Dear Mr. President:

I take pleasure in handing you with this letter an advance copy of a brief volume entitled "Stock Market Control" summarizing the findings and recommendations of the staff of the Twentieth Century Fund which has recently completed its survey of the security markets. This document is a digest of the factual research upon which was based the program for the regulation of the security markets which I sent to you on February 8th. It is to be released for sale to the public on Friday, March 2nd.

I have also sent a copy to Senator Fletcher with the formal request that he ask Mr. Alfred L. Bernheim, Director of the Security Market Survey, to testify at the hearings of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency on the Fletcher-Rayburn bill.

If you care to have any more copies of the book I shall be glad to send them to you.

Yours sincerely,

Edward A. Filene

My dear Mrs. Heiner:

Will you please permit me to make this belated reply to your letter of December twenty-fifth regarding the history "Utah and the Civil War" which Mrs. Margaret M. Fisher was good enough to send to the President. I am sure he will be interested in looking through this volume at a favorable opportunity.

May I ask you to be good enough to tell Mrs. Fisher of the President's appreciation and best wishes.

Very sincerely yours,

Honorable President:

James Isaac Atkinson Sr., 92, Utah pioneer of 1853, died at his home here early Monday.

Mr. Atkinson was born in Sackville, New Brunswick, Canada, November 28, 1841, a son of William and Phoebe Campbell Atkinson, who were among the earlier settlers of this section.

As a young man, Mr. Atkinson was a member of the Lot Smith company, and also was a member of the Andrew Bigler company during the Black Hawk Indian war, seeing service in Sanpete county. He was a past commander of J. Quincy Knowlton post of the G. A. R. and was said to be the last surviving member of the Lot Smith Company, Utah Civil War Volunteers, who served in 1862, company A, 1st Regiment under Col. Collins of the Department of Kansas, United States Volunteers.

Mrs. Margaret M. Fisher is sending you a copy of her history, Utah and the Civil War, which tells of the service the Utah men rendered.

Yours very cordially,

Department President

bought from Germany for a while but that 40% duty plus the war tax and the ocean freight put the cost too high, the larger organ factories make their own reed-boards reeds and keys.

I would like to start manufacturing again when conditions will permit, if that 40% duty was removed I would have a good chance; I stood A.1. as a moral risk before the war and while I have no money my credit is still good.

I turned my home into a shop after my wife died and have a nice workshop, I could sell a folding organ now and then at retail if I had the supplies to make them, that would make me self supporting again, that would be much better than in the bread line as I have been for some time, tough sailing Franklin.

I invented a new folding organ which they say is uncanny doing seemingly the impossible and I long to get back on deck again, if the depression had only taken the ones who deserved the hardships but there is where old man depression made a big mistake, dishonesty and rascality seem to have full sway.

I am mailing you under separate cover printed copy of the hymn "My Prayer" the Music Trades in an article stated that the musical setting by F. Haanstra splendidly interprets the excellent poem. The words of the type written copy differ somewhat from the printed copy, most people like the new wording better.

Keep up your courage Franklin GOD is with you and so are most of the people, enough to keep you on the job for a while.

I am a little more than twenty years older than you Franklin born in Holland Dec. 1st 1861 coming to Chicago with my parents shortly befor President Lincoln was shot.

I am a praying man, down on my knees every morning, all alone wife dead; I remember you and your good wife in my prayer every morning.

Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States of America.

Dear Mr. Roosevelt:

This is the first time I had an inclination to write to a President of our United States and the inclination is so strong I cannot resist.

How well the people demonstrated their appreciation on your birthday Jan. 30th of your efforts to pull us out of the depression, what a wonderful burst of enthusiasm.

My visionary powers are strong, there are some things I would like to mention in this my letter to you but on second thought I think best not, it has to do with that so called invisible government of the former administrations especially the last. Great Britain will not play ball with you my boy, watch your step, it is not necessary to mention that I am satisfied you know only too well.

I had a questionnaire sent me some time ago by the United States Chamber of Commerce, a copy of a talk before the United States Chamber of Commerce by the Hon Daniel C. Roper was enclosed. I answered the questionnaire made some suggestions and stated that I enjoyed reading your talk before the United States Chamber of Commerce, a few hints that you do know of the doings of the former administration by that so called invisible government and that you do appreciate the fact that our President Franklin D. Roosevelt has a big job untangling the mess and that he is doing everything within his power to give us a new deal. Mr. Roper replied in person and in closing stated I have noted with great interest your comments on my talk before the United States Chamber of Commerce and am pleased to have your views in determining the proper functions in the Department of Commerce.

Please remember me to Mr. Roper when you see him, tell him I am still hoping for the best.

Over half my business was export which the war shot to pieces and the high tariff walls put me out of business the depression did the rest; I bought my reed-boards reeds and keys from the Piano & Organ Supply Co. here but they are out of business, since then I

ALL THINGS CONSIDERED

BY HOWARD VINCENT O'BRIEN

CYNICS are always trotting out shaggy old stalking-horses, like "You can't change human nature," and "History repeats itself," and "The more it changes the more it is the same thing."

These phrases have a devastating sound, but they vanish like soap bubbles at the least touch of reason.

Today, being the president's birthday, is a good time to contemplate anew the fact that, before our eyes, time's moving finger is writing things upon the scroll of history that never were seen there before.

The Road to Damascus

Something new happened on the fourth of last March—something as definite and catastrophic as the collision of two planets. The new-made executive had not uttered twenty words of his inaugural address before the dazed millions of this land knew beyond all doubt that a new world had come out of chaos. The emotional change was instant and all but universal. The ship of state, long rotting in a hot and copper sea, suddenly heeled to a breeze of hope, and the green turned white under the cut-water.

No one who heard the taking of the oath on that historic day will ever forget the experience. Like Saul on the road to Damascus, men saw visions and went straightaway into new lives. It was a far greater day than that memorable one on which Joffre told his fleeing Franks that the end of retreat had come.

No Sign of Weakness

Nearly a year has rolled away since then. Again and again, the dismal wiseacres have prophesied that the end of the "honeymoon" was nigh. Again and again they have had to eat their words. History has not repeated itself. In all the welter of social and economic argument, one fact stands out like a tower in a desert: Roosevelt is today more solidly intrenched in the hearts of his countrymen than ever before. One may search the horizon in vain for signs of waning faith.

There has been criticism, true—most of it as furtive as it has been violent. That which has come out in the open has returned, with interest compounded, upon its authors. One quality the criticism has had in common—it has all been based on fear. It has been aimed, not at what the man has done, but at what he might do. And new goblins have constantly had to be invented as the old ones turned to sawdust.

Echo of Opinion

The miracle continues. Nothing in history is comparable to it. Heaven has raised up a leader, a Moses to lead his people to the promised land, handing down tablets of stone from a new Sinai. The believer in democracy finds his faith restored, and skeptics have been converted. As if Jehovah had spoken, the people have handed their leader the blank checks of a self-imposed autocracy.

It seems to me that Roosevelt wields a power beyond that exercised by any despot of the past, because in him all the aspirations of the age come to focus. He is not the leader of opinion so much as its echo. A people bogged in materialism, weighed down by the chains of an outworn ethic, chafing under a sense of injustice, have found this man expressing what they feel so deeply but cannot express for themselves. The earth-bound soar on the wings of his idealism. They cannot grasp the machinery of flight, but they see the star to which he points.

True Prophet

I have said it before, but it cannot be too often repeated—the power of Roosevelt is essentially religious. His appeal is to the good side of man. Through all the fabric of his utterances and his actions runs the golden thread of reiteration that man must be his brother's keeper or civilization will collapse in dust and ashes. To say that he is a consummate "politician" is merely to say that, better, perhaps, than any man in history, he has voiced the spirit of his time.

He is a prophet in the true meaning of the word—not foretelling the future, but "speaking forth in advance." He is in the line of the kings of Israel, whose voices, undimmed by the centuries, still ring true and firm.

Here's to you, Mr. President. And may you always believe that the voice of the people is the voice of God.

ALL THINGS CONSIDERED

BY HOWARD VINCENT O'BRIEN

WOMAN'S work, it is said, is never done. Another proof of that is the case of the suburban housewife, who, just as she was dashing from the house to catch a train, was startled to see a large and beautiful butterfly reposing on the piano.

It was midwinter—no time for butterflies to be hanging about—and for a moment she wondered if she were seeing things. Then she recalled that, some time before, the children, as part of their nature study, had brought home a cocoon.

Not knowing anything about the care and feeding of butterflies, she telephoned the school. She was told that the butterfly wouldn't live long, and that if its young owners were to see it she would have to move fast.

This presented a problem. Mabel, who had a half interest in the butterfly, was upstairs, quarantined with scarlet fever. If the butterfly were taken into her room, it couldn't be taken out. Therefore Robert, the other owner, would never see it, and would consider himself deeply wronged.

Robert was at school. The distracted mother called and left word that during his lunch period he was to hurry to a neighbor's house, where he would see his butterfly.

"Butterfly?" echoed the teacher, taking the message.

"Just tell him to go to the house," said the mother soothingly. Then she took the butterfly and went to the neighbor's house, where she put in ten minutes trying to make the Finnish servant understand that Robert would be in later to see it. That was hard enough, but there was more. After Robert had seen his butterfly, he was to take it to his own house and turn it over to the maid, who would then give it to the trained nurse, who would take it to Mabel's room, where, presumably, it would die of scarlet fever or exhaustion or whatever butterflies die of.

This done, the wretched woman ran for her train. When last seen she was quietly mumbling to herself.

Franklin Augustus

The piece I wrote on the celebration of Roosevelt's birthday was meant to be an objective report on what seemed to me a phenomenon almost without precedent in history.

A varied mail resulted. There were many post cards, written in pencil—misspelled, ungrammatical, but breathing a deep emotion. Here is a typical one:

"I believe this is your masterpiece, and you surely know what makes us poor men so fearful and worried—God bless you. You have made me feel very happy tonight."

There were letters berating me for having been sucked in by outrageous ballyhoo. The more temperate insisted that Roosevelt had done nothing to attack the basic ills from which we suffer, and would do nothing; that he was a tool of the "interests," and was merely delaying the inevitable revolution. To these people the birthday celebration was a monstrous piece of artificiality, and all enthusiasm for the president is either hypocrisy or delusion.

Lastly, there were the sophisticates, tolerantly contemptuous of what they call my evangelism. One called me a cross between Svengali and Aimee McPherson. Another said that the fervor for Roosevelt, if it really existed—which he doubted—merely proved that democracy had not and could not succeed.

Well, it may be that the voice of the people is sound and fury, signifying nothing. But I do not see how any fair observer can deny that Roosevelt is today closer to deification than any other man since the Cæsars.

Anecdote

I have reason to believe that this story is true. But if it isn't, it might very well be.

An old friend of Roosevelt's, who had not seen him for many years, called on him recently. They had a quiet talk. Finally the friend said: "Franklin, I can't get over how amazingly you have changed!"

Roosevelt shook his head. "I haven't changed at all. You see, all my life I've wanted to be president. I studied for it, and I watched my step every minute. I was a politician, because I had to be. But since the 4th of March, I've been myself." Good for you. Homo

Dear Mr. O'Brien;

Your article on President Roosevelt's birthday was fine and I wondered if you would touch on the letters you would receive, I am glad you did.

I had a good laugh on your "sophisticate" calling you a cross between Svengali and Aimee McPherson, I can imagine you had a good laugh at that yourself.

I look upon humanity as made up of uprights horizontals and slants, there is such a maze of slants that it takes a very keen close observing eye to distinguish the upright and the horizontal forming the cross, the positive and the negative.

If he does not act more decent
Than he's been doing most recent;
I'll write "Hizonner" Carter Glass,
How Christ did ride upon an ass.

I enjoy reading your articles Howard, good luck to you.

I have the hymn "My Prayer" printed and set to music and will be glad to mail you a copy at your request, the wording differs somewhat from the typewritten copy.

Sincerely yours,

NOTICES

The flowers today are given by the Orr family in loving memory of their parents, Dollie Irene, and Margaret May.

The Flower Committee would be pleased to hear from friends wishing to furnish flowers March 4 and March 11. Miss Hazel M. Stover, Chairman, 208 North Laramie Avenue; Austin 1548.

All material for the weekly bulletin must be submitted to the Church Office, in writing, not later than ten o'clock Wednesday mornings.

We welcome to our church this evening the members of St. Mark's Church and their minister, Rev. Ramon Cabrerro. These friends of ours, from the land of our nearest neighbor on the south, have made Chicago their home. They are sharing with us in the building of one of the mightiest cities of all time. Let us share with them in helping to give our city a soul that is shaped in the strength and the beauty of the soul of Christ.

There will be a social "coffee" served in Pilgrim Hall immediately after the evening service, by the ladies of the Prudential Committee. Our Mexican friends will sing a hymn or two in their native language. All are invited to remain for this brief social period and to greet our friends from St. Mark's Church.

The Benevolent Council will sponsor its fourth annual series of Lenten Teas. The first Tea will be held Tuesday, February 20, 2 P. M. at the home of Mrs. J. W. Black, 3110 Logan Boulevard. Co-hostesses: Mrs. F. M. Bryan, Mrs. A. J. Sprague and Mrs. Paul Harris. Dr. Morgan will be the speaker. Take Logan Square "L" to end of line or Kedzie Avenue street car, No. 17, to Logan Boulevard. All the ladies of this church are cordially invited to attend these meetings.

The Business Women's Council will hold its monthly meeting Wednesday evening, February 21, with dinner (40 cents) at 6:15. Miss Mary Higbee, one of the members of the Council, will speak upon the subject, "Adult Teaching in the Dante School." This is an interesting and timely subject. All members are urged to attend and bring their friends.

"Anthony Adverse," by Hervey Allen, will be the book discussed Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock. This book has been for many months the best seller in America. It is said by many to be the greatest novel ever written by an American. The book will be reviewed by Raymond Morgan. A cordial invitation is extended to all who may desire to share in this service.

Dr. Ernest Graham Guthrie, General Director of the Chicago Congregational Union, will preach in New First Church pulpit next Sunday morning. Dr. Morgan will be the preacher at a preaching mission at Doremus Church. New First Church is happy not only to have Dr. Guthrie in the pulpit as the representative of the Congregational Union, which has been and is such a great friend to the Church, but also to have its minister share in the program of Preaching Missions now being carried on under the leadership of the Union.

A Moentita Ceremonial will be given next Sunday evening under the direction of Miss Cairns. Ranks will be conferred on the Moentita girls who have completed the required work and members of the club will present the beautiful "Ceremonial of the Sunset." You are invited to attend.

Arrangements are being made for a class upon the meaning of church membership to be held during the Lenten Season.

The Women's Guild will present "Sophronia's Wedding" on March 1. Come and see your friends in costumes of 1890 or before. Are you an uplifter? Whether you are or not, come and see the Tattletown Uplift Society in serious operation. Tickets, 35 cents.

MY PRAYER

Jesus our Saviour, O show us thy way,
Pathways so many, are leading astray;
Keep us, O keep us, away from the snares,
Wrecking our faith, and increasing our cares.

Paths that once led us, in childhood's glad day,
Seem to have vanished, since many a day;
Love and contentment, that once filled our hearts,
Now seem forsaken, for wealth of our marts.

Give us we pray thee, new visions of love,
Seeking thy pathways, to mansions above;
Lights that were one time, our heavenly bliss,
Grant us we pray thee, for sadly we miss.

"Be not discouraged, nor be thou misled,"
I thy GOD speaketh, the Lord our GOD said;
"Cares there are many, and grievous to bear,
I'll not forsake thee, away from my care."

Blessed Lord Jesus, O be with us now,
Hear our petitions, as humbly we bow;
Be thou our guardian, in all of our ways,
Love and obey thee, thru all of our days.

Grant us thy presence, to know as our guest,
And with thee share e'en, the bread thou hast blest;
When all our work here, has come to an end,
Serve thee in heaven, our Saviour and Friend.

COMFORT YE ONE ANOTHER

There are signs that all is not right,
 Men ask "Watchman! what of the night?"
Evil spirits doth man decoy,
 And e'en the winds and waves destroy.

As whirlwinds in the south pass thru,
 So spoilers shall receive their due;
Men's hearts are failing them with fear,
 Looking after that which is near.

Woe unto them that hath denied
 GOD'S laws,and hath His will defied;
For retribution is at hand,
 And shall be dealt in every land.

Then comfort ye one another,
 Think of thy suffering brother;
For GOD hath said, "these things must be,"
 Then guide him where he cannot see.

The Master came to give us light,
 To guide us always in the right;
With help and strength and courage give,
 That we might meek and lowly live.

He came with pow'r that men did ask,
"Who is this man that takes to task?"
Who e'en the winds obey His will,
 When He said to them, - "PEACE, BE STILL."

Dear Mr. President:

I am having sent you a copy of our calendar which is a reproduction of a painting by Gordon Grant of the "Charles W. Morgan".

Knowing your very great interest in ships, I thought you might like to add this to your collection. It so happens that my wife's maternal grandfather was one of the great ship-builders at Bath, Maine, and we still maintain the old family homestead on the shore of the Kennebec River.

Senate and the House; the three cherries on the right represent the arteries of commerce, and the two cherries on the left hand side represents our two forms of Government, National and State, and the observer will find that one of these cherries is larger which shows that the lief of our nation is stronger than any one State. Under this structure we find the leaves representing life giving powers, and through these leaves life breathes and the warmth and light of a nation is shedded.

The right hand side of the back of the chair represents the spiritual side of our nation, and the left hand side of the back of the chair represents the material side of our nation, and

"THE ROOSEVELT CHAIR"

Mr. G. D. Fletcher, a resident of Kingsport, Sullivan County, Tennessee, made by hand, in his furniture shop in Kingsport, Tennessee, "The Roosevelt Chair", from cherry wood taken from a tree on the Daniel Boone Trail, a part of Long Island in the Holston Valley, and where the Cherokee Indians once camped, and had their happy hunting ground.

This is an historical chair, and the art and craft of this chair has its spiritual and material meaning. The bar on the top of the back of the chair represents the Chief Executive of our nation; the cluster of grapes under the bar represents the law making body of the nation, the two branches of Congress, the Senate and the House; the three cherries on the right represent the arteries of commerce, and the two cherries on the left hand side represents our two forms of Government, National and State, and the observer will find that one of these cherries is larger which shows that the lief of our nation is stronger than any one State. Under this structure we find the leaves representing life giving powers, and through these leaves life breathes and the warmth and light of a nation is shedded.

The right hand side of the back of the chair represents the spiritual side of our nation, and the left hand side of the back of the chair represents the material side of our nation, and these two forces are used to support and hold erect the entire structure above.

The cross member holding together the posts which represents the material side and the spiritual side of our nation, is shown by two fish of equal size, and these two fish represent capital and labor, and show that either are indispensable, but that the New Deal has placed both on an equal footing, and these two things hold firmly the spiritual and the material sides of our nation, and co-operate with each other to bring about unity, peace, prosperity and happiness.

The top or seat of this chair represents light, and the fringe and the tacks hold firmly in place the light, so that the entire structure of Government may function for all the people, and unless this light is kept filled with oil and trimmed so that the people of America may go about their tasks in light instead of darkness, this nation will perish.

On the front of the chair under the seat, the observer will find carved a picture of the sun with its radiant rays shooting downward, under these rays of sunlight, rests about 123,000,000 of people that form and make America.

Under the New Deal by the greatest President in all the tide of time, the rays of this sun give warmth to the rich and poor, the humble and the mighty, and draw all people together with but one thought and one purpose, the welfare of humanity.

Dear Sir:

Within a few days we are sending a cane to the White House for the use of President Roosevelt.

This particular cane has no intrinsic value, but is a copy which the writer, in the capacity of Foreign Buyer for Follmer, Clogg & Co., had made while in Berlin. It is the exact duplicate of the cane used by Frederick the Great,--the original of which is now in a museum with other relics belonging to the former German Empire. Permission was granted to have this cane duplicated and the writer imported some for the use of crippled ladies on account of the comfortable hand grip.

If this cane is accepted by the President, well and good. If not desirable, well and good again. In either case no acknowledgment is necessary what-so-ever. We will send this cane addressed to the White House.

Yours very truly

Dear Mr. President;-

Because of your recent visit to our State I am taking the liberty of sending a copy of my little book, Stories of the Seminoles, to your home. I hope you may find a use for it. It has been adopted as a supplementary reader in the public schools of Florida and seems to give great pleasure to children. It contains many facts never before presented to the public.

It may interest you to know that I have written a History of Florida for 4th grade elementary pupils. Rand McNally would have published it last year but for the late depression and it is now being considered by another publisher. I have spent four years in writing, testing and revising the work so as to have it in suitable form for children. No State in the country has a more colorful and romantic history than Florida.

If I should succeed in having it published, I feel that I shall owe it to your untiring efforts in restoring hope and confidence throughout the nation.

Gratefully and respectfully yours,

TO THE PRESIDENT,

HONORABLE FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT:

I, Warren R. Fairley am dedicating to you, this day, May 12th, 1934, this picture of you and your Mother.

The idea is one of my own and I know of nothing more appropriate than to dedicate to you the words and expression mentioned therein. I trust that you will like this, as this is all that I have to offer. I am just a poor boy and would like for you to help me work this idea of mine out, as I have a song to go in connection with this and I would be honored to learn from you if you are interested in it further.

I am, Obediently,

Your Servant,

Beloved Mr. President, I send you herewith enclosed a little story, PETER THE GREAT, for your amusement aboard the beautiful gray Houston. I know you won't have a thing to do but amuse yourself--at least you wouldn't--if I could help it.

I can't resist sending you this gift at this time, because by what to me is a thrilling coincidence, the story was inspired by a visit to the magnificent ship, Houston, while she languished in drydock in the Brooklyn Navy Yard, all unaware of the distinction awaiting her a few years later. Throughout the book the Houston is mentioned, and in Chapter twenty-two the visit of my inspiration is described in part. May you have time to read it--and may the reading bring one smile to your lips!

This story was written with Love, for all those whose hearts are impregnated with that power--peculiar to Christ and children--of embracing all degrees and kinds of humanity in a poignantly solicitous brotherhood. Surely, of all the world, you have demonstrated the possession of this transcendent power.

I enclose a short lyric. It burst out of my heart, while I listened to the passionate truth and promise in your voice, as your inaugural message rang its immortal challenge to the despair which had all but destroyed us.

Because you love ships--and so do I--I send you, ON A BRETON QUAY.

May your vacation renew you--body, spirit, brain, and great heart, as you have renewed our dear country! God keep you most carefully! I am very sincerely,

Maria Owens Farrell

EASTERTIDE 1933.

Risen--the lark,
His song in the blue,
Gone is the dark!

Risen from despair
A greed-strangled world--
A Voice fills the air!

Risen a new day,
Brighter than light--
Hope shows a way!

Risen--a hand
Mighty and kind--
Look up, tragic land!

Risen--my soul,
From night of strange woe,
And pain's fierce toll.

Risen--from brown clod
A perfumed white lily
Shining for God!

His Excellency the President of the United States
The White House
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Roosevelt,

As one of your successors in the presidency of the Harvard Crimson, I received from you some years ago on several occasions such gracious notes that I should like to add what personal support I can to this letter. Its purpose is to present to you the first copy of the "Economic Handbook of the Pacific Area," the most recent publication of the Institute of Pacific Relations, for which Mr. Newton D. Baker has written an introduction.

This Handbook is the most recent result of the international research work carried on by the Institute of Pacific Relations for the past seven years. Although I have signed it as editor, it is in the fullest sense of the word an international cooperative production. We are convinced that the wide-spread distribution of authoritative information in this form can result only in a better informed public opinion on the problems of the Pacific area.

The significance you have given in public statements to these problems and your present trip to the Hawaiian Islands reinforce this conviction.

I am also sending, directly to the S. S. Houston at Annapolis, three other volumes selected from the publications of the Institute, which might have special interest for you. They are the most recent copy of "Pacific Affairs;" a symposium entitled "Empire in the East;" and a short monograph, "The American Tariff and Oriental Trade," by Philip G. Wright.

Although your trip is primarily a holiday, I hope that you may have time to look at these, and that the Handbook may possibly be of some real value to you.

Very sincerely yours,

Your Excellency

Recently we held a contest among the Acoma Indian at our display-room in San Fidel, New Mex. in order to determin the best artist in the making of original Acoma Indian pottery. During the contest it was decided that the maker of the best pottery would

Have the singular privilage and honor of making a few articles for you, our beloved President and the members of your family.

We, being members of the N.R.A., decided that no design, however beautiful, could compare with the insignia of the Blue Eagle, the principles of wich you so nobly proposed and so valiantly defended.

It is therefore, with the greatest pleasure and honor, that we send to you these handworks of a prize-winning artist, as a token of appreciation and gratitude for the many things you have done for our Beloved Country.

Hoping that you will be pleased with the reception of these perfect specimens of original Oconee Indian pottery, we remain
