Dear Mr President

Doubtless you receive many gifts
Each day, but I would like to contribute one that I made myself.

I should like you to consider the Shoring Brush that I am sending you a token of appreciation for what you have done for the country since your inauguration.

I had the honor ^{of} making one for your Cousin
our late President Theodore Roosevelt who had the honor to see him raised to the degree of Master Mason at Oyster Bay N. Y. many years ago.

Yours very truly
Henry F. Ebert

My dear Mr. Evans:

Your letter of March 9th has been received, and I want you to know how much I appreciate your thoughtfulness in sending the original of your Inaugural Cartoon to me.

I am glad to know that the people approve of the address and thank you for telling me and for your message of good wishes.

Very sincerely yours,

My dear Mr. President:-

Thinking you or Mrs. Roosevelt might like to have the original of my cartoon on your Inaugural Address, I am sending the drawing and a clipping of it with the compliments of The Columbus Dispatch and myself personally.

I am taking the liberty to do this because of a feeling of closeness I have had ever since the Democratic Convention at Houston, Texas, where you were kind enough to sit in your room one morning and suffer while I did a sketch of you for my paper. You may not remember the occasion, but it has remained with me as one of the most pleasant in my newspaper experience. It was on this meeting that I wrote a story appearing in the Dispatch of Sunday, March 5, a copy of which I am also sending with the cartoon.

My only regret over the sketch is that I did not ask you to autograph it as I had done in the case of Senator McAdoo and others I have sketched. But perhaps the matter of the autograph may yet be accomplished. Its presence on a published drawing always adds to reader-interest.

If the whole country acclaimed your Inaugural Address as heartily as did Ohioans here, you may well believe the nation to be with you.

With best personal regards, I am, dear Mr. President,

Yours faithfully,

Ray O. Evans

Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt

President of the United States

Dear Mr. President:

One day last fall I heard you make a speech over the radio during your campaign. While I listened, I worked on a hooked piece with an eagle and a flag. I said while I listened that if you won I would send this piece to you. I have just finished it for it took time and I could not work steadily for it was too great a strain on my eyes.

I am sending it to you and show that I am glad you won.

We shall pray that God will give you power and make you strong to help the common people.

I am a naturalized citizen and am attending an Adult English class in the public schools of Chicago.

I hope you will let me know if this reaches you safely.

Very truly yours,

Dear Mr. President:

I have the honor to send you on this date a little token of my esteem; I would also be guilty of neglect if I did not tell you of the expressions I hear on all sides of appreciation for your brave and daring leadership.

I listened with great pleasure to your masterful and matchless Inauguration Address; It was certainly by far the greatest I have ever listened to and memory goes all about the battle you fought for health and how you won out so my heart goes out to you in sympathy as I remember all I went through.

I hope some day to have the very great honor and pleasure of meeting you face to face and thanking you in person for what you have done and are doing to lead us out of the Desert and into the Promised Land.

May God bless and guide
you safely through and crown your labors with success is the wish of your devoted follower.

back to some fifty years ago. (2)

On every side I hear words of confidence, hope and trust that you will succeed in your great task of really making the world safe for Democracy.

The little gift I am sending is a short poem I wrote recently entitled "My Prayer", which I had printed, then I colored and framed it to send to you.
I thought perhaps it might please you and add a little to your happiness, please do me the honor to accept it in that spirit.

I was an invalid all through childhood, bedridden for eight years, but I grew up to be a strong and healthy man after years of suffering.

Dear Sir:

We have never met except through letters to President Roosevelt but I think you will remember the name.

The purpose of this letter however is to ask your advice on sending a case of Honey to his Honor. I am now doing the press work for the radio program sponsored by the Golden Blossom Honey Co. Consequently I have a great deal to give out to my friends. Knowing the President's weakness for honey I would like to forward a case of the product to him. I thought it best to get in touch with you however. The presentation is in no way connected with publicity or exploitation.

Upon hearing from you, I will send down the honey. Please enclose in your letter--directions as to addressing.

FOUR MEN were gathered 'round the rusty heat-worn stove that had served Brown & Sons for over twenty years. Outside, the wind was blowing up great milky clouds of fine snow that sifted in between the cracks of window and door sills. Frost covered the windows with fantastic designs that were a relief from the monotonous view of the Lake House across the street.

Brown & Sons was a country store and post office. The four men within sat in silence, smoking — probably wondering how red the old stove could get without blowing up.

Finally, one of them spoke — quietly and as though addressing the glowing coals that seemed to have endless endurance against the hungry flames.

"Fifty-three years ago I was born in the little white house around the corner," he said, "and I'd give everything I possess to be a barefoot boy in this town again." Then he added with a sigh, "There's a Silver Lining in every cloud, but few of us ever really find it."

The speaker was well known to his fireside companions as a man of great wealth and influence. Consequently, his remark did not go unchallenged.

The Salesman was first to reply and there was a trace of envy, perhaps even bitterness in his voice as he said, "A man like you doesn't have to look for a silver lining. He's Brown, the Farmer and Storekeeper, nodded his head as though in agreement. Then, crossing his lanky legs and tilting his chair back against a case of crackers, he volunteered:

"Mebbe yer both right—I dunno. Seems ter me it all depends on what yer mean by Silver Lining."

The Village Rhymester, the fourth man in the group, said

This was the beginning of a long discussion between the Banker, the Salesman, and the Farmer, brought together in the little town of Waterford, Maine, by the Fate that pulls the threads of so many destinies.

As the conversation came to an end, the Sun broke through the clouds, the wind died down, and outside as well as inside the store of Brown &

The following paragraphs were copied from notes written by The Village Rhymester during the discussion mentioned, and comprise the only record made of the meeting between the Banker, the Salesman, and the Farmer, on the premises of Brown & Sons:

THE SILVER LINING

A happy frame of mind lies in the ability to appreciate and enjoy the blessings we possess.

The farmer boy thinks the Silver Lining lies hidden in the mansions of the wealthy. But the rich man finds it in the little trout stream that runs through the farm.

The millionaire bed-ridden invalid would exchange his fortune for the glowing health and youth of the unemployed teamster who sees no silver lining in his own existence.

THE SILVER LINING

The old maid with a pension would gladly give up her comfortable security to change places with the hungry mother of two beautiful children. But the hungry mother sees no brightness in her own life.

And so the Silver Lining, the happy frame of mind, stays hidden behind dark clouds of dissatisfaction.

Whoever we are, in spite of our troubles, there are thousands — yes, tens of thousands — who would find in our lives

Happiness is one hundred per cent a condition of the mind. It isn't anything we can see, touch, hear, feel, taste, or smell. It is something we think.

We are masters of our own thinking. No one can make us think sorrow if we want to think happiness. And no one can make us think happiness if we want to think sorrow.

The twelve hundred dollar a year man sacrifices strength and energy to work himself up to a point where he can afford a better home. And the fifty thousand dollar a year man finds his happiest memories in the carefree days when he lived in a cozy thirty dollar a month rent. Just a difference in the way of thinking.

rich. When he is wealthy, he finds his happiness in the pastimes of his youth.

The Silver Lining is not just around the corner. It is here. If we will change our thinking, it will blind us with its light.

In spite of all our present worries, our forefathers would think we were reveling in luxury and unheard of comforts.

There is more joy in working for something than in possessing it. Work is the open door to good thinking.

A busy mind breeds contentment faster than a swamp breeds flies.

Thinking how to work better, makes better work. Better work makes better results. And better results make more happiness.

We can be as rich as we think we are, or as poor as our minds let us sink.

Thinking magnifies everything it touches. The more we think about our sorrows, the bigger they become. The more we think about our blessings, the greater they appear. And the more we think about our jobs, the more important they become to us and to those who pay us for them.

THE SILVER LINING

We don't think about the value of our eyesight until we lose it. Then we think about it so much it grows to tremendous proportions and becomes more valuable than all the world's riches.

Let's concentrate on the things we have, instead of on the things we wish we had. Let's magnify our possessions by thinking about them. And through thinking happiness, let's acquire it.

Let's look for the Silver Lining — but in the clouds of

"The Silver Lining," written in verse by The Village Rhymester, is unquestionably based on the above notes made during an old-fashioned New England blizzard in the northern part of the state of Maine.

The Silver Lining

When the Sun has ceased its shining
And the clouds are dark and cold,
There's a bright and silver lining
To be found, so we are told.
And we sometimes sit and wonder
When its brightness will appear,
For we hear the roll of thunder
When we want a bit of cheer.

There are some who think the lining
Comes to just a lucky few,
And at times we hear them whining,
Asking why this should be true.
They will sit and keep complaining
That the times are hard as sin,
So their sky is always raining
And the sunshine can't get in.

... Page Eighteen

Just what is this silver lining
Man is waiting for in vain?
Just for what does he keep pining
With a hope that's almost pain?
Is it some great priceless treasure,
Measured up in terms of wealth,
That would bring more joy and pleasure Than contentment, peace, and health?

No, it's happiness he's needing
And he's trying hard to find,
And his wounds will stop their bleeding
If he'll search inside his mind.
That's where happiness is hiding
And the silver lining, too;
In your thinking they're abiding,
Waiting patiently for you.

THE SILVER LINING

If you're thinking thoughts of sorrow,
 Joy will never come to light,
 Though you wait for each tomorrow
 To bring something new and bright.
 Think of all you are possessing,
 Think of others who have less;
 Think of every single blessing
 That should bring you happiness.

Think of life and health and action
 That are yours to give full play,
 You'll find worlds of satisfaction
 If you'll only think this way.
 And you'll find it quite surprising
 How these thoughts will comfort
 you,
 While the happiness you're prizing
 Will spring into living, too.

 And you'll know your silver lining

Letter which Mr. Martin sent to the President May 11, 1933, is attached, in which Mr. Martin requested that the President autograph the attache etching of the President for William B. McCaslin, Grand Rapids, Michigan. Mr. Martin values the etchings at $30. -- Miss Leland wrote Mr. Martin May 22nd that the President would not have accepted the three etchings had he known there was any such value placed upon them. She mentioned that Mr. Perakie of Atlantic City did a campaign etching of the President. Said that checks sent to the President for his photographs are always returned to the sender, and she said that the President feels very strongly that he cannot take any part or autograph photographs which are to be sold. She returned the photograph which Mr. Martin sent. -- Miss Leland also wrote Mr. McCaslin May 22nd, explaining the situation and stating that the President is not at all pleased at the thought that anyone should be charged the price of $30 for his picture with his signature.

Mr. L. McH. Howe, Secy.
White House
Washn D.C.
Dear Mr. Howe:- I was in Washn last week & visited Congress mobile in session, therefore did not have to go through formalities in obtaining the necessary pass Sunday night, I listened to your discussion on Governmental affairs, I was particularly amused in your remarks concerning the President's mascot.
as you know, I am an ex-
member of the Rock of the Marine Regt, 3rd Division Regulars. After the War,
I became quite active in the affairs of militant organizations & in order to obtain necessary decorations, I arranged to purchase tons of obsolete flags discarded
by the U. S. Army.

HOTEL VICTORIA NEW YORK CITY-1933

51st STREET AT 7th AVENUE

Included in one of these bids, I obtained a flag representing the emblem of the Asst Secy of the Navy, who at the time, I believe, was the Hon. F.D.R. - I always kept that flag, as a matter of respect in the event that we receive a distinguished visitor from the Navy Dept.

And so, when I heard you mention, about the lost mascot, it occurred to me that possibly the President might like to have my old mascot, which was in service during his Navy days. - I really ought to have the flag cleaned & patched up before sending it forward, but then I thought possibly it may not mean a thing to the President & be discarded again -

However, just for the Good Luck wish that I am extending, I am sending, under separate cover, the old flag (with holes & all)

Maybe, there may be some sentimental thought connected with it, that the President might see in it, & thereby become the mate to the lost mascot - Who knows? -

Respect fully

My dear Miss Erdlitz:

The box of beautiful flowers which you were good enough to send the President were duly received and he asked me to convey his hearty appreciation of your courtesy. He was indeed pleased at this evidence of your friendly interest and good will.

Very sincerely yours,
