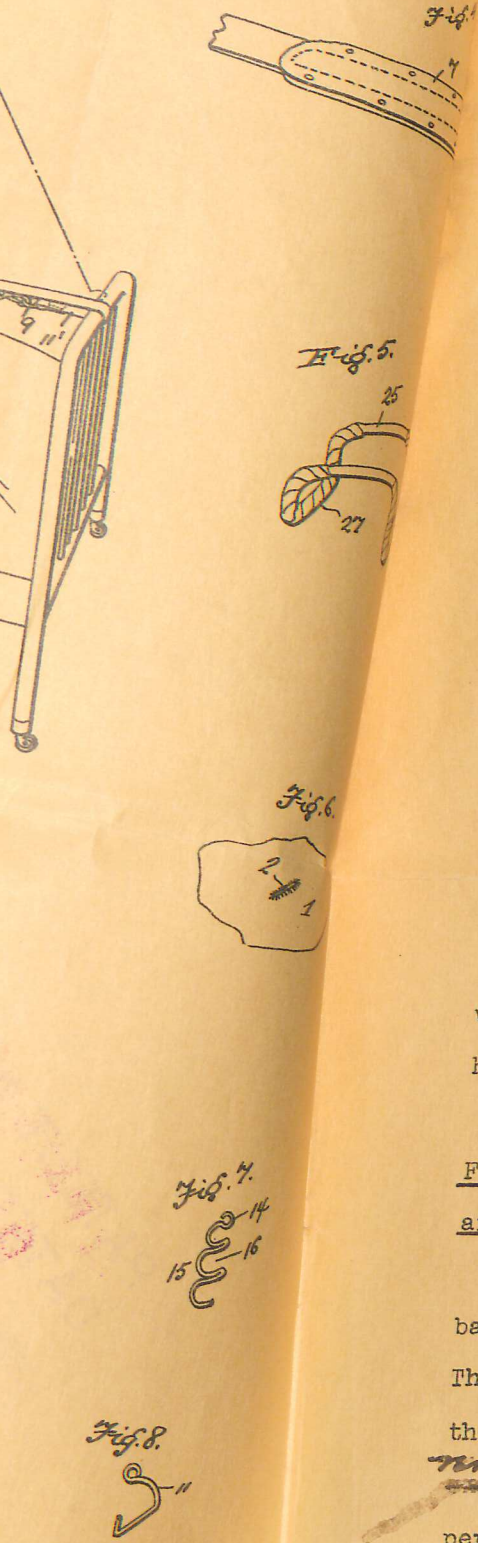

In Figure 1 an additional supporting means is provided which is however not usually necessary and this consists of the hook 11, rope 12 and pulley 13.

However the essentials of my invention are shown in Figure 2 and the hook 11, rope 12 and pulley 13 shown in Figure 1 are not necessary to a proper functioning of the invention.

This device can be easily carried in a suit case or hand bag and can be attached to any bed in less than one minute of time. The occupant of the bed will be fully covered but at the same time the occupant is exposed to a large amount of fresh air which ~~is~~ continually renewed under the covers. This is exceedingly important since a person when sleeping under bed clothes supported as shown will arise in the morning refreshed and rejuvenated and will not arise in a tired condition from supporting the heavy weight of bed clothes and because of having the skin of the body closed in so that it cannot breath.

The device shown in fully covered by Letters Patent.

Dear, Mr. Roosevelt,

You will no doubt recall the writer of this letter as the same person that addressed you from Orange Cal. after you received the nomination, and said that if you would come to Cal. that you would carry the State,

With my wife I left Cal. the 6th, of June, coming to Washington by Auto, and met with a great disappointment in not getting to meet you while we were in the City as I was in hopes of seeing you in person, but as you had gone on a much needed vacation, I was satisfied,

I brought with me a small article, and wished to present it to you in person but as I could not I brought it back with me to this place ( Dodge ) and am sending it to you to day by mail under separate cover and hope that it will arrive safely, and that you will accept of the same and I have no doubt but what you will in the same spirit that it is given.

The wood that this is made from is taken from our own place in Orange Cal. the mallet is from the Heart of an Acacia, and will remind you that at one time there was a small sprig of this wood placed near you. the handle is of Orange wood, and from a Rep. State that you carried,

Hoping that you will like it and that at some future time I will meet, you and at any time I can be of service to you, Please command me,

With best wishes to you always, I beg to remain,
Fraternally yours.

To

Honorable President of the United States:-
After seeing a news-reel showing you wearing a sweater, I thought you might like to have a "lumber jacket":

Sewing is a hobby of mine as I am a mechanist by trade.

I hoped I made a close guess as to fit. In case not, let me know where alterations are needed and I will fix them and send it back.

Wishing you success and many happy years, and as we say in Hebrew "May you always wear this in good health."

Keep up your good work.

I have the audacity, and the honor, to present herewith to you, Mr. President, a plaque, the model of which I just finished, and I hope that you will accept this plaque as a small token of my admiration and my enthusiasm, for you and your work.

Although many of my friends and associates have voiced their praise and congratulated me, in regard to the likeness of face and profile, and the fidelity of your features, in this plaque, it would, naturally, make me far more happy if I could have my work judged by you, Mr. President, and by Mrs. Roosevelt.

I would, therefor, immensely appreciate, and highly value your unbiased opinion, and a candid expression of your criticism or, if possible, approval.

With my sincerest wishes for an uninterrupted continuance of your signal successes in the interests of our beloved country, I remain, Mr. President,

Yours faithfully

However, on the way to our office he lost the letter, and, of course, I have not seen it or read its contents. I am this day sending you a walking cane which I have made by hand. My eye sight is so bad I could not do the work like I wanted too; but I wanted you to have something I had made.

I think you are the bravest man in the United States today; not that I consider you a bully or anything of that kind, but a man that can stand up in the face of opposition. It takes the bravest, the best, because you take in consideration the masses in preference to the classes.

I had hoped you would take a hand in, "Old Folks Pensions," but I acquiesce in your judgement.

I am eighty-two years of age. I hope the cane I am sending by Parcel post will be of some service to you. I have been informed you were a cripple, so I wanted to send you one of the canes I had made.

I wish you a long and peaceful life. I am,

My Dear Mr. President:

I am a girl 15 years of age and have aspirations to become an accomplished artist. At every opportunity I practice to improve myself and I am taking the liberty of sending to you the inclosed sketch of your self, as taken from a magazine photograph, thinking that you may kindly acknowledge by autographing it and returning to me. I hope you will regard it as a modest effort on my part to show the great admiration and respect for you. Perhaps at some time in the future, when I have become more skilled and perfect I may have the honor of presenting you with a better likeness. I shall cherish your acknowledgement as an unforgettable and permanent comparison with results of my future work.

Mr. Stephen Early,
Assistant Secretary
to the President,
Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Dear Mr. Early:

I enclose herewith copy of a letter received at this Department from Howard W. Beach, President of the Oyster Growers and Dealers Association of North America, Inc.

The connection of this request with this Department is simply that we have supervision over the New York State shellfish industry. I will be glad if the President can accede to Mr. Beach's request that he receive the first box of oysters from the 1933 harvest from his own State.

It also occurs to me that there would be an opportunity for interesting publicity if the presentation were made on August 31, when the Astor yacht was about to set sail or, perhaps even better, at some point en route the next day.

Incidentally, the President and Mr. Astor might not mind having a box of fresh oysters in the cargo on the trip.

I am leaving the Department tomorrow but have asked Mr. William C. Adams, Chief of the Division of Fish and Game, to get in touch with you in regard to this matter on the telephone tomorrow morning.

Yours sincerely,

Lithgow Osborne

Division Game and Fish
Conservation Department

Dear Mr. Adams:

Last year on September 1, as you know, we presented to President Hoover a box of oysters, the first from the 1932 harvest. This was in line with the age-old custom which is carried out at Colchester, England, where the season is always opened by the Lord Mayor and followed by a banquet at which many notables are present. We would like to continue the custom which was started last year until it becomes a White House tradition for the President to formally open the oyster season by accepting a box of the first catch.

Beginning September 1, twenty-five to thirty-five thousand people go back to work harvesting and packing oysters. The Association have planned to make a presentation to President Roosevelt on September 1, but we now learn that he is to leave Hyde Park on August 31 to go on a yachting trip with Vincent Astor until September 4. I have been a long way getting to my subject. At a conference attended by Dr. Pease and myself, with Mr. Raye this morning, during which we planned a cruise on Long Island Sound, starting from Connecticut, for a group of press people, to go over the grounds on the 31st so that a flood of excellent publicity will be due to appear the next day, I brought up the difficulty of our reaching President Roosevelt at this time. Mr. Raye suggested that we turn to you to see if it can be arranged for Henry Morganthau to present to the President on August 31, before he leaves for his yachting trip, a box of oysters, the first gathered from the 1933 harvest. This should be done in the name of the Oyster Growers & Dealers Association of North America, (whose code as you know has been submitted to Washington), and would be a great publicity stunt for the President and especially for the industry, in announcing to the public at large the opening of the season. If it would be more convenient for President Roosevelt, of course the presentation might be arranged to occur on September 1, either just before he went aboard the yacht or actually on board. The act on the part of the President would be greatly appreciated, and I would like your speedy suggestion as to how to go about it. As the time is short, I would appreciate a swift reply to me at 610 Quinnipiac Avenue, New Haven, Connecticut. I am writing this from Dr. Pease's office to save time.

With kindest regards and hopes that you will have a concrete suggestion and can aid us in this matter, I am

Yours sincerely,

HOWARD W. BEACH, President
THE OYSTER GROWERS AND DEALERS
ASSOCIATION OF NORTH AMERICA INC.

Dear Mr. President:

MSB

A few days ago we sent a bale of alfalfa hay and trust it has been received and tried out by the Missouri horse. "New Deal."

A taste of the country's best hay, we hope, will be appreciated by him. We wish a continuance of the high spirit of Americanism by the nation and a final recovery from the depression.

Sincerely,
