Honorable Franklin D. Roosevelt
Warm Springs, Georgia.

Your Excellency,

To-day is a red letter day in our American calendar in celebration of your fifty-first birthday. Humble me asks to be privileged to extend to you Excellency, my best wishes for your birthday in a 'Sunshiny way'. As the Orientals have it, "May you live a thousand years".

The enclosed birthday gift was planned since last June after we had the honor of being privileged to be graced with a visit from the Honorable Mrs Franklin D Roosevelt at our shop. We were waiting impatiently for this very happy occasion and to-day I am happy and so proud to be among the many millions of Americans to convey to you Excellency my sincerest best wishes and beg of you to accept this token of appreciation, my fondness and my admiration for you.

This time piece was presented to my father for his service as a Burgermaster for a consecutive term of thirty-five years in the town where I was born. My father presented it to me on a visit to his home in 1912. My father is eighty-four years old to-day and it will make him equally happy to know that your Excellency was presented with it.

This time piece represents the following significance:- Its eighteen carat gold, the value at which we assess our new President. The radium, to our opinion you are worth your weight in the value of radium. The time, that we are reaching the time to have Franklin D. Roosevelt the executive of our nation. The sound of the bell, represents that you excellency and happy days will be here soon again.

Again I pray please accept this token and best wishes of mine.

Most sincerely and respectfully,

Karl Lauterbach

Honorable Framklin D. Roosevelt
President of the United States

Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President:

Some time ago, I sent to you, thru Congressman Charles H. Martin, Maps, Pictures, and data in connection with the development of the hills south of the Park Blocks in Portland, Oregon; these I am submitting as a project for the relief of the unemployed and I believe it would be of great benefit to the people of the City of Portland and the Pacific-Northwest.

Under separate cover, I am sending Colored Pictures and a map which will supplement the data which I sent to you at that time.

My former letter to you was receipted for by J. R. Smith on September 5, 1933. I would like to have these pictures filed along with the original data so as to aid your examiners in visualizing the project.

I wish to thank you for the consideration you have given to the project and will greatly appreciate anything further you can do. I am anxiously awaiting an expression an your part as to the possibility of putting thru the development.

Sincerely yours,

Max Loeb

McPHERSON DAILY REPUBLICAN

LOCAL CARVER SENDS GIFT TO ROOSEVELT

Mrs. Anna Elizabeth Larkins Carves Model of Dog in Wood for President — Both King and Crown Prince of Sweden Have Clever Handiwork of McPherson Sculptor.

If President Franklin Roosevelt appreciates wood carvings he won't be disappointed in the little carving sent to him this week by McPherson's wood carving artist. Mrs. Anna Elizabeth Larkins is the local artist who has sent the new Democrat president one of her finished models. President Roosevelt will not be the only notable to have her carvings as mantel piece decorations, for in the kings palace in Sweden there are pieces of the McPherson woman's art.

Her artistry is her work, and she toils days in perfecting little models in wood, characters of the pioneers, horses, dogs and people. Mrs. Larkins has also modeled from life, and her results were marvelous.

Since she was eight years old Mrs. Larkins has been making models out of wood, and while still in Sweden her skill became her reputation and even kings and queens have recognized her art.

Yesterday Mrs. Larkins celebrated her 78th birthday by working on a wooden model of oxen she plans to use in a group of carvings containing a covered wagon, two people and two oxen. Every minute detail in the group will be put in before the model is completed. A reporter for The Republican visited Mrs. Larkins and watched her at work on a model, and although she is rapidly nearing 80 years old her nimble fingers work fast with a carving knife and glass scrapers.

Mrs. Larkins lives alone in the 800 block on West Euclid street. She has a daughter and niece living in the city who stay with her at nights and assist her in her little home duties. Jack, a little black, short haired terrier, is her constant companion as well as her protector.

She was busy on her oxen model when the reporter arrived, but she eagerly layed her tools to one side to talk of her early life and her carvings. Her face was wrinkled with the worries and hardships of a long life and she was a little hard of hearing, but was able to carry on a fluent conversation in relating her early experiences in carving.

A Swedish sea captain gave her $10 for a little model of a horse when she was only 10 years old, although she had been carving since she was seven. This fired her interest in the art and her skill took on greater prominence and she gradually developed into an artist in this field.

Her reputtation as a carver of wood spread rapidly over Sweden, and the king and crown prince of that country had their attention called to the beauty of her little models. Twice the King of Sweden gave her $25 for models of horses. The crown prince born in 1881, was sent a carved animal by Mrs. Larkins as a means of advertising medium for her, for when the people of Sweden learned that the prince was interested in wood carvings they too started the fad of collecting carvings of all kinds. People began to buy her carvings and she had a ready market for her models.

Widely known schools in Sweden sought Mrs. Larkins' services as an instructor in wood carvings, but she would not leave her four children and go away to some large school to teach.

When she was 35 years old she made the long sea voyage across the broad Atlantic ocean, landing in New York. She and her husband went from there to Arkansas City, Kan., where she worked for one winter in a wood planing mill, later moving to McPherson where she has lived for the past 37 years, although there were a few years she spent in Kansas City and St. Joseph.

Now Mrs. Larkins has sent a white pine carving of a dog to President Roosevelt, not only with the hope it might advertise her products but because she thought the president might like her carvings. She cannot write the English language, so a close friend wrote her letter explaining the gift and also aiding her in preparing the model for shipment.

To find the best types of wood for carving is her greatest difficulty. She uses white pine principally, although she has a number of pieces she has made from California sugar pine. Harder woods that are close grained and easily worked are best for carving.

Yesterday she was working on one of of the oxen. She was cutting and sawing out the rough model, and not until the next day would she begin to shape the oxen with her sharp knife. When the horns, tail, legs and body of the oxen are shaped she will then scrape the wood with pieces of glass to work the surface to a degree of smoothness. Two rubbings with different grades of sandpaper will then follow, and when this task is completed her model will be finished.

Mrs. Larkins has won a number of prizes on her carvings in shows and fairs in Sweden, but never in the United States has she been able to enter her carvings. There are so few wood carvers in this country, she says, that fairs do not offer prizes for such exhibits. For many of her models she has received as high as $25, while others range downward from $20, $15 and $10. All it takes to carve, Mrs. Larkins contends, is a good deal of patience, a lot of time and much hard work.

There were eight children in Mrs. Larkins family, and with the exceptions of a brother now living in Sweden none other of the children were carvers. In a glass case she had a beautiful speciman of a horse, carved out to the finest detail, which she took out and exhibited to the reporter. The horse, she explained, was carved and sent to her by her Brother, Lars Flom, in Sweden.

"Some old women think they can't work," Mrs. Larkins commented, "But I can show them that I can. I like to work best when I am alone for then I can think better and there is nothing to bother me."

Dear Mr. Howe;-

My reason for addressing this letter to you,is this-

I am anxious that word shall really reach the President,and thus assure him of my great pleasure in receiving a copy of his book,and I was fearful that if it went the usual way,some other Sec. might consign it to the waste-basket.

Then again,I wanted to thank you for acquainting the President with the contents of my previous letter.

Dear President:

I wonder if you have this book - or if it would hold any interest for you? My special interest at the time of buying it, was in the portrait & history given of Major - Gen. Henry Wager Halleck. Since then I have acquired more data along that line, and could part with this. In fact I would be glad to sell it.

It measures 10 x 12 ½ in, and contains 487 pages. On each page is the picture of an officer, and the remainder of the page is given to the history of the person portrayed. The inside of the book is perfect - leaves and clean pages. The cover shows some wear, with an inch of the leather back, at the bottom, gone. I call it worth ten ($10.) dollars.

Dear Mrs. Roosevelt:-

In looking over my curio collection today I note that I have one of the most beautiful hand painted large beer (about 1½ ft high) steins I have ever seen. I would like to present it to the President as a token of Esteem from his admirer. It would be symbolic of his victory over one phase of the depression, and at the same time would indicate the affection with which people look upon him.

I realize the suspicion with which bulky packages addressed to the president would be viewed at the present time, and I will ask your advice as to whether it is advisable to present this stein or not.

In order to prove to all concerned that the package is harmless I would be glad to deliver it personally and open it in the presence of Secret Service men. before it is given to our President.

Appreciating your opinions as I do I will await your answer as to whether it shall be presented or not. Respectfully Yours

Honorable Franklin D. Roosevelt
The White House
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. President:

We are taking pleasure in sending you, with our compliments, by separate post, a copy of our recent successful publication, FATHER COUGHLIN OF THE SHRINE OF THE LITTLE FLOWER, by Ruth Mugglebee.

We recall that when we communicated with you regarding your writing a foreword to this book you expressed a desire to see a copy.

FATHER COUGHLIN OF THE SHRINE OF THE LITTLE FLOWER has been well received by the press of the country, and we hope you will feel that the book pays Father Coughlin the tribute he merits.

Very sincerely yours
Mae Le Bert

My dear Mrs. Roosevelt — acknl'd 4/21-28

Your very kind answer to my letter of encouragement was the first ray of sunshine to me & mine for nearly four years & I thank you more than I know in words to say / & may I take liberty of sending you this set of chessmen that I promised doing & may I hope that you will give it to your beloved husband & were I to know that he found rest while playing with them I'd be the proudest human there is / I used only a knife in cutting them out of wood from a wild lemon tree that stands in our yard / I will have to wait till wood is dry enough before I can send chess board / thinking you again &

Very respectfully yours,
Walter Lundelius

My dear Mr. Lundelius:-

I have your letter and wish I could do something to help you get a job with the Panama Canal.

It is not possible for me to interfere with any political appointments, but I am forwarding your letter to the proper authorities for consideration.

Very sincerely yours,

Eleanor Roosevelt

Dear Mr Leffland:

I send today the Navy Book for the President.

I find it stained somewhat and when I offered it I thought it was in perfect condition. However the illustrations are all right and I am very glad to send it on anyway. If Mr Roosevelt has a copy of this work, please keep it yourself.

With kind season's greetings

I am, very truly yours

Dear Mr Howe

I am mailing to you today a book on Money which is the most talked of thing these days & the most needful & scarce & article known to many millions of our population

This book has much information of value & a good reference. You might place them & perhaps our President may be able to get a pointer or two out of it in his fight for the Forgotten Man & people, in place of a crowd of Bankers who have been playing & pampered & Spoiled they think this Country has been made for them alone. However F D R thinks differently & so do many millions more & are banking on his ability to win.

I hope we may all soon hear double good in a real friendly homeside chat that has won its place in our homes Sincerely — J H Lorimer
