My dear Dr. Harris:

We have received, through the good offices of Senator Hill, the manuscript of your book entitled "Fifth Column Newspapers and The Wilkie Myth and Menace".

Permit me to thank you in the President's absence for your great helpfulness in making this manuscript available to him. It will be brought to his attention upon his return to Washington. Meanwhile, I desire also to assure you that the President is most appreciative of your loyal support.

Very sincerely yours,

As you know Dr. Harris is a brother of the late William J. Harris from Georgia and General Peter G. Harris, former Adjutant General of the Army.

RECEIVED

My dear Mr. President:

Honorable Franklin D. Roosevelt,
The White House,
Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. President:

I send you herewith a self-explanatory letter from Dr. Seale Harris, temporarily of Wilmette, Illinois, but permanently of Birmingham, Alabama, together with a manuscript of a book written by Dr. Harris, entitled "Fifth Column Newspapers and The Willkie Myth and Menace."

As you know Dr. Harris is a brother of the late William J. Harris from Georgia and General Peter C. Harris, former Adjutant General of the Army.

With kindest personal regards and best wishes, I am

Very sincerely,

Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt
President of the United States
Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. President:

I claim to be, if not the original Roosevelt man, certainly one of the first to suggest that you would be President of the United States some day.

You may recall that at the request of our mutual friend Cary Grayson, I was assigned to accompany President Wilson's party back from France in February 1919. You perhaps have forgotten meeting me at the time, but I recall quite well my impression of you. Cary Grayson, Colonel Angus McLean of Detroit and I were together a great deal during the voyage. On one occasion we were seated on deck when you passed and I said to Grayson and McLean that "this man may be President of the United States some day. From what I have seen of him I believe that he is presidential timber and he is a Roosevelt and a democrat who would capture enough of the progressive vote to elect him."

I am a brother of the late William J. Harris, United States Senator from Georgia, who I think was the first senator to announce for you. My brother was a progressive and believed in the same things that you believe in, and I am sure that had he lived he would have been thoroughly loyal to you. He died in April 1932.

I mention these facts preparatory to giving you some advice which you probably do not need. I have recently written a book with the title, "Fifth Column Newspapers and the Wilkie Myth and Menace" which I had hoped might be helpful to your campaign, if I could have found a publisher who had courage enough to publish and distribute it. There is certainly need for such a book because in a number of bookstores in Chicago and Washington I have visited, there are ten or twelve books which are hostile to you and which are being widely sold, and none favorable to you. In other words, as far as books are concerned, there is no publisher in the United States who has the courage or the willingness to publish a book favorable to you and the New Deal, while they will publish any sort of sadistic trash favorable to Wilkie.

I realize that it is too late to get this book published now, but it occurred to me that possibly you and Mrs. Roosevelt might be interested in going over the manuscript which can be read in less than an hour.

I am writing to urge you to talk over the radio a number of times during the campaign. I am sure that your talk on Wednesday evening, September 11th, on Labor made you many hundreds of thousands of votes. I am sure that you are right in not leaving Washington, but that does not mean that you should not make at least one talk a week from now until the end of the campaign. Of course the republican press will criticize you whether you talk or whether you do not talk, and they would very much prefer that you do not talk.

Secretary Wallace is making a wonderful campaign along exactly the right lines, but no one can get one-tenth the audience that you would have over the radio.

The republicans have all the money in the world. They are thoroughly organized and are making a desperate effort to get control of the Government, and I am frank to say to you that from information that I have from New York and Chicago, I am sure that the republicans are much better organized and putting up a much harder fight than the democratic organizations.

I saw the republican press of the United States destroy Wilson and the League of Nations and get back into power using the identical tactics that they are employing in this campaign to discredit you. It took them eight years to destroy Wilson politically. Mr. Pearce, editor of the Chicago Times, told me that 89% of the daily press outside of the South are against you and the New Deal. They have been hammering you for eight years and it distresses me to see so many good people who have changed from you and are supporting the myth of a Willkie that has been built up by republican newspapers.

You have made a wonderful record and it seems like rank ingratitude for the people of the United States to fail to support you in your efforts to save the nation in this crisis.

With best wishes for your success in November, I am

Respectfully yours,

Seale Harris,

Dear Miss LeHand, You have already accepted "The Bull of Adrian IV." and "Three American Commodores" for the President. Please accept my latest literary effort for the President's library.
I realize he has little leisure for reading. Nevertheless I hope he shall find the time to read pages 28 and 29 (2nd Paragraph 28 to end of 1st Paragraph p. 30). They suggest the only real solution to a problem which must be faced within a year or two by the Chief Executive. They were written by the undersigned more than two years ago.
Yours Sincerely

Dear Mr. President:

The citizens of Troy were deeply honored to have had the opportunity to welcome you and Mrs. Roosevelt to our city on October 7th.

I am enclosing the history of the Columbian Liberty Bell, which I promised to send you at the time I presented a miniature of this bell to you.
This miniature was made from the same metal from which the original bell was cast.

Sincerely yours,

FJH/JWB

Frank J. Hogan
MAYOR

Appeared in The Troy Record

Tuesday morning, October 8, 1940

President Franklin D. Roosevelt took with him last night (October 7, 1940, on his tour of inspection of National Defense Works which included the Watervliet Arsenal, Watervliet, N. Y., after which he passed over the Menands Bridge to Troy, N. Y. on his way to visit the Battlefields at Saratoga) a historic souvenir of his visit to Troy, presented by Mayor Frank J. Hogan.

A tiny model of the Columbian Liberty Bell, cast from the metal used in making the original bell at the Meneely Bell Company's Foundry in Troy was given to the President by Mayor Hogan when he welcomed the Chief Executive at the Menands Bridge entrance to the city.

The Columbian Bell, a replica of the Liberty Bell of 1776, weighed 13,000 pounds. Into the Troy Foundry pot from which it was poured for the Columbian Exposition went metal from all over the world, every piece identified with some struggle for freedom or a relic of some historical personage, thimbles used in sewing uniforms for soldiers of the Revolution, two pike heads used by John Brown at Harper's Ferry, the keys to the home of Jefferson Davis, Simon Bolivar's watch chain, George Washington's surveying chain, Thomas Jefferson's copper kettle and 250,000 pennies sent by children from all parts of the world - all were among the scraps of metal cast for the bell.

The model presented the President by Mayor Hogan, four-inch paperweight sized souvenir, was the property of the late William H. Blake, father of James W. Blake, secretary to the Mayor.

Before its presentation yesterday, the souvenir was polished by the Meneely Bell Co. and was decorated with a red, white and blue ribbon.

It now reposes in the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library at Hyde Park, N. Y.

The President,

Dear Mr. President:

In the confident hope of your re-election, I am taking the liberty of sending you a little book, which you may enjoy and which may help to take your mind off this up-setting Campaign now closing and for a few moments to give you relief from your preparations for maintaining peace.

My reason for believing that you might enjoy these words about Washington and the biography of their author is because I know of your great interest in our Navy and because it is by and about one of the early Secretary's of the Navy.

My Father, a friend of Tilden and of Cleveland and an associate in the Law of George W. Guthrie, former Ambassador to Japan, has been an example to me as a life long Democrat and would have upheld your hands as far as in his power lay, as he did the hands of Mr. Cleveland.

Maybe you would receive comfort and encouragement, as I have, from the words of some one unknown to me, who wrote:

" Life may be made of magic stuff,
Woven of threads which gleam,
For any, who are brave enough
To do the things they dream. "

May your new Administration be blessed with the accomplishments for the good of our beloved Country, that your friends believe you are brave enough to stand up for, and may you bring them all to a happy and successful fruition.

Sincerely and respectfully,

Richard Hay.

Here is a gavel I am sending you as a gift for your future use as our next President.

The mallet part of the gavel is made from walnut wood secured from the Battlefield of Gettysburg while I attended the Reunion of the Blue and Gray. The handle is from wood I collected from the Battlefield of Bull Run during our National Encampment of the G.A.R. held in your city. I carved, made and polished this gavel by hand. I do not use glasses even though I am ninety-five years young. Gavel making is my hobby and I have made over four hundred by hand.

I served my country four years and seven months in the Union Army and was wounded at the Battle of Vicksburg. I thank God that I live in a country where one can vote as he pleases.

I trust, my dear President, God will pour out his blessings on you and those whose hands holds the future outcome of our country.

I know you are a very busy man, but I would appreciate a personal letter from you telling me if you like this gavel as a gift.

I hope to live to cast my eighteenth presidential vote for Franklin DeLano Roosevelt.

every turn or phase of the con-Pres. Roosevelt We hope and pray, as we have done in this space ever since the war clouds began to gather over there, that we will keep our heads screwed firmly on our shoulders and stay out of it, and that no one will ever have the opportunity to point the lie to the President's pledge of peace, save in the event of attack.

President Roosevelt stands a chance of ending his next four years a lot less popular than he is starting them—although it may not be any fault of his own, but due entirely to circumstances over which no man or nation could possibly exert control.

President Roosevelt has been given a vote of confidence that has never before been accorded any other President—a third term in office—and which has been offered to only a few.
That confidence carries with it a TREMENDOUS TRUST.

We Have Shown We Don't Scare Easily

WITH their ballots, the American people demonstrated that they cannot be stampeded by bugaboos of fear.

The opposition raised all manner of fearful prospects, but the voters had confidence in the whole American people and President Roosevelt.

They were confident that he would continue to keep them out of war as he has done thus far.

They were confident that no dictatorship shenanigans would be tolerated for a second by the people of this country.

They obviously approved of President Roosevelt's policies with regard to domestic affairs, and wanted him to continue along those lines of economic reform.

But to continue and achieve the hoped-for goals and safeguards requires the full support of ALL THE PEOPLE.

The just concluded campaign was one of the most bitter in the history of this country.
Passions and tempers clashed in deadly combat, and not a few life-long friendships were wrecked.

Hatreds have sprung up between the proponents of the various candidates.

These must be laid aside. Today we cease to be Republicans and Democrats and become

My dear Miss Herel:

Thank you very much in the President's behalf for that beautiful pillow. He wants you to know that he is most grateful for the friendly thought which prompted you to send it to him.

Very sincerely yours,

I notice from the press that you intend to visit the newly acquired bases in the Caribbean. May I send you, with my compliments, a book which M. A. LeHand on my ten years in Russia. Our author, PRIVATE SECRETARY, who has written the preface, wishes for the accuracy of the facts which are reported. Perhaps you will find the book worth reading on your trip.

My dear Mr. President:

May I express my deep thanks and appreciation for your generosity in receiving me. Our brief conversation gave me a clearer picture of the problem of financing aid to Great Britain than I could have possibly obtained from any other source.

I notice from the press that you intend to visit the newly acquired bases in the Carribean. May I send you, with my compliments, a book which I have written on my ten years in Russia. Our mutual friend, Walter Duranty, who has written the preface, vouches for the accuracy of the facts which are reported. Perhaps you will find the book worth reading on your trip.

With best wishes for your continued good health, and again thanking you for the interview, I am

December 3, 1940

Dear Dr. Hammer:

November 30, 1940

Your letter and the two books arrived shortly after General Watson's departure yesterday to accompany the President on a defense inspection cruise.

Washington, D. C.

The book autographed to the President and your note to him have been handed to his Private Secretary, Miss LeHand, for the President when he returns. I am sending you two copies of my book, "The Quest of the Henshoff Treasure" - one for the President and one I am holding the other book for General Watson and shall give it to him with your letter when he gets back to the office in about ten days or two weeks. Your generous help I would have missed an experience which I will treasure all my life.

I am sure he would wish me to express his sincere appreciation of your thought of him, as well as for your cordial invitation that he and Mrs. Watson visit your Galleries on their next trip to New York. The books are safely tucked away in vaults and seldom shown to anyone.

Very sincerely yours,

With all good wishes and kind regards, I am

Cordially and sincerely yours,

Dear Major Watson:

Under separate cover I am sending you two copies of my book,
"The Quest of the Romanoff Treasure" - one for the President and one for yourself.

I want you to know how greatly indebted I am for your kindness. Without your generous help I would have missed an experience which I will treasure all my life.

Please remember that you and Mrs. Watson have a standing invitation to visit our Galleries whenever you are in New York. I promise to get out some of the rarest jewels, which are safely tucked away in vaults and seldom shown to anyone.

With all good wishes and kind regards, I am
