January 25, 1936.

Writes President saying he is sending an etching by a great Chicago artist of the sailing vessel "Flying Cloud". Chester Dansford, who has been asked to make several other famous boats and the writer intends to send these as soon as the plates are ready to be added to the President's collection. Extends best wishes to President for a happy birthday.--President wrote Mr. Meyer, on Jan. 28th, expressing appreciation for the etching and said it was a lovely thing and he was glad to have it for his collection. Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt
President of The United States.

Dear sir:-

Thank you very much for your kind letter of January 10- January 30 being your birthday I am sending you a birthday treat. It is interesting to note your birthday almost comes within the same month as Lincolns and Washingtons. In this book of old newspapers I am sending appears an address by John Quincy Adams. I know you will enjoy reading this remarkable address by John Quincy Adams. He speaks continually about the Declaration of Independence - George Washington and the early pioneers who sacrifced their lives so that the future generations of America would be free and Independent. The Declaration of Independence is written with their blood. In 1933 when you entered the White the whole nation looked as though it would fall to pieces. I have greatly admired you during all your administration. You have the fighting spirit of Washington and the eloquence of Lincoln. When you write to me I wish you would kindly send me several autograph photos of yourself. In the center of two of these photos I will publish the photo of Lincoln. I will write an editoral about which you will be proud to read. Happy Birthday Greetings + may you see many of them. Be sure to autograph your letter. - I thank you. Yours for a Hearty Handclasp.

I remain,

Sincerely,

Allen Francis Edgar.

WHAT KIND OF MAN WAS ANDREW JACKSON, ANYWAY?

From now till the election, we'll probably be hearing more about Andrew Jackson than about any other hero of American history.

Andrew Jackson

Jackson is already being quoted by New Dealers as one who would have approved of the New Deal from top to bottom. He is also being quoted by Old Dealers as one who believed in state rights and the power of the Supreme Court to override Congress and the President. President Roosevelt himself, in his Jackson Day speech, freely admitted that his Administration to date has borne some striking resemblances to Jackson's, and that he hopes it will go on doing so.

The New Dealers are closer to the truth about Jackson than the Old Dealers are. You can go through almost any President's public speeches and find eloquent passages to prove almost anything you want to prove—because on such occasions a President habitually confines himself to safe and lofty sounding generalities. That is where the pro-Old Deal Jackson quotations mainly come from.

Jackson's deeds as President, however, were the deeds of a man who was for the people and against the exploiter, for the South and West and against the New York money power, for Congress and the President and against the Supreme Court's attempts to usurp absolute power over everybody in the United States.

He broke the Bank of the United States, which was the equivalent of Wall Street 100 years ago; a private bank handling Government money and able to manipulate it practically as the bank's directors saw fit.

Throughout his two terms as President (1829-37), he was for "our Federal Union—it must and shall be preserved," and against state attempts to chip away the power of Washington that held the states together. His deathbed regret was that he hadn't hanged John C. Calhoun, South Carolina Senator who first voiced the threat of Southern secession from the Union.

All this is by way of calling attention to a book which it would profit anybody to read during this campaign—anybody who can get hold of it.

Jackson's Best Biography

The book is "The Life of Andrew Jackson," by James Parton. It is the authoritative life of Jackson, and it is one of the greatest biographies of anybody that we have ever read. Reading it, you practically live Jackson's life along with him. The present-day biographies, which humanize their subjects, are no more interesting than this book, and many of them are stodgy and forced by comparison.

The only trouble with the book is that it is three volumes in size (a total of 2,042 pages), and is out of print.

Parton finished it in 1859. It was published by Mason Brothers of New York in 1860, only a few months before the Civil War broke out. Naturally, the war swept all recent books out of people's minds. Too, Jackson was a slaveholder, like any other substantial citizen of his time in Tennessee, and Northern leaders in 1860 didn't want any heroizing of slaveholders; while down South the majority opinion was (as it still is said to be) that he-men don't read books.

So Parton's great work missed the fame it deserved. It lies now, buried beneath the stream of American literature like some sunken treasure ship whose location everybody has forgotten. You can get it in secondhand bookstores if you're lucky, but it costs a good deal, and its old-fashioned size and binding make it a little clumsy for present-day readers.

What we would like to know is why some enterprising publisher doesn't dig up Parton's masterpiece and get it out in modern form at a reasonable price. It might even be brought out in two editions, one unabridged and one abridged.

Parton Should Be Reissued

Aside from the public service of resurrecting a forgotten masterpiece, any publisher who would resurrect this one ought to find a considerable sale for it. Plenty of New Dealers would want the book so that they could quote chapter and verse to support their contention that in the New Deal Andrew Jackson lives and fights again. Any Old Dealer who is smart would certainly want the book to help him refute that argument if possible. The general public should be attracted to a great and thrilling and intensely interesting biography of one of the greatest Americans that ever lived.

The tip is offered free to any publisher who has the initiative to snap it up.

The News will pay $5 for every question submitted and used in this column. Today's award goes to Mrs. Carrie Smith, 124 West B, Hutchinson, Kan.

THE QUESTION.

Do you remember when and where you first saw an automobile?

THE PLACE.

Astor Place and Broadway.

THE ANSWERS.

Prof. L. H. W. Rabe, New York University: "It must have been earlier than 1908, because in that year I had my first ride in an automobile, one of the early Ford cars, painted a brilliant red. I can remember the continuous trouble we had with the spark plugs. The car would often stall out on the country roads."

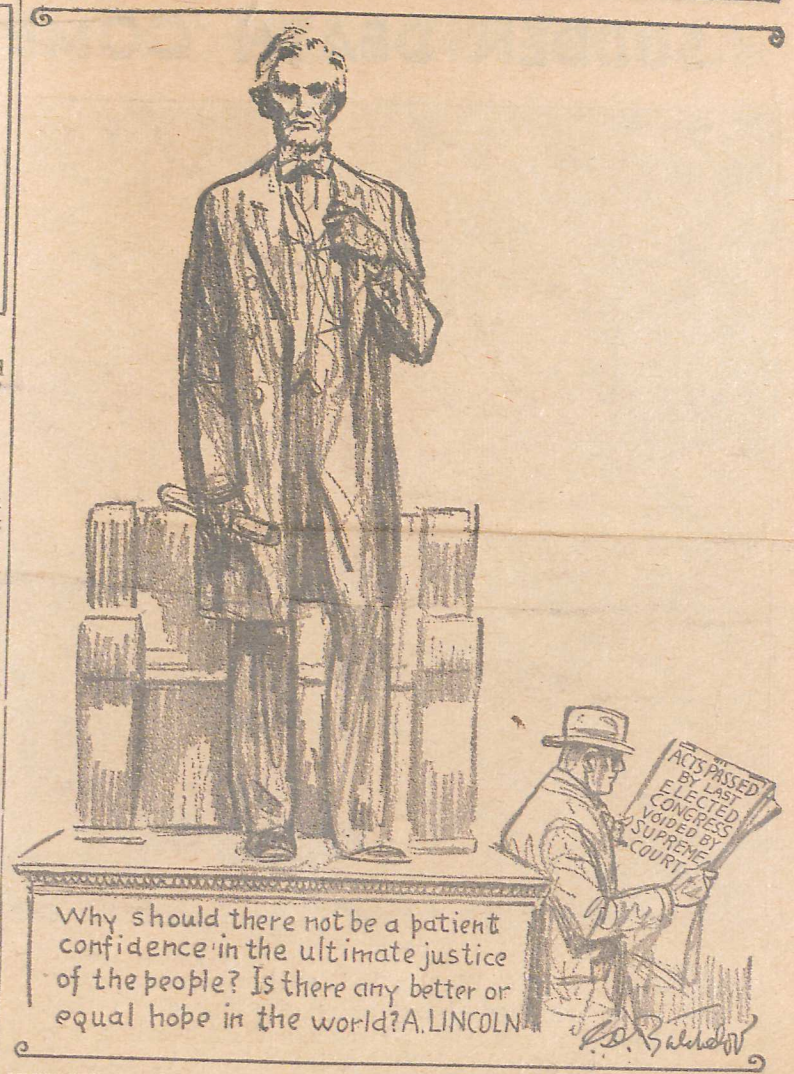
Sam Zucker, Grand St., store proprietor: "Yes, in 1905, on 23d St., in New York City. The car was a Ford, with a high top and an immense steering wheel. I was so bewildered that I couldn't believe my eyes. I remember that the speed limit at the time was eight miles an hour. I got my first ride in 1909."

Mary Bradell, Stony Brook, L. I., housewife: "I first saw an automobile at an automobile show in Madison Square Garden in 1907. I was 16 years old at the time. My beau gave me a big bunch of violets and offered me a ride in a surrey or in an automobile. I chose the surrey ride, and I still prefer a ride in a buggy to one in an automobile."

Prof. R. H. Tanner, New York University: "My brother-in-law purchased one of the first automobiles produced in this country. It was an Oldsmobile with a high dashboard that looked exactly like a horseless carriage. I had my first ride in it around 1900 in East Cleveland, a short time after the Spanish-American War."

H. F. Rhaesa, Roselle Park, N. J., retail sales manager: "I bought my first automobile, a Ford, in 1913, and I must have seen one at least ten years before then. In fact, I remember seeing an automobile in New York City in 1901. I also remember that a friend bought one of the first Studebakers in 1907."

George O'Connor, Broadway, hospital employee: "Yes, in 1901. We didn't call it an automobile then. Everyone referred to it as a horseless carriage. When the first one appeared in my home town, Laconia, N. H., every one in town turned out to see it. There was no business done that day. I remember it as if it were yesterday."



VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Please give name and address with your letter. We will withhold both on request.

PETE SEES CATASTROPHE

Manhattan: Did you ever read about Belshazzar's feast in the Bible? As I recall the story, the people were boondoggling to beat hell, and having a grand time, when suddenly there appeared on the wall the total amount that the boondoggling was costing them. But nobody paid any attention. I think it would be a nice gesture if F. D. R., who defended boondoggling the other day, would learn to play the fiddle, if he can't already do so, and then he could accompany us while we are boondoggling the country into bankruptcy. Of course, old Belshazzar's shack finally collapsed, and the city with it—but that was the Old Deal. That simply couldn't happen today—or if it does, we can blame it on the Old Dealers. PIG PEN PETE.

CCC OUTWORK WPA?

Hackettstown, N. J.: A lot of WPA workers ought to be strung up. They stand around by wood fires, while we CCC boys go out and work in the cold with no fire at all. The work the WPA mutts do in one month we could do in a week and a half. Yet they're closing a lot of CCC camps and expanding the WPA!

CCC MEMBER.

MARINES GOT FED UP

Brooklyn: We think Marion, Madeline, Margie and Grace, who wrote the Voice about the charms of the Brooklyn Naval Hospital mob, are four girls whom we used to know when they were quite gaga over the marines, the best service men of all. Why the change, girls? We suppose the trouble is that the charming marines got tired of your pans like gorillas, shapes like kangaroos and necks like telephone poles. Anyway, they came running to us. And we wouldn't touch those Brooklyn Naval Hospital guys with a ten-foot pole.

TWO BEAUTIES.

BONFIRES WORRY HIM

Manhattan: Why are children in the slums allowed to make bonfires in the streets? They aren't allowed to make fires on Park Avenue. Just because I'm a workingman and can't live in a better neighborhood, is that any reason why I have to stand the risk of having my furniture burned? No wonder these brats grow up to become firebugs.

STANLEY O'DONNELL.

F. D. ACTION, HOOVER INACTION

Old Mystic, Conn.: Ex-President Hoover, with his eternal criticisms of the New Deal, makes me extremely sick. At least, Roosevelt appointed the bureaucrats and alphabetical agencies to do something. Mr. Hoover, when distressing conditions were brought to his attention, merely appointed commissions to investigate and report back in two years. That's why prosperity was always just around the corner in 1929-33.

STILL CYNICAL.

A COURT CURB

Bronx: To curtail the Supreme Court's present overpowering powers, I suggest an amendment recognizing the Court's right to judicial review of acts of Congress, but providing that in case of a decision of unconstitutionality the law must be submitted to popular vote in a national election. It might also be provided that the Supreme Court must rule on a law within one year after its passage, or not at all, and that the Court could be consulted on the constitutionality of a proposed law before Congress took the trouble to pass it.

ROBERT H. DE JORIO.

WANDERING WIVES

Westchester: You say, Gene Sloan, that it is all right for a woman to have an affair with another man if her husband forgets to give her love and affection. You're all wrong, Gene, and your point of view is as stupid as that of a woman who would do such a thing. Any woman with a few brains KNOWS how to hold her husband's attention and love. Should everything fail to bring him to notice her, then she should get a divorce. Married women who have affairs with other men are just plain tramps.

NOT OLDFASHIONED.

IDEAL EQUIPMENT

Richmond: Life would be a song for me to sing if I had the following: Harold Teen's femmes, Shadow's wit and humor, Moon Mullins' nonchalance, Winnie Winkle's taste in clothes, Smitty's mom's home cooking, Dick Tracy's brains, Little Orphan Annie's luck, Pat Ryan's physique, Connie's teeth (I'd pose for toothpaste ads), and Uncle Bim Gump's dough.

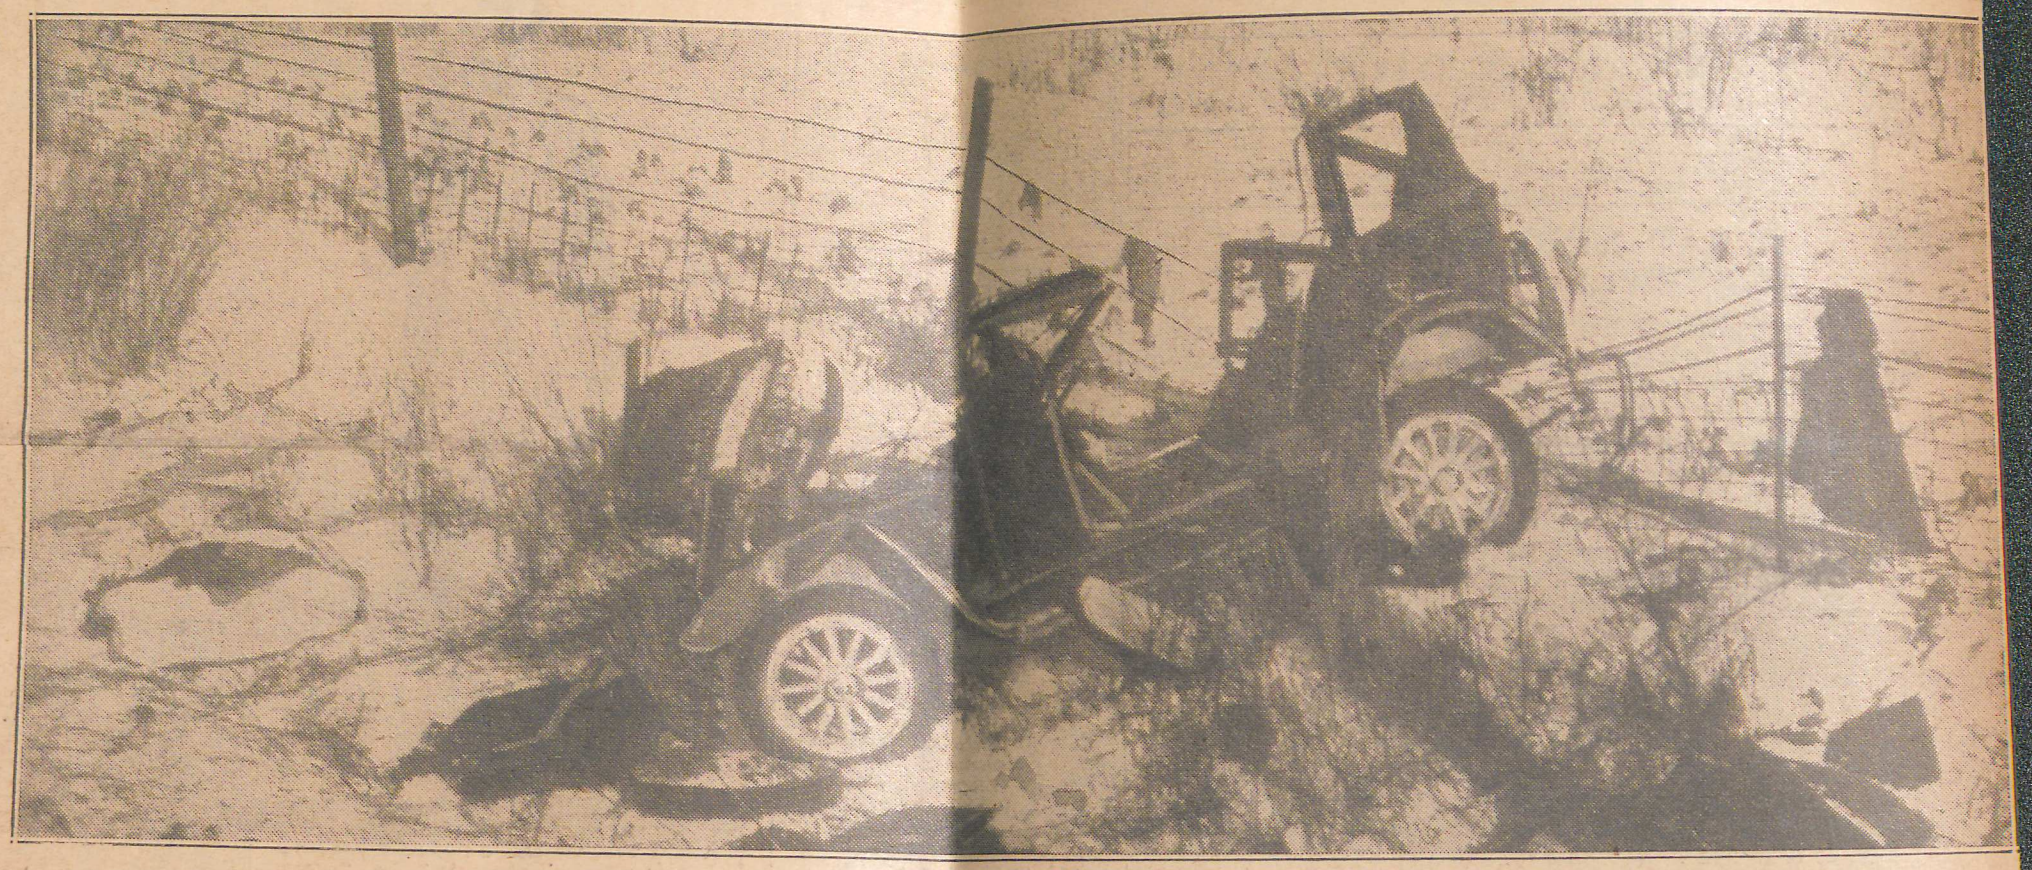
SUDDEN DEATH COMES TO FAMILY OF 12 — MASS SUICIDE?



(By Associated Press)

QUESTION that Fort Wayne, Ind., authorities are trying to answer is whether the ghastly crossing crash that caused the death of Marion McBride, a WPA worker, and eleven members of his family was intentional, or an accident. McBride stalled his car in front of a train, and engine tossed it into this fence.

EVICTION . . . NEIGHBORS BATTLE POLICE—BUT IN VAIN

(NEWS photo)
Resting under the American flag, Mrs. William Thal views a cold world after being evicted from her home after neighbors came to her aid.

(NEWS photo)
When the signal was sounded by automobile sirens that evictors were at work, a hundred embattled neighbors flocked to the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Thal, 29-26 44th St., Sunnyside, Queens, and this picture shows the job they gave the police for two hours. Sticks and stones flew, but they broke no bones.

BALKING THE BLIZZARD.—Trapped by ice jam in the Susquehanna River opposite Harrisburg, Pa., inhabitants of McCormick's Island are rescued by cable car. Breakup of ice made river impassable afoot or afloat.

Listening In
With Dan Walker

In addition to the funeral services for the late King George, which will be broadcast from Westminster Cathedral Tuesday morning and picked up by the major American networks at between 4:30 and 6 A. M. our time, there will be a CBS broadcast the same morning from our own Cathedral of St. John the Divine at 10 . . . Bishop Manning will speak; there will be a choir of sixty voices and a Scotch piper to play a lament. . . Incidentally, this will be the second broadcast of the funeral services for a king—those for the late Albert o. Belgium being the first. . . The dedication of the memorial to Lawrence of Arabia, mysterious and romantic figure of the World War, will be broadcast from St. Paul's Cathedral in London Wednesday (WEAF—12:30 P. M.), with Viscount Halifax, Chancellor of Oxford, as principal speaker.

Bishop William T. Manning

Hearing Paul D. Cravath's between-acts talks during yesterday's broadcast of "Aida" from the Metropolitan Opera House (WEAF-1:55) and his recollection of the cast of that opera in 1908, with Enrico Caruso, Emmy Destinn, Antonio Scotti, Amado Didur in the cast and Arturo Toscanini conducting, it seemed to me that midgets are now sitting in the seats of the mighty . . . until I recalled Arnold Bennett's observation that no age ever really appreciates its own artistic achievements . . . and a remark by Will Chase, dean of music editors, that in the good old days performances seldom surpassed, as a whole, those of today.

At any rate in 1908 it was impossible for a million people who could never get to New York, or afford the Met's prices if they did, to hear Verdi's glorious music so excellently sung, even if Frederick Jagel is no Caruso, John Charles Thomas won't make us forget Scotti or Elisabeth Rethberg, admirable as she is, hasn't attained the artistic stature of the great Destinn . . . Nor could they learn, as I did from Mr. Cravath's talk, that the great Toscanini made his conductorial debut when, as a 19-year-old cellist, he stepped into the orchestra pit of the opera house at Rio de Janeiro when the regular conductor became ill and first directed "Aida." Yes, there are compensations.

The radio comedians will have to be a good deal funnier than they are to take away the spot from the political circus which is just beginning . . . I was so entertained yesterday by the speech-makers that I didn't tune in even once to anything else . . . The air crackled with the same old denunciations and hysterical hyperbole that thrilled our grandads back in the torchlight era . . . as well as some sane and constructive speeches. Entertaining and witty as Al Smith was, when whamming the daylights out of the New Deal at the Liberty League dinner (WABC—10), however, I must admit to far more admiration for the quiet address by Commissioner of Accounts Paul Blanchard on the necessity for revisions in our Constitution (WEVD—8:45) . . . a speech that deserves repetition on a national network.

We all must remember (I kept thinking) that even if the Liberty Leaguers tell us the New Deal is bringing the nation to the brink of ruin, etc., if Al Smith were sitting where Franklin D. Roosevelt is today, he'd be the target for the same attacks . . . and so would any other President who ever attempted to do anything but sit tight, keep his mouth shut and do nothing, as Calvin Coolidge so successfully did through two terms . . . But who remembers Coolidge today?

Radio executives claim they are ever searching for new ideas, but I've yet to hear of one being presented to 'em that they didn't hem and haw, back and fill and shy at it . . . until they'd come to believe they thought it up themselves. For instance: Four years ago my friend, George Zealand, an advertising man, suggested radio previews of movies, and the idea was promptly rejected by the networks . . . and now what have we? A scene from the forthcoming "Sutter's Gold," with Lee Tracy, Edward Arnold and Binnie Barnes Friday (WABC—9) and the NBC Cinema Theatre, which will present imaginary pictures, as well as movie stage shows Thursdays, beginning Feb. 6.

My dear Miss LeHand

Your good letter ~~xxxx~~ of the 23rd inst. was handed to me today.

Strangely enough, I was just at that time reading a quotation by E. Stanley Jones in his book entitled "Christ and Human Suffering" as follows:— Josiah Royce defined faith as "the soul's insight or discovery of some reality that enables a man to stand anything that can happen to him in the universe."

Yesterday I mailed my birthday gift to the President, a book by W. L. Poteat, president of Wake Forest College. I think he will enjoy it. It is a wonderful little book.

His veto of the Bonus Bill was as courageous as his address to the Congress.

There is only one way to live, and that is "dangerously"!

Sincerely yours

Frank Cary Elwell

My dear sir:

Upon your suggestion, we are sending via Parcel Post, the bust of our president, carved from a solid piece of Poplar by:

Mr. Charles Edwards, of 1645 North Alexandria Ave. - Hollywood, Cal. Mr. Edwards is an inspector for the Health Department of Los Angeles City. Awar veteran and a father. His inspiration for this many month's work was neither political nor commercial, simply a great admiration.

Newspapers of this city have commented upon a wonderful likeness and we friends assured him that our president's family would appreciate it. We hope we are correct.

Thanking you for your immediate co-operation and kindness, I am,

Yours truly,

My dear sir:

May I have information as to rules of acceptance by the President?

A friend has carved from a solid piece of "Redwood" an almost "lifelike" figure of a bust of our president. The likeness is eerie. Hesitates sending same for fear it will not reach the Roosevelt family and it is naturally treasured among friends and family. I assured him "our man would be delighted. He doubted me and I merely ask for aconfirmation of my guarantee that the family would love to have it.

Thanking you and wishing I was back there now, I am,

ST. THOMAS

January 18, 1936

His Excellency,
President Franklin D. Roosevelt,
The White House,
WASHINGTON, D.C.

My dear Mr. President:

You will undoubtedly be interested in the fact that Virgin Islands Company rum is now available in the American market in a blended form.

The Sarthe-St. Croix Company, recently organized and established in St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, carries on a blending process in a modern plant set up here, in which Virgin Islands Company rum, which may be from six to eighteen months old, is blended with rum manufactured by the Haytian American Sugar Company of Port-au-Prince, Haiti. The latter rum is four or five years old. The blend is in a proportion of 65% Virgin Islands Company rum and 35% Haytian American Company rum. Both these rums are made from cane juice and by practically an identical process. The product is sold under the label of "Sarthe-St. Croix Rum".

Mr. C. Edgar Elliott, President of the Haytian American Sugar Company, has requested that I send you a case of this rum, so that you may taste its quality and note the first appearance of this rum on the American market.

With best personal wishes,

Sincerely,

Lawrence W. Cramer

Dear Mr. President:

Knowing how many books and other reading matter you receive in your office, I have refrained thus far from sending you a copy of my new book. As it has now received some discussion, however, and as you may be interested in getting at least a birdseye view of it in case questions should arise concerning it, I am taking the liberty of sending you a copy.

As you no doubt know, Mrs. Roosevelt read the book in preliminary manuscript form, and I believe showed you some chapters at that time. In its present form, however, it has been hammered into much more concise shape, and suggests a somewhat more positive program for future action.

The table of contents of the book gives in two or three pages an abstract of the ideas set forth which would enable you to get an idea of the main theme of the discussion in a few minutes time.

RECEIVED

Dear Mr. President:-

I am enclosing a booklet consisting of four speeches I made within the last six months on the subject of the New Deal. I am supplying the National Committee with quantities of the enclosed for distribution wherever the Committee thinks it may be of value. Forbes Morgan has suggested that this be done and is indicating the places where distribution should be made.

I am going to continue to use every available opportunity to work toward your victory which while it is clearly indicated today, will be still more certain when your opponent tries to answer the three questions - What would you have done? What you would have refused to do? What do you intend to do if elected?

With kindest regards, I am,

Sincerely,

Mark Eisner

We are herewith mailing you under seperate cover a sample of our new ROOSEVELT auto-bumper strip or banner. We hope that it meets with your approval and that you like it.

These banners are proving very popular and are being met with approval and hearty acclaim out here in the farming country. They are new and we believe they are the first to make appearance on the streets and highways. They certainly do attract attention.

We are mailing some samples to Mr. Farley and to the National Democratic Committee and would like to attract their attention to our humble efforts.

We are just a couple of farmer boys, both Democrats and descendents of a long line of middle-west Democrats. Please accept our thanks for what you have done for our people and for us out here in Missouri. We are deeply grateful. WASHINGTON - USA

Monsieur le Président!

Nous avons l'honneur de vous transmettre un ouvrage qui vient de paraître chez nous:

S. ERCKNER : DIE GROSSE LUEGE - 25 JAHRE FRIEDEN

Ce livre,de toute actualité,s'occupe de la politique étrangère du Troisième Reich. A l'aide de documents originaux et extrêmement abondants, les buts,les voies et les méthodes de la politique étrangère actuelle de l'Allemagne sont exposés avec une clarté parfaite.

La politique étrangère du Reich se révèle comme la continuation directe de la politique pangermaniste d'avant guerre,si néfaste pour l'Europe et le monde entier.

Une attention particulière a été consacrée aux opinions et à la position prise par l'Etat-major allemand, inspirateur traditionnel de la politique étrangère allemande.

Dans l'espoir que cet ouvrage vous paraîtra intéressant nous vous prions,Monsieur le Président,d'agréer l' expression de nos sentiments distingués.

November 7th 1936

To The Honorable
Franklin Delano Roosevelt
President of the United States.
My dear Mr. President:-

It is with the deepest feeling of personal joy that I offer my congratulations over your stupendous re-election as our President, and I want to add my glad and loyal support to you with all your millions of other enthusiastic friends and also my prayers for your continued success in every way.

I met you years ago at Hyde Park, when you were a sturdy young lad, and it was you who piloted me on my first tobaggan ride, taken down your Mother's terraced grounds to the river.

A vivid picture of you remains of that memorable day which I have always treasured. A handsome boy, large for his age and my junior by at least six years, who wore a red tasseled cap on the back of his head. His merrie eyes laughed at me as I sat clutching the sides of his tobaggan and heard his shout as he gave a running jump and push from behind when he landed back of me, yelling like one of my well known Indians, "Hold on for dear life Mary, we're off!" And we certainly were off! How well I remember that swift flight over bumps and drifts, as we careered wildly over the snow crust and I expected to land in the Hudson, but mercifully for us we overturned in a snow covered bush shrieking with laughter.

RVR

1256 HUMBOLDT STREET
DENVER, COLORADO

And the amazing part is that now my young boy friend is the most renowned President of the United States!! It is wonderful.

Today I am a young lady of sixty years,and all this happened long ago.

My great great great grandfather was Charles Crooke,of Crum Elbow. Your Mother may remember to have heard of my Aunt Mary Broom,who married Edward P.Livingston,and was later the wife of Charles H.Ruggles of Brookside,Poughkeepsie. My Father was Major Allan H.Jackson of Schenectady, a Union college man and afterwards a graduate of Harvard. He recruited his regiment at the begining of the Civil war and served with distinction throughout the war. He accepted a commission as second lieutenant in the 7th U.S.Infantry,after the war,and because promotion was very slow then, he had the misfortune to remain a lieutenant for thirty-two years. My youth was spent at frontier army posts,which I loved. I believe it must have been while we were stationed at Ft.Laramie Wyoming,that Mother took me east with her. She had to attend to some detail in connection with the Crum Elbow estate,which had passed into other hands,so it was probably at this time that Mother and I had luncheon with your Mother and you at your beautiful home.

I have always hoped to see Crum Elbow again and meet you and your lovely Mother,but the occasion never arrived.

When you passed through Denver last month I was ill in the hospital,but if I had been out I never could have reached you. I did hear your voice over the radio and was delighted with your splendid message.

RVR

During the depression in 1931 my husband, Harry J. English, lost his business, the English Lumber Co. which was largely caused through his debtors being unable to pay him. In his extremity my entire fortune was put up as collateral, to help him, at the First National Bank of Denver, with the promise of the banks President, John Evans, to hold my stock until prices returned to something like normal. But within three months time the bank sold everything I possessed at the very lowest market value.

It was a terrific shock to find myself nearing the age of sixty without even food enough, besides having my home mortgaged. Dear friends came to my rescue about the home, but I could not eat it or tell others that I was hungry. I started at once to learn how to work and earn enough for food. I did any and everything possible, and so far have been able to make enough to keep my husband and myself from the lack of food and pay my taxes. But it is desperately hard going.

I was a volunteer during the hard fighting over seas, in the Red Cross canteen service in France, so that I ~~have~~ had some necessary training before the deluge struck us. But either Mr. English or I need some definite work now, to help us through these few remaining years while we can still work.

I have finally decided to write you and tell of our serious difficulty,much as I dislike annoying you with my troubles when I know you have huge problems to solve. It is only the increasing necessity for some work that will bring in a living wage to one or the other of us,that prompts this letter.

I hope you will accept the little book I enclose with this letter. I had the remarkable experience I tell about while I was staying at Bay Head,New Jersey. It was all absolutely true and made a deep impression . I know that there is no death as we have been taught to believe, and that Love is the greatest God power given us.

Please pardon this typed letter,but due to arthritis my fingers do not easily hold a pen.

With kind regards to you and yours, believe me,

Faithfully and sincerely,

Mary Jackson English

Red Herring May Be Tasty; Some Sent Roosevelt

Edenton (UP).—As result of President Roosevelt's reference to "red herring" in his Pittsburgh speech and a subsequent explanation by the chief of the fisheries bureau that a red herring is "a herring that has gone bad," the Chief Executive will receive a batch of actual "red herring" from Bill Everett, of Edenton.

Bill catches and smokes herring—red herring.

"When herring are smoked as they should be smoked, they are a tasty red fish," Bill says.

So there will be no misunderstanding, Bill has sent a batch of red herring to the White House.

Dear Mr. Roosevelt - President of the United States of America,

All through your campaign to be re-elected for President, my tie was brocaded with pins distributed by the Democratic National Committee and by the American Labor Party. This, no-doubt, may have helped you to get some votes, because people were always staring at my tie.

you. These pins made many holes in my tie, thus ruining it. However, it was worth what price I paid. As a token of my estem, I am going to send you this tie decorated with the pins in the identical manner that I wore them.

I am sorry that my father had but one vote to give to you. My father was a Democrat, is a Democrat, and always will be a Democrat. I am sorry to say that when I am of age to vote, I will not be able to vote for you, but I will support the Democratic party as a true Democrat should.

I listened to every one of your speeches that was announced over the radio. Day by day, I saw more and more people being swayed by your influential speeches. I knew that you would be elected, before the returns came in. Most of the people where I live, were overjoyed when they heard that you were re-elected. I am sure that you will continue to do good work while in the office of the President of the United States of America.

Your faithful admirer,
Max Epstein

My dear Mr. Roosevelt,

By the messenger who will deliver this, I am sending some "Drive Ahead With Roosevelt" de luxe auto emblems. On account of the wording it has occurred to me that these might be used to psychological advantage during the inauguration ceremonies. The reason these emblems are on hand at this time is that they were returned by one of my consignment agents who failed to sell them before election. During the past six months, I have distributed these emblems over five states.

It was my plan to wholesale a sufficient quantity to pay expenses. However, I gave away several thousand more than I sold, and my books show a deficit of more than one thousand dollars. Nevertheless, I am very happy to have contributed this as well as my efforts to the glorious victory.

This letter is not written for the purpose of securing a government position, even though I am a former executive of N. R. A. and a friend of Senator Reynolds and of most of the members of the North Carolina Congressional Delegation. It has been my good fortune since the demise of N. R. A. to secure a patent on an invention of mine, which, I believe, will make it unnecessary for me to seek a salaried position. Your return to office makes me confident that conditions in the business world will make it possible for me to successfully market my new machine.

Suite Five Hundred Ten

If the idea of having these emblems on selected automobiles during inaugural week appeals to you, it is my belief that it will be possible to secure an additional supply without cost.

It will be my pleasure to cooperate in every possible manner if the plan is acceptable. I d o not desire any remuneration. This is simply a gesture of gratitude, appreciation, and congratulation.

Very sincerely yours,

Yates Edgerton

Dear President Roosevelt:

I am writing this letter for my sister, Thelma Epstein, who is a very ardent admirer of yours. Thelma would very much have liked to write to you herself, but she is a sick child and cannot walk or talk very well and she is also handicapped as far as using her arms and fingers well enough to write.

Thilma just would not keep at rest until I finally promised I would write this letter to you to let you know how great she thinks you are.

She keeps a framed photograph of you at her bedside, and pictures of you are to be found in other parts of the house. During your campaign she prayed for your victory every night and had your campaign buttons, of every size, pinned all over her dress and coat.

Words cannot describe Thelma's elation when you finally came through the election with flying colors. She was so very happy that you were re-elected that she decided she must buy you a gift, and so started to save her pennies. Her first thought was to buy you a shirt, but recalled that she did not know what your size shirt would be. And the same applied to a pair of socks — so she decided on a handkerchief.

At first Thelma wanted so very much to give you the handkerchief personally, but knowing that it would be impossible to do this, so she decided she would send it; and so you may expect this small token of a little infantile paralysis victim's affection to arrive within the next few days under separate cover.

DM

Thelma sends her best wishes for health and happiness and wants me to say she was sorry not to have been old enough to vote for you in this last election, and wishes you'll be President of the U.S. forever so she too may be able to vote for you when she reaches the age of 21.

Sincerely yours,
Frances Epstein
