My dear ~~Miss~~ Foley:

I have received your letter of July nineteenth. Thank you ever so much for your kindness in sending me the painting, a product of your own work. I do appreciate your friendly thought.

It will indeed be heartening to the President to know that he is remembered in your prayers during these critical days.

Very sincerely yours,

Grace G. Tully

Dear Miss Tully:

I am mailing,Wednesday,July the twenty-first,a portrait I have painted of President Roosevelt,enlarged from the photograph you sent me,which,I shall enclose in the back of the painting.

I enjoyed painting the President's portrait,very much,and I personally think he is the grandest President we have ever had.

May God bless him and ease the heavy burdens pressed upon him by this war.

Very sincerely yours,

Vivien Grey Foley.

My Dear Miss Tully:

I have been anxiously waiting for some message informing me that you have received the Presidents Portrait,

I sent it on July 21st,by express, carefully boxed and wraped and insured for$300,It should of been there by now or sooner,

I thought after working on it for four months inlarging it and painting it, I might get an Autographed note from the President telling me if he liked it. I guess I am humam after all,

I sent the Portrait to the Presidemt %of you I hope I am not asking too much,

I am simcerely yours

Mrs Vivien Orey. Foley.

P,S.

I have Two soms preparing to inlist,Which will leave me quite lonely,as my Husband is confined to his bed most of the time.

August 18, 1943

My dear Mrs. Foley:

In response to your letter of August twelfth, I am enclosing a copy of a communication addressed to you under date of July twenty-sixth.

I want to assure you that the President deeply appreciates your kind thought in sending your painting to him.

Very sincerely yours,

Grace G. Tully

I wonder if its asking too much if I ask you if you have received the portrait I painted for the Presidemt,

I have been looking for an answer to my last letter of last week regarding the above,

I presume you are very busy right now during the Presidents overwhelming burdens of this dreadful war, I do hope the portrait was not lost,

RECEIVED

July 19, 1943

The Honorable Franklin D. Roosevelt
President of the United States
Washington, D. C.

Dear President Roosevelt:

By Railway Express we have forwarded to you one of the standard bolos issued by the people of Los Angeles and Southern California to the officers and men of the Second Filipino Infantry at Camp Cooke, California. We thought that you, with your great interest in the Philippines, would be happy to have one of the bolos, and to know that the citizens of Southern California stand wholeheartedly behind the Filipinos in this most tragic period of their history.

PPF 9-B

PPF 9-K

400 Philippine

It came to my attention, through an article in the Reader's Digest, that the Filipino soldiers being trained in the United States, greatly desired bolos. Having lived for many years in the Philippines I organized a committee, under the auspices of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, to provide the regiment with bolos, and I can assure you that it was a very happy moment for all of us when last Saturday, July 17th, the brave Filipino soldiers of the Second Filipino Infantry paraded in front of us with the rays of the California sun reflected from their drawn bolos.

We are sure that you, Mr. President, will agree with us that those Filipinos will give a good account of themselves on the field of battle when their time for action comes.

With our very best wishes to you,

Respectfully yours,

Dear Mr. McIntyre:

I am shipping you tonight a box of Frantzhurst Rainbow Trout which I hope will reach you in good condition this time. The failure before was due to neglect of express company agent somewhere along the line to reice.

Will you kindly see that these trout are given to the President and hope they may be there in time to serve to Mr. Churchill. If the trout get there too soon will you please advise me and I'll send another box. I do not know just when Mr. Churchill will be in Washington but if he should get there later on and I still have time to send the trout I would appreciate your advising me. Also please let me know if this shipment arrives in good condition or not. We ship to the East Coast every day and if properly iced en route they should arrive in first class condition.

I'm very much rushed so this is a hurried letter. With kindest regards,

Dear Mr. Farson:

I am delighted that to your list of books you now have added "Going Fishing", and I deeply appreciate your generous thought in sending me a copy of the English edition through Ambassador Winant. I shall look forward with delight to an opportunity to read it and to the realization sooner or later of the hope you express in the inscription. Thank you very much.

Dear Mr. Ambassador:-

I have taken the liberty of asking you to send this book to the President. Francis, of Princes Bookshop, told me that you had bought some of my books there: "Behind God's Back" being one. I want this "Going Fishing" to go to the President in its English edition. It was published two days ago in the United States; and, I think, it is now out in Sweden. But the un-Americanized version might amuse the President.

I hope you will not think it too forward of me to ask you to do me the great favor of forwarding this. I shall be most grateful to you.

I have been down here, directly on the sea, for over a year now - trying to heal a dud leg. When I get to London again, may I call and see you?

Yours sincerely,

Negley Farson

PETWORTH AIR RAID WARDENS' HEADQUARTERS
514 TAYLOR STREET, N. W.
WASHINGTON 11, D. C.

November 8, 1943

Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt,
The White House,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President:

On behalf of the Petworth Air Raid Warden Service of the Washington Defense Region, Office of Civilian Defense, the Hon. John Russell Young, Regional Director, I take pleasure, and a great deal of pride, in presenting you herewith five copies of a CIVILIAN DEFENSE HANDBOOK and DIRECTORY.

As stated on its cover, this booklet has been prepared by the several Senior Zone Wardens for the information and guidance of the residents of the Petworth Defense Area. Distribution to the citizens' homes, numbering approximately 3,300, was accomplished during the month of September, 1943 by the members of our Warden Service whose total enrollment now stands at 704, all of whom have been certified according to standards of Warden education prescribed by the National Office of Civilian Defense, Mr. John B. Martin, National Director.

At a time like the present, when our 704 members of the Citizens' Defense Corps of the Washington Defense Region, together with the nation-wide membership of the Corps, are taking a psychological mauling through the, perhaps, good intentions of certain special writers of the press as well as certain radio commentators, all of whom wield considerable power over the formulation of opinion in their respective groups of patrons, I believe that you will be cheered to know of this particular instance of positive action by a segment of Civilian Defense membership to offset the remarks of the individuals to whom I have just referred.

November 8, 1943

Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt:

No doubt, Mr. President, you are acutely aware of the nature of the remarks of these writers and commentators, as witness your recent public statement. These remarks, in my opinion, constitute an indulgence in the dangerous sport of "second-guessing" the motives of the Defense Commands of the United States Army in, apparently, abandoning absolutely the numerous and vital spotter posts of the Aircraft Warning Service and dissolving their personnel.

I trust that you will be able to snatch a few moments from the cares of state to peruse this booklet, which represents considerable time and effort by volunteer workers whose greatest satisfaction has been a wealth of praise from Regional Director Young and his subordinates within the Washington Defense Region.

Respectfully yours,

My dear Mr. Frantz:

Thank you very much for your letter of November eighth and for the box of trout which you were kind enough to send to the President and me. The trout arrived yesterday and we are both most appreciative of your thoughtfulness.

I am sorry it is not possible to comply with your request for a letter from the President. However, the pressure of his official duties is so tremendously heavy these days that for sometime now it has not been possible for him to find the time to write many letters which in the ordinary course of events he would, of course, wish to write. I am sure you will understand the circumstances and will realize that it evidences no lack of appreciation of your kindness.

As you request, I am returning herewith the letters from your son which you forwarded with your letter.

Sincerely yours,

Honorable Marvin H. McIntyre, Secretary to the President
The White House
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. McIntyre:

Tomorrow I am sending you a fifteen pound box of FRANTZHURST RAINBOW TROUT. Will you see that ten pounds of these go to the White House for President Roosevelt and keep the other five pounds for yourself? If it is not asking too much I'm going to request a favor from you. My boy, Horace Jr. is in the Navy and I know of nothing which would give him a greater thrill than to be able to show his buddies a letter from the President showing that his daddy ships trout to the White House. I'm enclosinga short letter as a suggestion and if it is within reason will you draft one on White House Stationery and have the President sign it? I'M also enclosing three letters from my boy so you can judge something about him. I think they may provide you with some good laughs and also give you a pretty good insight into his general character. In order that you may not think he is too particular I wish to say that when he speaks of a certain girl drinking coffee; this young lady consumes from three to five cups per day. I am sending his letters because I want you to see how proud he is of his work and it shows that there are young men in the Service who want to get the most out of their work and I am very proud along with him that he wears the uniform of the U. S. Navy. Will you please return these letters to me as I wish to keep them in my files? I may also add that since getting the letters from my son I have given him names of some friends of mine in Memphis and by now he has very likely met all the nice girls he cares to. Also Shirley Temple is writing him and sending him some late snap shots.

The demand for our trout is very heavy and I am trying to greatly enlarge our production over the next year. Our greatest difficulty is labor but all businesses face the same hardships. The situstion on the War fronts are very encouraging and it looks as though we may be able to finish this War in 1944.

I hope sometime after this War that you can visit me in Salida and see what a wonderful country we live in. I know you are busy so don't take time to answer this letter. Just return Horace Jr's letters andtif it is not out offlimeI would appreciate a signed letter from the President. With kindest regards,

FURLONG, Col. Charles Wellington,
Graham-Eckes School,
Palm Beach, Fla.
September 25, 1943

Writes to the President making reference to the letter's letter re the matter of placing a suitable monument over the spot where the old U.S. Frigate Philadelphia now lies, and also to his acceptance of a small written souvenir, with its sliver of the old Philadelphia, for the President's historical museum at Hyde Park. Says that in the meantime he has had a map mounted, inscribed and framed, and sent to the President, which he thinks the President will value almost as much as the Philadelphia souvenir. This map is a record of every camp made by General William Eaton, in Africa. Tells that he is at present at work on the story of our Navy in its fight for the freedom of the Mediterranean during that dramatic and romantic period of the Barbary wars. Asks permission to quote from the President's letter in relation to that matter.--
On 12/30/43 Miss Tully wrote to Col. Furlong stating that upon his return from the Cairo-Teheran conferences, the President was delighted to find the interesting map above mentioned. She expresses the President's appreciation of this gift and states it will have an honored place in his collections. Miss Tully adds that there is no objection in Col. Furlong's quoting the last paragraph of the President's letter to him of July 30th, in the manner above mentioned.--(Pencil notation indicates that the above-mentioned map is to go to the President's Hyde Park Library.)

wrote Mr. Early that he was sending "about 15 pounds of rainbow trout to you. Will you kindly keep five pounds and give the balance to President Roosevelt?"

Miss Tully knowsabout this -- distribution was made when the trout arrived on December 24th.

Mr. Early will thank.

The letter states further: "I had already given an order for some of our famous Colorado celery to be shipped to Mr. McIntyre and when I heard of his death, I cancelled the order but asked that two boxes be sent to you. They will be sent by Thos. Green Brothers of Denver. Will you please keep one box for yourself and give one to the President?"

The celery arrived today. There were four boxes. Mrs. Early has two. I am sending two to you. The celery is not in very good condition.

We will acknowledge and thank.

Honorable Stephen T. Early, Secretary
The White House
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Early:

When you have an opportunity will you kindly express to the President my sincere sympathy and heartfelt regret, at the loss of his faithful and devoted secretary, Mr. Marvin McIntyre? I just wish to say that during a visit to Washington in 1937 I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. McIntyre and my reception was so warm and cordial that I formed a very deep regard for him and have corresponded with him occasionally since that time. At times like these friendships mean a great deal and I can well appreciate what his loss must mean to those close to him. The President has lost two very faithful, loyal and devoted men during his occupancy of the White House. I refer to Mr. Howe, whom I thought one of the finest men who ever lived.

I have sent Frantzhurst Rainbow Trout to President Roosevelt since his first breakfast at the White House but since I met Mr. McIntyre I have been sending them to him and asking him to see that the President received them. Mr. McIntyre enjoyed them so much I often sent them to him or told him to take out some for himself and give the rest to the President. Since his passing I know no one at the White House except Colonel Starling. I would like to send trout to the President ocassionally and so will you kindly see that he gets them if I ship them? It will be a pleasure to ship them if I know he will receive them. I know so many things are sent to him that he probably never receives. I had already given an order for some of our famous Colorado celery to be shipped to Mr. McIntyre and when I heard of his death I cancelled the order but asked that two boxes be sent to you. They will be sent by Those Green Brothers of Denver. Will you please keep one box for yourself and give one to the President? Tomorrow I am shipping about fifteen pounds of Frantzhurst Rainbow trout to you. Will you kindly keep five pounds and give the balance to President Roosevelt?

Dear Mr. Early:

When you have an opportunity will you kindly express to the President my sincere sympathy and heartfelt regret, at the loss of his faithful and devoted secretary, Mr. Marvin McIntyre? I just wish to say that during a visit to Washington in 1937 I had the pleasure of meeting Mr. McIntyre and my reception was so warm and cordial that I formed a very deep regard for him and have corresponded with him occasionally since that time. The President has lost two very faithful, loyal and devoted men during his occupancy of the White House. I refer to Mr. Howe, whom I thought one of the finest men who ever lived.

I have sent Frantzhurst Rainbow Trout to President Roosevelt since his first breakfast at the White House but since I met Mr. McIntyre I have been sending them to him and asking him to see that the President received them. Mr. McIntyre enjoyed them so much I often sent them to him or told him to take out some for himself and give the rest to the President. Since his passing I know no one at the White House except Colonel Starling. I would like to send trout to the President ocassionally and so will you kindly see that he gets them if I ship them? Tomorrow I am shipping about fifteen pounds of Frantzhurst Rainbow trout to you. Will you kindly keep five pounds and give the balance to President Roosevelt?

Please advise me if I may continue to ship trout once in a while and if you will see that the President receives them? If it is inconvenient please do not hesitate to say so. I hope someday I may have the pleasure of meeting you. I had no idea Mr. McIntyre was so sick. I valued his friendship and shall miss him. With kindest regards and every good wish for A Very Happy Christmas and thanking you in advance, I am,

Sincerely yours,

'Never a Collision'

By Lura M. Mitchell

Winner of The Frederick Bonfils Memorial Award

The last delectible mouthful was gone. Only a naked spine, a twisted rind of lemon, and a blissful satisfaction remained of my Colorado mountain trout dinner. I summoned the waiter of the famous New York hotel.

"That," I beamed at him, "was the best trout dinner I have ever eaten. That fish tasted better than the ones I pull out of the Gunnison River in Colorado, and fry on shore twenty minutes later."

"We're glad you enjoyed it, sir." The waiter was pleased. Perhaps you'd like to know that your trout came out of Colorado waters not twenty-five minutes before he was served to you."

I stared in utter amazement at the deleted backbone on my plate. Almost two thousand miles from Colorado and he had been swimming around gleefully in Colorado mountain spring water only a few minutes ago? I couldn't believe it.

But it was so. I visited the great kitchen and saw the container in which he had arrived. Several delicious dinners, happily unaware of impending doom, were still lazily swimming around in a tank, of galvanized iron, the shape of Grandma's old wash boiler but three times as big.

The Chef and I peered in. "Notice the sponge rubber lining top and bottom," he pointed out, "so they won't bruise in shipment." And he went on. "A tank of oxygen accompanies the shipment and is fed steadily into the water, keeping it bubblingly fresh and properly aerated."

"And where do these super-fish come from?" I wanted to know.

"From Salida, Colorado. From the largest trout farm in the world. They're Frantzhurst Rainbows — the sterling silver of Trout-dom."

I was so impressed that I decided to visit Frantzhurst when I returned to my Denver home.

Months later I turned off the main road at the Frantzhurst sign. 'Visitors Welcome' it said. Wending my way half a mile up the Arkansas River, I thought what a strange crop Mr. Frantz was raising here in the heart of the Rockies, where his neighbors concentrated on the more for all the world like a cook grating cheese on the top of a casserole dish. Tessie and Tandy went for that, too.

When they are ready for adult feeding, they go outdoors to the rearing ponds. Tessie and Tandy are fingerlings now.

Socialists of the First Water

There are twenty-seven pools at Frantzhurst, ranging from eighteen inches to twenty-six feet in depth. Included in this number are the breeding ponds where we shall follow Tessie and Tandy later. The pools are a series of cemented lakes, mostly rectangular in shape, each containing fish of a different size.

"Up to the time the fish are five inches long they have to be sorted every three months," Mr. Frantz said. "Some grow faster than others and the larger ones eat the smaller ones."

"I've heard of eating up the profits," I murmured. Thought of this cannibalism brought on an attack of philosophy. "It seems to me that you disprove the communist theory right here. All these fish are given identical advantages from the very beginning. Still, some get bigger and stronger than others and eat their less fortunate brothers. Doesn't it prove something about heredity. or environment?"

Mr. Frantz grinned. "I don't know. Some are just naturally more aggressive than others. But there is this to say about proper environment. Our cultured trout grow about twice as fast as the stream trout. It takes nearly a year and a half for our fish to reach the most marketable size, three-to-a-pound. After they attain this size, they double in weight every six months."

"Goodness," I shuddered. "I'd hate to do that. Think of the diet — But it's good for you."

Several men in hip boots, carrying brooms, climbed into the pools and began sweeping.

"Maid service for Tessie? She certainly is pampered."

Mr. Frantz smiled. "Weekly housecleaning. The waste which the fish cannot digest sinks to the bottom. It is swept to the center of the lake, a valve is turned and the waste is carried to the river."

"Do you have a yearly housecleaning too?"

"Indeed we do. The fish are removed to another lake. The pond is scraped and cleaned with lime and disinfectant. This procedure prevents diseases, which are numerous try?" I wanted to know.

"Our orders for today will answer your question." Mr. Frantz handed me a thick sheaf of letters and telegrams. I thumbed through them. It was a lesson in geography, a list of where-to-go-if-your-funds-are-unlimited. Hotel William Penn, The New Yorker, The Biltmore, the Ambassador, the famous Miramar in Palm Springs, Sun Valley, National Parks - - - a famous fish house in Boston. I goggled at Mr. Frantz.

"Colorado trout invade even the sanctums of seafood centers?" I queried, unbelieving.

"Certainly. Tessie and Tandy rub noses with blue-blooded blue points. They hob-nob with halibut and cavort with cod on New England menus. They co-star with crabs and the famous Biloxi shrimp in New Orleans, and associate with the exclusive abalone steaks of San Francisco."

T. and T. surely get around socially!

In the Breeding Pool

Now fishes don't do things by halves
in the pool,
They didn't raise one, they raised
a whole school;
And they laughed and they shrieked
when the last egg was gone
And they saw a picture of Daddy
Dionne.

Rainbow trout normally spawn in the months of November, December, and January. Tessie, Tandy and company produce nearly a million eggs at a spawning. But Mr. Frantz has gone Mother Nature one better. He has discovered that in altitudes of over eight thousand feet where the lakes are frozen over from October until April or May, that fish spawn in May. A lake at Divide, Colorado, supplies eggs from the May spawning. Thus, Frantzhurst has a twice-a-year supply.

"Couldn't you do something about the non-R months for oyster-lovers?" I implored this Burbankian pisciculturist.

Famous Fish Eaters

The list of Frantzhurst patrons reads like Who's Who. Regular orders go to Alice Faye, Cesare Romero, Shirley Temple, Jack Oakie, John Payne, Jack Mulkahy and W. M. (Doc) Bishop. ELKS and EAGLES feast on fish at conventions. Legionnaires stage stag fish dinners. Tessies and Tandys grace the groaning board at Cabinet dinners. Shipments go regularly to the White House.

From Colonel E. W. Starling, head conventional products — cattle, cauliflower, head lettuce.

Tessie and Tandy Trout
(See Author's Note)

'This is a tale of Tessie the Trout:
In a Frantzhurst pool she wiggled about.
Wiggled and capered in fishy glee
For the water was cool and the food was free.'

One of the world's foremost fish culturists, Mr. Horace Frantz is a vital man enthusiastic about his fishy business. Undoubtedly that is why he is so successful.

"We'll start with the hatchery." he said.

The old saw "Which came first — the chicken or the egg" applies equally well to fish, so it seemed a logical place to start.

The hatchery was a huge building containing rows and rows of galvanized troughs, the width of the building. The zinc trays in the troughs contained about 800,000 eyed eggs. The eggs are known as green eggs first. In about three weeks, in water of fifty-two degrees, they "eye up" and two small black specks are visible in each gold gelatine pellet. The black spots are Tessie, or possibly her boy-friend, Tandy. In another week, they hatch. Tessie and Tandy would hatch sooner if the water were warmer, and a week later for every two degrees colder. The spring water which supplies Frantzhurst always stays at fifty-two degrees, so Tessie and Tandy 'come out' on time.

For some time the wee trouties carry the yolk sac of their egg about with them, their heads sticking out of it in a ludicrous manner. "Like Sinbad carrying the old Man of the Sea," I thought. During this period these small nosebags-on-the-wrong end are Tessie's and Tandy's only food. Gradually they absorb them and T & T are now about half as long as a glamor girl's fingernails, but one would have to use a micrometer to guage their width. They are the quickest, dartiest things I have ever seen.

Tessie and Tandy are now grown up enough to have a diet change. No modern infant gets more scientific care than do these Frantzhurst small fry. They are given raw liver paste, a mixture which looks exactly like tomato catsup.

"This gives them their vitamins," Mr. Frantz explained as he forced paste through a cornucopia potato ricer so that the tiny particles were distributed evenly at the bottom of the trav, where the wee finnies went for them.

"Once a week we treat them to cooked liver, grated." He grabbed a hunk of brown boiled liver and went up and down the length of the trays, grating it along the top of the water among fish. Frantzhurst trout keep healthy," he finished proudly.

Mr. Frantz has a circular pool of which he is justly proud, having designed it himself.

"It has no dead water because there are no corners," he explained.

The water flows in a circular motion and waste matter is carried along until it gradually reaches the center and the valve outlet. No maid service is necessary for Tessie here."

The more water the better fish grow, and Frantzhurst is supplied with innumerable mountain springs, which feed constantly changing water at the rate of ten thousand gallons a minute. No wonder Tessie and Tandy have such firm, white, sweet flesh!

Fish Fodder

Five thousand pounds of gruel daily is fed to T. and T. and their fellow-fish. Cooked beans, cooked beef, alfalfa meal — and of all things! — Puffed Wheat, are ground together in a delicious nutritious fish hash. Hundreds and hundreds of finny beauties swarmed to the surface to partake of this unexpected between-meals snack which Mr. Frantz spooned out to them, that I might watch them feed.

"You couldn't stick your little finger in there without touching a fish or two, but I have never yet seen a collision. They are quicker than the wink of an eye and handle themselves so well no traffic cop is necessary."

They were quicksilver; leaping, darting, living quicksilver.

Tessie and Tandy Travel

There is no verse in the Tale of Tessie which covers packing. Already you have seen how they travel in galvanized tanks, in Colorado mountain spring water. But such accommodations are only when they travel together in vast numbers — a veritable Cook's Tour of them. When fewer are shipped they go by express in wooden boxes. They are packed head-to-tail, fully dressed, in layers. Each layer is separated by a special parchment paper, with which the box is also lined. Crushed ice is packed on top and enroute they are re-iced when necessary.

"Is this method always satisfactory?" I asked.

"So satisfactory," was the reply, "That we have had only about ten complaints in ten years."

pounds of trout are sold each year

And that is something when 200,000 — approximately three-quarters of a million fish!

I watched ten pounds of prime Rainbows, gleaming silver with the red-blue-purple center-stripe from which they derive their name, being bunked into berths for a cross-country trek to an exclusive club in Detroit.

"Do you ship all over the coun-of the White House Secret Service during the terms of many presidents, "We seldom have such a treat and enjoyed every mouthful."

"How long have you been supplying brain-food to the Chief Executives?"

"Since Coolidge. Coolidge, Hoover and now Roosevelt." His eyes twinkled. "Alf Landon and Wendell Willkie are in our family of fish eaters, too."

He showed me a letter from Mr. M. H. McIntyre, personal secretary to President Roosevelt.

"Both the President and I enjoy the rainbow trout."

I saw a letter from Mr. Temple, Shirley's daddy, saying he was sending some oranges raised on Shirley's ranch and hoped they would taste as good as Frantzhurst trout.

"We sent trout to the late Will Rogers as a gift once. Here is a telegram from him."

As I read it, I realized why our beloved Will Rogers can never be replaced in American hearts.

"Many thanks for the fish. That was mighty nice to think of me. I was raised on "Catfish" in Oklahoma but out here we been living on Turtle and Eels. That Colorado must be a great fishing place. I ain't much of a fisherman. I am just a plain fish eater. The whole Rogers family enjoyed 'em immensely and many thanks."

"Will Rogers."

Yes, Tessie and Tandy live and grow in ideal surroundings. In back of their home the Rockies tower — Mts. Shavano, Ouray, Harvard, Yale, Princeton — not one under 14,000 feet. Above them, the Snow Angel— phenomenon, caused by snow-filled gullies — lifts her arms in blessing. She is the old Ute Indian symbol of prosperity and fecundity. To one side of the Snow Angel, is the Frantzhurst personally monogrammed mountain, with a white "F" clearly visible most of the year, also caused by snow in mountain canyons.

"Our trade-mark," said Mr. Frantz.

One wonders if Tessie and Tandy are reluctant to leave this earthly paradise for trout Heaven.

'And the Trout Angel said as he opened the door,
"You'll be happy here for we've Frantzhurst galore;
So you're welcome inside for its our fishy wish
That only those enter who've been a good dish."

THE END
