Happy years are here again,
De-la-no Roosevelt is a Noble man,
Prosperity is back again,
Our Leader is a fearless Man,
Happy years are here again.

More employment we have again,
Shorter hours we work again,
Better pay we receive again,
Well supplied we are again,
Happy years are here again.

How dry I am we can not sing again,
Our Treasury will soon be full again,
World peace soon we will have again,
This will be obtained by Our Noble Man,
Happy Years are Here Again.

Dear Sir:

We are large importers of Norwegian Cod Liver Oil.

Our President, during these strenuous days, should do everything to conserve and maintain his strength for the happy days that are sure to come and to which he is so ably leading us.

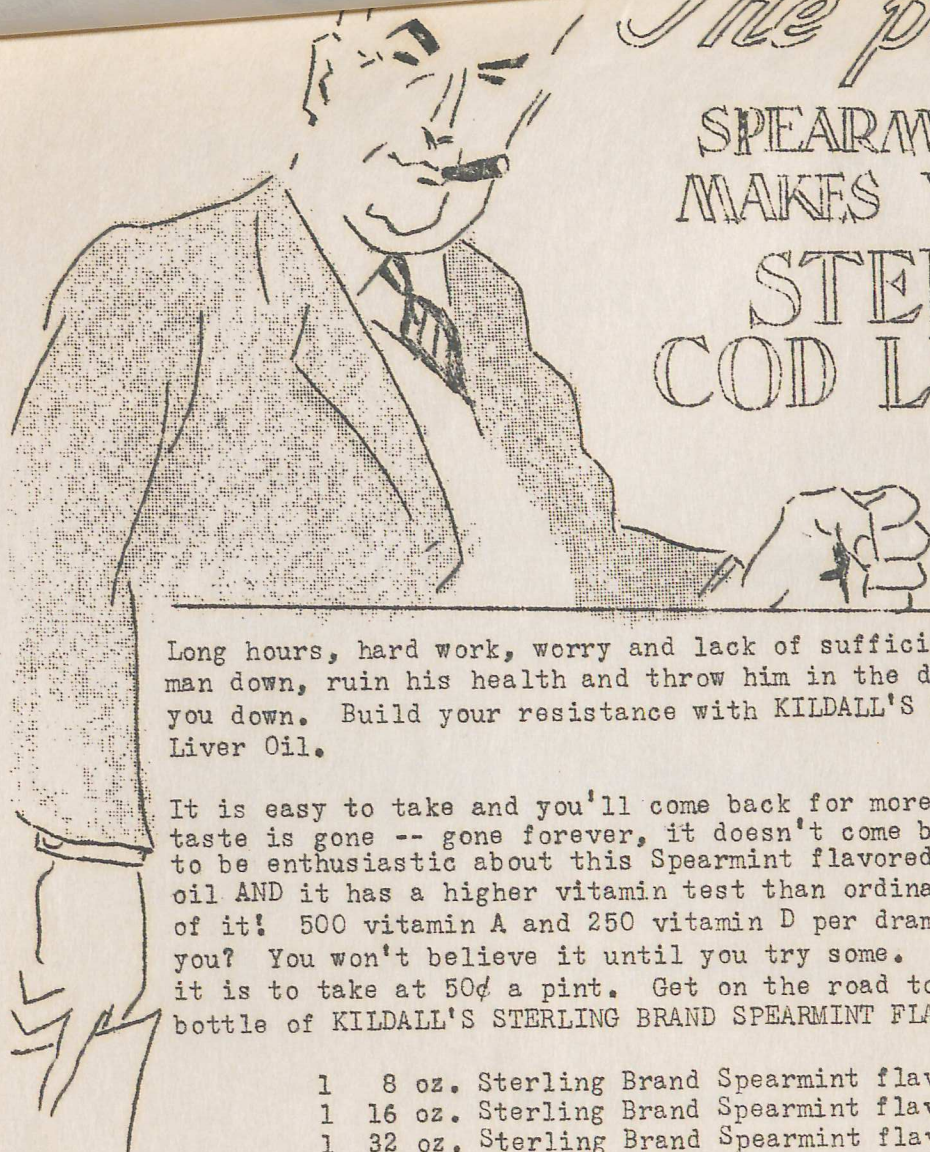

We are now supplying the Reconstruction Finance Corporation at St. Paul with quantities of our Kildall's Spearmint Flavored Cod Liver Oil (objectionable taste concealed) that ranks highest by Minnesota State Test and we believe that a teaspoon after each meal of this food would prove of great benefit to our President.

We are mailing, under separate cover, a half-pint bottle as a trial and if he wants more, we would be glad to furnish it.

Long hours, hard work, worry and lack of sufficient sunshine will tear a man down, ruin his health and throw him in the discard. Don't let it get you down. Build your resistance with KILDALL'S Spearmint flavored Cod Liver Oil.

It is easy to take and you'll come back for more! That nasty, revolting taste is gone -- gone forever, it doesn't come back on you. You are going to be enthusiastic about this Spearmint flavored easy-to-take cod liver oil AND it has a higher vitamin test than ordinary cod liver oil. Think of it! 500 vitamin A and 250 vitamin D per dram. And the good it will do you? You won't believe it until you try some. It's as easy to pay for as it is to take at 50¢ a pint. Get on the road to health today with a bottle of KILDALL'S STERLING BRAND SPEARMINT FLAVORED COD LIVER OIL.

148th ANNUAL COMMUNICATION
GRAND LODGE of NEW YORK

The Outlook Over the State

NEW YORK STATE! What a vast, populous territory it is!

Our Grand Jurisdiction of the State of New York is equally vast—truly, an empire, an imperial Jurisdiction! With its 1,011 active Lodges, its 337,558 Master Masons in good standing, it comprises nearly ten per cent of all the Masons in the United States. Nothing is more essential to the vitality of the Craft than that brethren in one part of the Grand Jurisdiction be kept familiar with what brethren in every other part of the State are doing for the upbuilding of Masonry.

And yet—by very reason of the great distances which separate Lodges from one another, some medium of communication is necessary if the Craft is to be kept informed about what is going on around the State. To provide such a medium, to keep the brethren informed month by month with what the Craft is doing, whither it is tending, what the Craft stands for, what it thinks, is an inestimable privilege no Brother can afford to be without.

THE NEW YORK MASONIC OUTLOOK was created by Grand Lodge four years ago to make that privilege possible for you. The copy you are now reading is typical of twelve others you may receive throughout the coming year, a watch-tower each month from which you may look across the length and breadth of our teeming Empire Jurisdiction.

THE OUTLOOK has no axe to grind, enters no controversies, represents no cliques, pays no profits. To serve the Lodges and their members to the top limit of its resources is its one and only purpose.

A many-sided magazine, intelligent but not high-brow, dignified but not pompous, edited by Master Masons for Master Masons, it keeps its readers acquainted with the Craft, inspires them with a new interest, encourages them to a new devotion, gives them the information they seek, keeps them abreast with the progress which the Fraternity is making from one year's end to another.

Dear President:-

I am the largest grower of white asparagus in the vicinity of Belleville, Illinois and hold the reputation of producing the very finest white asparagus grown anywhere. Thinking that you and your family would enjoy a meal of this choice delicacy I am hereby mailing you a package of the choice fresh white asparagus such as I mail to customers in every leading city in this country. I even mailed a package of fresh asparagus to England this season. The season here for white asparagus runs from April 15 to June 15.

This asparagus should be peeled before cooking as it has a thin skin which can be taken off very easily with a paring knife. Then cook in salt water until tender and serve with butter or cream sauce.

Hoping that you enjoy this little gift package which is a sample of what has made Belleville, Illinois famous, I would be pleased to hear from you,

Yours very truly,

Dear Mr. President:

Please accept the enclosed drawing as a gift from one of your country's unemployed, who is a firm believer in your "New Deal" and who appreciates very much what you are trying to do to help each and every one of us.

I have walked the streets many days looking for work of any kind, and returned home tired and hungry with nothing in the ice box and no work. Then I have turned to drawing to keep my mind, and faith in God, Country and President secure.

I was employed before at Albrook Field, Canal Zone, as an architectural draftsman, am married and have one daughter who I am unable to support. The wife and daughters are in another country waiting, hoping and praying for you and for I and our country.

I intended to write only a few words but have rambled on like I was a friend of years standing.

So with close trusting you will like my poor attempt in drawing.

Mr. President,

Rec'd

Please accept a copy of my book
Glimpses as a tribute to your leadership.

I simply had to publish the book and I had to do it at my own expense. I know its imperfections. I sent 200 circulars to cath. priests, who, I hoped would make valuable suggestions how to improve the book, so it would more fit to be turned over to the public. Believe it or not, I received not one answer.

My family name is Grosset and I used my first names as a penname. I am at present chaplain in St Joseph's Hospital at West Bend Wis. During the war I was active as teacher and editor in Poland and Germany. I am 12 years in the United States.

If you would recommend my book to some of your friends and favor me with your opinion, you would greatly honor and oblige,

Yours very truly,

Rev. J. Gabriel, West Bend Wis.

Two weeks ago I mailed over 200 of these circulars to cath. priests. Believe it or not - so far I received not one answer. J. G.

DEAR SIR:

I admit—there are too many books. There are over 60 millions of books in our warehouses. Nobody wants them. The Bible complains that of the writers of books there is no end. I believe, that whosoever publishes a book, which contains nothing new and worthwhile, is some kind of a criminal, because he is stealing time and money of literary critics and omnivorous readers.

Well, here I am, and I confess: "I, too, have written a book." At the mere thought of it I feel as excited and confused as a young mother, but happy that the thing is out. I have christened my baby "Glimpses." It is only a small edition, but it was all I could afford. I hope it shall live and grow and multiply. I wish it would become a credit to its parent and a help to fellow citizens. May it be sociable and make many friends and cheer up wherever it enters a home. Of course, I know, the times are hard and my baby will have to struggle along. No big publishing house is sponsoring its appearance on the market, no party or organization is pushing it. Its father is unknown—his name is not in the Who is Who. Its delivery room was a little country publishing company. When I asked one of my friends to read the proof he refused and exclaimed: "No Sir, I will have nothing to do with it. But boy, oh boy, I would like to see the criticism that will come from all over the country, if you go through with it and publish the book."

To see what effect the book will have, I read a few pages of the manuscript to a banker and to a business man, who came over for a game of chess. Next day the business man told me the banker was all upset and had argued with him for over two hours that the book should be stopped by all means. The business man, however, agreed that the book is strong but fair, and that somebody should have the courage to come out with it.

The contents of the book you may glimpse from the title page, which reads as follows: "Glimpses: Facts and thoughts concerning property, wages, money, taxes, socialism, religion, education, foreign relations, debts, trade, farming, banking, war, revolution, etc., in five parts: I—Interest is Usury, II—Bank or State?, III—The Slavic Picnic, IV—The German Pole, V—The Golden Rule—Published by J. Gabriel, West Bend, Wis. Price $2.50."

Parts I and V are essays, parts II, III and IV are stories. All parts present in a popular way the social evolution and trend of our times. Here are a few opinions by persons who read the manuscript:

"The manuscript does not contain any statement or statements contrary to Faith." (S. A. Stritch, Archbishop of Milwaukee)

"Brilliant thoughts and fine humor." (Prof. Dr. Breen, St. Francis)

"Interesting all the way, touching scenes." (A music teacher)

"Daring, original, clear, logical." (A surgeon)

"I enjoyed it immensely. You succeeded in working into the book a tremendous amount of history. Twenty years from now it will be used as a reference book on the conditions of our times. After reading the manuscript I have changed my opinion about debts. There is much food for thought,—still I cannot see how you are going to reform the world." (Dr. Kauth, West Bend, Wis., who read the proof)

I, of course, do not expect to reform the world, but, to be honest, I hope my book will help to christianize a little more our credit system. It is not a book for halfwits or children, but for thinking adults, especially for professional men and for those interested in social questions. The Catholic clergy is offered first choice of the first edition. Only about 5 per cent of the priests listed in the Official Catholic Directory will receive this offer. I could not afford to send circulars to all. I, however, kindly ask you to tell your friends about the book. By ordering directly from me you save the bookdealer's commission. The regular retail price is $2.50, but I offer you a 40 per cent discount and you may have as many books as you want at $1.50 per copy.

The Most. Rev. Archbishop S. A. Stritch, D.D., read personally the manuscript. He not only approved the book, but concerning the statement that interest is usury, he expressed the opinion, that: "If we had more books on this subject a few years ago, we would not be in the trouble we are in today." That, of course, does not mean that my book is a masterpiece, but it proves that I at least gave a few glimpses to a vital subject. You will find things presented in a new way and some new things, never published before. Your comment and suggestions are invited and may help to improve the book.

The book is 6"x9"x1", contains 250 pages of print and 35 cartoons, sewed, flexible imitation leather cover.

Please send remittance with your order and I will send your copy or copies prepaid.

Yours very truly,

J. GABRIEL, West Bend, Wis.

Honorable President:-

It is with a great appreciation of having the honor to address you and of being a party in presenting to you a cane for your use, which is being sent under separate cover.

The offer and presentation is made by George Gardner, 22 Woods Street, Wheatland, Penna., who made this cane by hand. Mr. Gardner is a cripple, having only one hand and is employed as a watchman by the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company at Farrell.

The cane is made from fibre, brass, aluminum and steel rod. It took Mr. Gardner three months to make this, as he done all the work with his one hand.

It is the sincere wish of the sender and maker of this cane that it will be used to help you in your travels to carry your great load of our country's responsibility.

With best regards and well wishes,

Dear Mr Howe:

I hope that when the President reads
THE TOWN PUMP he will be as pleased as I was at receiving his acknowledgment.

It was the Roosevelt spirit which prompted the writing of the book, without referring to politics in any way but to prove to the younger men that there was still fight and sound logic in the older cascass.

The limited first edition of this book consisted of only 200 copies, of which I am proud to say that the President has Number One. And honestly, Mr Howe, I am afraid that the book is going to be a success.

THE WORM TURNED

THE TOWN PUMP: An American Comedy. By Charley Grapewin, in collaboration with Anthony Hillyer, Thomas Perry Sticker, Los Angeles.

Here is a homely tale of American life, informed by the spirit of real American humor; humor of the sort that made "David Harum" into a model horse trader and enshrined him in the hearts of so many thousands back in the Naughty Nineties. No, it is not a new "David Harum," but it has many of its quaint, old-fashioned charms, superimposed upon which is a broad, barnyard humor that is likewise typically American.

It is the story of the amiable, philosophic failure, the family's indolent black sheep and his unexpected success. It is a tale of Yankee shrewdness and Yankee success. Pete Bowers was an idler, while his brother won what is called success and social position. Pete could play a good game, knew how to fish and could empty bottles with any man; but he never added to the family fortune. His brother Joe had married, moved to the county seat and multiplied his inheritance. Pete was not quite good enough, not tidy enough to grace his brother's home. Then Joe died, and out of a contempt akin to malice he willed the old town pump to his shiftless brother. The ironies now took a hand in the deal, and the pump blossomed magnificently. How it blossomed, what happened to Pete, to the pretty widow, Martha Jenkins and to the town, I leave the reader to discover. The tale will commend itself to Americans of middle years who are not unfamiliar with the ways and witticism of our much-abused but not wholly undelightful villages back East. Aside from other merits, the book has lively dramatic possibilities.

J. C.

THE -SCRIPT-

"The Town Pump"

I FELT I HAD to read it because Charley Grapewin had sent it to me prettily inscribed. My first defenses were weakened by beautiful typography and binding. And by a Los Angeles publisher!—Thomas Perry Sticker. Oh, well, I'd skim through it just because I like Charley. But the moment I started I read right to the end. A delightful story of small-town America with the bucolic humor of "Way Down East" and "David Harum." It is the story of a kindly, pool-shooting ne'er-do-well, who received the final insult from his family when his rich brother died and left him the town pump, now but an ancient, disused horse trough. What a joke on the old boy's respectables! For that pump became the means of rejuvenating not only the hero's muddled mores, but the fortunes of the whole village. It's a peach of a story that would make a picture with all the charm of "State Fair."

His Excellency, The Honorable
Franklin D. Roosevelt,
President of the United States,
Executive Mansion,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President:

In the year of 1917, I answered the call to arms to protect this Nation from any possible invasion of its enemies and in the year of 1933, I again answered the call to arms of the N.R.A. so that this country may once again blossom and prosper as it did in the past.

In appreciation of your most glorious and successful efforts to forward the prosperity of our Nation and for the wonderful deeds you have performed in your short period in office, I am enclosing this embroidered N.R.A. Emblem made, constructed and copied directly from the N.R.A. Emblem in the shop of the Toledo Art Embroidery Company of the City of Toledo.

Hoping that this might find favor in your eyes and that it may be the emblem of success to the Nation, I thank you from the depth of my heart for your courage and vigor that have bestowed the greatest of benefits upon all mankind.

Yours co-operating,

Morris Galper

My dear Mr. Greenbie:

I am in receipt of your letter of August ninth and have called it to the attention of the President. He requests me to thank you for your kind offer and to say that he will be very glad to accept the book to which you refer.

I would suggest that you send the book to me and I shall take pleasure in seeing that the President gets it.

Very sincerely yours,

M. A. LeHand,

Miss M. A. LeHand,
Private Secretary to the President,
The White House, Washington.

Dear Miss LeHand:

When occasion permits, kindly convey to The President my appreciation for the information regarding his Great-grandfather, Warren Delano, and the Japanese boy at Fairhaven. I regret that I did not have this correct at the time of the writing of the book. The book, "Gold of Ophir" is now out of print. However, as I said in my letter on this question, I shall be glad to send the President one of my own copies if he will be so good as to accept it, and if I can be sure that in the flood of mail that oppresses him it will not be misplaced.

Yours faithfully,

Sydney Greenbie

My dear Miss LeHand:

A copy of "Gold of Ophir" has just gone forward to you for the President. If, in the future, I should bring out a new edition, I shall be happy to correct the story of Manjiro, the Japanese boy, whose education was fostered Great-
