Dear Mr Roosevelt: -

I saw this statement in an article in the February number of the "Christian Herald" entitled "Our Devout Presidents" by Margaret Norris D. Roosevelt quote "Franklin D. Roosevelt is one of the most devout men we have ever had in the presidency. His faith is almost childlike in its utter simplicity. Those close to him say he actually believes that Christ is hovering over the White House directing him in all his decisions"

There is more but the last sentence determined this letter. I did not vote for you, but I am now with you ~~in~~ every undertaking. If you are

Dear Mr. Roosevelt: -

It is an honor at this time to write you, and ask your acceptance of this old copy of the "New York Statesman", which is one hundred and five years old. I hope it may be of interest to you to look it over. It contains the Marine List, Prices current of the duties on many products of that day and so forth.

I am passing through Wash. enroute to my home in Mass. about March 15th. and I have a cane for you, which I have finished in its natural wood and bark. It is somewhat of a novelty. There is a space on the side with a gold leaf background and your name inscribed in black letters, which reads, Franklin D. Roosevelt 32nd President.

I would like to present this cane to you personally, and explain to you about it, if an interview could be arranged.

Will you kindly advise me if I can hope to call, and at what time of day would be best.

I remain,

My Dear Sir: — As this is approximately the beginning of your second year in the office as Benefactor of our Nation, I feel that you need more credit than we could possibly give you by mere spoken words but please accept, again, my humble congratulations for the great work that you are completing every day.

My father has been urging me to send the picture enclosed to you for a long time and I finally submitted. I began a correspondence course of illustrating after my mother died, but we (my father and I) ran out of funds; In fact we were driven from our home. I tried to borrow the small sum needed, from the bank, but in vain. I am now working on the C. W. L. Rural Road — or I was up till the bad weather and dad and I "back" it in a "shack," by ourselves. I study along and draw every picture I get although I do not know very much about it yet and nobody is art-minded in our community, because everyone but dad laughs at me.

A week or two ago I wrote a poem and sent it to the "Great Eastern Song Bureau, —

Thomaston, Maine. They made the melody and returned it to me to judge how good it was. They said it would make a fine piano part and, when published, would get fine popularity. The title is "Dad." It is original. Could you please direct me in any way to get a small loan from the Government? I have already sent a note to Governor Pinchot and received no results in that direction, and now I am appealing to you for help. Of course, this is but a minor subject and I perfectly understand that you can not afford to "tinker" with trifles for you do not have time, but this means a big thing to me.

I am eighteen, and a 1933 graduate from High School. I am the only boy in town who has taken up artistry, in fact none of my school pals are taking up anything, but of course there is nothing to do, for this is not an industrial district.

My father is a stiff Democrat, but I believe in standing up for the best man, for actions speak louder than words, whether dem. or Rep.

I will certainly ~~with~~ appreciate anything that you may do for me; and thanking you most sincerely
I am yours Very Truly

Dear President Roosevelt,

I am writing a few lines to tell you how much I appreciate what you have done for this country. Industries are springing up everywhere, men going to work and everything is coming back to life. Often I have wondered what would have become of this nation if it hadn't been for you. I think you are just the man the country needed and if you weren't president the nation would have been beyond repair.

Drawing is my hobby. I am sending a few pictures for a sample and I hope you will like them. I like horses although we never owned one that I remember and I draw them more than anything else.

I am fourteen years of age, my birthday is on Feb 12, (Abraham Lincoln's birthday) and I am in the 8th grade. We are very poor and are staying with some folks here. My mother is working for her board and sending me to school. I soon hope that I can help her. Mother hopes she can find a job soon that will support us. We live in

Dear Mr. President,

You don't know me but, just to be different, instead of asking for something from you, I propose making a gift to you. If you will have it.

If the shock is too great and you should question my sanity, you might question Harry Hopkins concerning my dependability. He will recall that I was a former neighbor who came from the Harvard School of Education to teach at the Scarborough School. Previously I lived in Geneseo, was a staunch Republican and an admirer of "Jimmy" Wadsworth. I am now pulling for you in my own little way.

The gift I am offering you is a copy of college text I have co-edited. I submit it as a means of passing your periods of relaxation, if any, and because it represents a new deal in education. It was designed primarily for the courses offered here at the junior college where we are training students, in two years time, to enter the semi-professions. You will note from the enclosed announcement that the book differs greatly from the usual literary anthology studied by freshman.

While preparing for classes I am to meet tomorrow, I reviewed the article "New Shirts For Old" by George J. Anderson and found that the latter part of it aptly fitted the point of view of your new deal. Hence I take this opportunity of calling it to your attention. If you will accept a copy of this text I shall be glad to have the Oxford Press send you one.

In passing may I say that I was delighted to read an account of your new policy relative to subsistence farms for distressed workers and their families, as reported in today's papers. For several months I have been gathering material on that topic for a magazine article. I feel that most workers want a chance more than they want charity. The subsistence farm will give them a chance providing they are prepared to meet the specific demands of this type of life.

More power to you. Go to it. We on the west coast have great confidence in you. But by all means take care of your health. I recently asked a class of thirty-five student the question, "Who is our Vice-President?" Four of them knew.

Yours very truly,

Dudley Gordon

THE TEXT

Much of the material selected for College Readings on Today and Its Problems is reprinted from current periodicals and has appeared within the past four or five years. It has a fresh point of view and a frank approach to modern problems which will interest equally the student who is primarily a scholar and the student who is of a more practical turn of mind. Each article is stimulating, many are controversial, and the book will inevitably provoke lively class discussion. In these days of national unrest, when the general public is showing an unprecedented interest in social problems, such material will have an immediate appeal to teacher and student alike.

THE AUTHORS

Some of the authors included are: Stuart Chase, Joseph Wood Krutch, Sherwood Anderson, James Truslow Adams, Bernard De Voto, William Lyon Phelps, Glenn Frank, Raymond B. Fosdick, Bertrand Russell, Ben B. Lindsey, and Norman Bel Geddes. These are among the foremost intellectual and cultural leaders today. Their comments on the American scene are deserving of careful analysis and discussion.

THE PLAN

The editors state in their Preface: "There is an increasing tendency to combine the study of English with other fields, which we believe educationally to be a move in the right direction. While this collection makes no pretense at student orientation, it will to some extent serve this purpose, for the material selected concerns the major fields of study such as Science, Economics, Sociology, Medicine, Art, History, and Ethics. For convenience the essays have been classified under descriptive headings.

"Another significant trend in education is training for leisure time. This will unquestionably be of increasing importance in the present social and economic readjustment. A new standard of values is being sought. We feel that both directly and indirectly this text affords students an opportunity to examine, discuss, challenge, accept, or reject the opinions of writers entitled to consideration . . . By the comprehensive nature of the selection we have aimed to fill a need which many teachers of English have expressed to us; we believe that the departure from the usual plan of freshman 'models' books will be welcomed in many quarters."

To supplement the text, the editors have supplied:

1. Brief introductory notes on the authors.
2. A group of questions for general discussion following each article.
3. A select bibliography from which titles may be chosen for special reports.

The book is attractively bound in bright blue cloth with dark blue lettering.

See last page of this circular for complete list of authors and sub-divisions in the Table of Contents.

My dear Mr. Howe:

Replying to your letter of March 12 please be informed that the Oxford University Press has sent a copy of my book addressed to you. You will recall that I wrote offering a copy to the President so that he might read the article "New Shirts for Old" by George J. Anderson. This article may be found on page 87. The title of the text is College Readings on Today and Its Problems.

Will you be so kind as to call Mr. Roosevelt's attention to this article? If it proves to be to his liking he may care to read Fosdick's "If Majorities Are Wrong" which begins on page 183. This article may reassure him as to how essential it is that he continue to keep bright the key of progress with which he has so frequently opened the way to social betterment.

Very sincerely yours,

Your Excellency:-

1 A famous Chinese-American painter, whose name is Sui Wesley Chan, has done a painting which symbolizes the great work which the "New Deal" has accomplished since you have brought new hopes,
new dreams to the people of America.

I am a lover of the Arts and my art studio is quite often the center where artists gather and discuss with admiration the great accomplishment of your administration. It was at one of these discussions that I conceived the idea of asking Mr. Chan to make a painting which should portray you and the New Deal.

I am enclosing a photograph of this painting.

// It would be a great honor and a pleasure for me to present this painting to you at the White House.

I trust that I may be accorded this privilege.

Very respectfully yours,

My Dear Mr. Howe:

Have been trying to get a nice moose roast for the President, having been informed that it is one of his favorite dishes, and finally, through my good friend Art A. Shonbeck who lives in Anchorage, which country is surrounded by moose and mountain sheep, succeeded in having this ^{quarter} of moose meat forwarded on the boat which is passing through Juneau today enroute to Seattle.

I also had him include a nice ^{quarter} of mountain sheep which I consider one of the most delectable wild meats there is.

After the President has sampled it I would be pleased to receive his comment on same.

Mr. Shonbeck is going to Washington during his trip outside, accompanied by his wife, Ann and they are both delightful people to meet. I am not giving him any letter of introduction to you as his business will probably be confined to our Delegate, Mr. Dimond and I realize that you are very busy with pressing business matters at the present time.

I trust that the meat will arrive in good condition and that you will both enjoy it. Mr. J. J. Connors, our National Committeeman from Alaska joined me in having it shipped to you.

My Dear Mr. Roosevelt;

I am sending to you, by Express, a plaster statuette, which I call "Uncle Sam's Pride" I wanted to get it finished in time for your birthday, but illness prevented my doing so.

However, as my seventyeth birthday will occur on March 25, I am sending this little statuette in celebration of that event, the work is entirely by my own hands, as I designed, modeled, cast and bronzed it, no other hands have touched it.

My birthday is of little importance except to my own family, but there is another sentimental reason for my sending this little tribute to you, I am a descendant of Sir Humphrey Gilbert, who while exploring the coast of Maine, in 1583, went down in his little ship "The Squirrel".

As a descendant of that "Great Adventurer", I am sending this token, this gage of knight-hood, to you Sir Knight, "The Great Adventurer in the New Deal".

Would that I had the power, the strength of the Kings of old to aid you in your glorious adventure Sir Franklin, Couer de Leon, Champion of the common people.

"O just and faithful knight of God; Ride on, the prize is near".

Very Truly Yours

My Dear Mr. Roosevelt;

I have written the enclosed letter myself, to avoid unnecessary publicity, so I ask you to pardon its appearance.

I have taken the liberty of telling my friend Senator Bulkley of my intention as I think he will be interested. His mother was a friend of mine too.

As a matter of public policy I have made the packing case with a glass window in the front, so that the contents may be seen and inspected by all those who may handle it. Because of that fact it was necessary to pack it in a peculiar way, for that reason I am sending directions for the unpacking.

Will you be kind enough to pass these directions on to the person who receives such things, Thankyou.

Very Truly Yours

Stephen Cooper Gladwin
Stephen Cooper Gladwin

Directions;

All movable parts are fastened with screws.

First, remove the front, in which there is a window.

Second, remove the top, lifting straight up as the statuette is embedded in the top.

Then take off the thumb-screw under the outside bottom of the case. lift straight up, the statuette I mean, and when clear, the screw-eye may be removed by turning on an arc of a circle at a right angle to the wire bar in the base of the statuette.

Dear Mr. President:-

This letter accompanies the first edition, in fact the first copy uncased, of a new history of the Old Town of Monterey, with the compliments of the author, Laura Bride Powers. It will refresh your memory of a region you visited more than a decade ago.

I have been named chairman of a committee whose object is to secure your visit to the old Spanish and Mexican capital, where our Flag was first officially raised over California -- if the good rumor is proved true, that you anticipate sailing through the canal to the Pacific Coast this summer.

Presidents Theodore Roosevelt, McKinley and Harrison all visited this place so dearly held in the affection of Californians during their incumbencies. It is almost in the nature of things that when a President comes to this coast on a war vessel, he stops at Monterey for a day or more.

We look forward to the day when the rumor of your proposed visit to the Pacific Coast is verified as a fact; and we anticipate with that verification the great and good news that the people of Central California will greet you here at the place where they would be happiest to see you.

Respectfully and cordially yours,

His Excellency,
The President of the United States,
The White House,
Washington, D. C.

Sir:-

Will you kindly permit me to send you under separate cover copy of a book which I have written on the American Law of Wills and Administration, appearing in the well-known series of Leske-Loewenfeld: "Die Rechtsverfolgung im internationalen Verkehr", Carl Heymanns Verlag, Berlin ?

The said book, which is in the German language, serves as a book of reference to courts and lawyers in Germany and to the German-language consulates in this country. As far as I know, it is the only German-language book on American Inheritance Law.

May I add that I am a German lawyer and have been advising for the past twenty years American lawyers on questions of German and international law. I am also a member of the Faculty of Law, New York University, lecturing on Comparative American and German Commercial Law. Until his death in 1924 I was associated in German legal matters with the late Carl L. Schurz, Esq., son of the well-known American statesman and friend of President Lincoln, Carl Schurz. Up to recently I was for a number of years Counsel to the Agent of Germany, Mixed Claims Commission, United States and Germany, in connection with which work I became particularly familiar with American law, although I am not a member of the Bar in this country. I am an American citizen.

Having in mind the great interest which you, Sir, have in international matters, I thought that you would welcome information of the fact that the legal profession in Germany is highly interested to obtain detailed information as to the law and its development in this country. This interest is evidence, on its part, of the increasing importance of municipal law in the international field incidental to the growing movement of private capital over national boundaries.

There are institutes for Comparative Law and for Foreign and International Private Law in Berlin which are emphasizing the desirability that the German lawyer become acquainted with foreign legal systems, and among them especially with the American legal system. This fact is evidenced also by the way in which my American Inheritance Law was welcomed in Germany, receiving a number of favorable reviews and comments in leading juristic periodicals. It is furthermore proven by the way in which the book on American Jurisdiction was received, which Professor K. N. Llewellyn of Columbia University published recently in Germany and which aroused there quite a little attention. This exchange of legal knowledge I believe is to be welcomed highly, as one of the means to advance international understanding and good will in which you are so highly interested.

I trust that I am not immodest when adding that my book was very well reviewed in some of the leading law journals in this country.

The Southern California Law Review, January 1934 issue, said e. g. :

"As an impartial commentary on American Probate Law and a critical survey of the essential principles and distinctions to be found in the various States, it deserves a place among the leading reference treatises on the subject..... Considered as a whole, the volume is decidedly unique among treatises on the American law of wills and administration. Even after allowances are made for obsolescence due to the ever-changing nature of the field, the book remains remarkably accurate in its presentation of a picture of the fundamental distinctions underlying the laws of the various States. The method of such presentation is one which might well be followed by American text writers."

May I express the hope, Sir, that the book referred to will find a place in your library ?

I have the honor to remain, Sir,

Most respectfully yours,

Paul G. Grossman.

Enclosed is a copy of ESSAY ANNUAL-1934, in which is included the President's address to the Woodrow Wilson Foundation Dinner. Along with Professor Erich A. Walter, of the University of Michigan, the editor, we should be glad to have this book added to the President's personal library.

Perhaps the President would be interested to know that through this book his address will be read in many colleges of the country. Two other articles, the presence of which he might be pleased to note, are Charles Merz's "Roosevelt's First Year: 12 Epochal Months" and Wilson Follett's "The Remembered Man to His President."

We are very grateful for having had the privilege of using President Roosevelt's address in this ESSAY ANNUAL.

I am enclosing you a season ticket for the Circus as some of the family outside of Washington may want to visit the show and this is good for any city in the United States where we play.

I have a wonderful little Shetland pony with the show, and was just wondering whether or not you would permit me to present it to Buzzie, not for an advertisement but just for the impression he made on me during our visit in Washington last year. I think it is one of the smallest ponies in America.

I am also pleased to tell you that our business is much better than last year and we get reports from all over the United States which show a substantial betterment in all business conditions, which means of course a bigger season for our show.
