Dear Mr. President:

There goes to you, by American Express prepaid, a wood carving by one of our number. It goes to you as the gift of the artist, Mr. Henry B. Vanden Boogard of Kimberly, Wisconsin and, in making the gift, he desires to include as co-donors, his fellow employees and officers in the Kimberly-Clark Corporation, and the citizens of the Village of Kimberly. The carving, - from a photograph of yourself - including the delicate scroll work, was made by Mr. Vanden Boogard from a single piece of maple wood.

In sending you this token of goodwill, permit us to assure you that both the employees and management of this Corporation are cooperating whole-heartedly in the recovery program of your administration.

May we suggest that any acknowledgment which you see fit to make of this gift be addressed to the artist, Mr. Henry B. Vanden Boogard, of Kimberly, Wisconsin.

You will find an example with the carving, must be removed before taking out the picture, showing the color. pleas let me know if you like it and I will gladly apply it on the wood.
There is a little trouble in sending back and forwards, but it is the best I can do.
Do not nail or screw in panel, must stay free, for as you know wood is changeable and subject to temperature, must be suspended from frame on to the wall.
For safeguard I want you to measure the base in which it is slipped, the exact seize is 24 x 27 x 9 9/16
I am sure you got 125 millions of friends in the States, but I don't take any change, unless thas measure, dont open it on my account.
With te shipment you will receive a letter from Kimberly Clark Officials, employees and citizen of Kimberly village.

Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt, President
United States of America
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Roosevelt:

From one of the smallest counties in Florida comes this token of appreciation.

A former client, C.E.Burgess, blind in one eye, and a victim of malaria, living in a hut on the Dead Lakes had the inspiration for the carving and the poem. It is with pleasure that I pass both on to you at his request--just as he gave them to me.

Enclosed you will find a kodak picture of Mr. Burgess at his work bench where he spent sixteen happy hours on the carving.

Mr. Burgess, formerly a resident of Byron, Michigan, came to Florida to escape the cold winters of the north. He left a sister, Mrs. Bertha Church, in Byron. Seven sons and one daughter--all married--live near Flint, Michigan. Mr. Burgess came to Wewahitchka three years ago and settled on the Dead Lakes. Here he has earned his meager existence by fishing and occassionally selling a small piece of carving; such as, a gun stock or turkey "yelper." At present he is employed on a local CWA project. Here he is paid $1.00 an hour to make furniture for the Community House at Wewahitchka. Mr. Burgess is finding happiness in earning a living once more, but he does not stop with that. Frequently he is helping another person who has drifted into the county and failed to find work. After he has done what he can he reports the case to this office. Thus the work of serving goes forward. Does one wonder that the social worker finds happiness here too?

Sincerely yours,

Myrtle Barrow

This item, clipped from the N. J. My Dear Mr. President,

I am sending to you under separate cover a large colored picture of the New York Central's Hudson Type Locomotive. This is a picture which I have published and am selling to people through out the country who are interested in collecting railroad pictures, a hobby which is akin to your own of collecting ship pictures. I want to give you this picture as a token of my appreciation of the splendid work you are doing for the advancement of national recovery.

Because of your past interest and favors, I have taken the privilege and pleasure of autographing and sending you a copy of "Permanent Prosperity: And How to Get It," just published by Harper & Brothers, under joint authorship of myself and Nathaniel Gold, an associate of long standing in public utility work.

The book centers on economic security, and sets out a two point program. The first is public activities, planned along permanent lines, coordinated with private business, to provide constantly full employment at socially needed work. The second is a national monetary-credit policy adequate not only to finance the public undertakings, but also to preserve financial stability for all industry.

Our proposals are generally in line with the objectives of the New Deal with emphasis on the permanent needs of stability and security. The proposals are set forth in Chapters Three and Four, pages 45 to 166. Specific references to the Recovery measures sponsored by your Administration are found on pages 16, 22 and 203, while references to you personally appear on pages 186, 187 and 189.

Dear Mr. Early:

Some weeks ago, a friend of ours, Blue Ribbon Books published a book entitled FACSIMILES OF FAMOUS AMERICAN DOCUMENTS AND LETTERS arranged and edited by Edward C. Boykin. They were anxious to see that the President had a copy for his library, and accordingly sent him one. There is no desire for either publicity or acknowledgment, but in some way, it was presumed that the book was sent down for purely commercial purposes. I have taken the liberty of asking Blue Ribbon to send another copy marked for your attention for the reason that I feel sure it is something that the President or his family would like to have.

No acknowledgment is necessary, and if you decide this is an unwise move, I trust you will throw it away, and forgive me for having bothered you aboutit.

I am looking forward to seeing you on Thursday.

A boy with whom I grew up in Portsmouth wrote a book that was favorably reviewed in the New York Times. Even before its publication, I intended to secure a copy for you because of what I considered its singular appropriateness.

The subject is the management of the intimate affairs of the first President, as recorded by his Private Secretary, Tobias Lear, of Portsmouth, whose house

Dear Mr. President,

That you are conscious of the source of, and constantly use, your invisible power I am so certain that I am taking the liberty of sending you three books, of which I am the authoress. These books are quite widely read among persons interested in developing their mental powers to the maximum of efficiency.

I have the honor of being the only personal pupil that the great Judge Thomas Troward, of England, ever had; and for eighteen years have been, and now am, lecturing all over this nation on Mental Science as taught by the Bible and Troward.

While recently in Houston, Texas, one of the subjects for an address was "Roosevelt, the Moses of To-day". It would have made your heart glad to have seen the audience upon that occasion.

Hoping that my humble efforts to help you dispel depression from our midst will find some small measure of approval in your heart, I am knowing with you always that your ability to capture ideas from the Infinite grows hourly. Dear Mr. Early:

Mr. Bolognesi and his associates are extremely gratified and pleased at the opportunity of shipping cases of their wines to the White House for the enjoyment of Mrs. Roosevelt and her guests. They wish you to know how greatly they appreciate your courtesy and interest.

It is planned to make shipment from Highland, N. Y., on Tuesday, March 20, by express. Shipment is being made to Mr. Nesbit as you advised. The cases should reach Washington Wednesday or, at the latest, Thursday.

We are not initiating any publicity. Mr. Bolognesi feels that his wines will enter the White House as guests and not because someone has bought them. He feels that it would be very poor taste to capitalize such a gesture of neighborly friendliness. Except for the quality of these wines, which they will prove themselves, the only advantage in their favor over other native wines that have preceded them is the fact that they grew and matured a very few miles from the President's own home at Hyde Park.

Mr. Bolognesi would gladly forego any and all publicity attendant upon the wine shipment if he could receive a letter from Mrs. Roosevelt, merely acknowledging receipt and expressing pleasure in having products from her own home district.

Mr. Early, is such an arrangement ethical and possible? There would be absolutely no commercialization of such a letter. It would be seen only in its frame in Mr. Bolognesi's library.

Is it proper for Mr. Bolognesi to write directly to Mrs. Roosevelt, expressing his hope that she and her guests will enjoy the wines, as well as his pleasure at being permitted to send them?

If, at any time, an express package were to be shippd to you personally, Mr. Early, where should it be sent?

Thanking you again for your kind co-operation, I am

March 22 1934

To the President of these United States

Of America.

Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

This pencil sketch of your likeliness has been adopted by our Organization. Drawn by a Mechanic, a carpenter, Mr. Rudolph Ramlow. Being a drawing of unusual skill we thought you would like to have it. So this Association deemed it best to do so.

We are an organization of Architects, Builders, Contractors, and Building Trade Mechanics, organized to help one another and to promote our industry in our vicinity. We do our own advertizing keeping in touch with any one trying to build or alterate. We have been doing our best to keep men busy and away from the C. W. A.

This is no Political Organization, and we stand ready with our experince and education in the building line, to be of service to you or any other involved in this work.

Yours truly,

Charles B. Brennan, Pres.

Fred Ramlow Sec'y
