My dear Mrs. Luther:

The President has received your letter of April twenty-seventh and has read it with interest. He asks me to thank you heartily for writing and for sending him the box of mints. He is deeply grateful to you for this evidence of your good will and friendly interest.

sick prostrated people. I am speaking from the very depths of my heart, for I see my husband a fine hard working Christian man, broken in spirit, discouraged almost ready to give up. He is an expert upholsterer experienced in making fine furniture and repairing antiques, but for three years he has been unemployed. He has excellent reference as to his work, character and social habits. But that doesn't seem to help a bit. It is always the same answer, we have nothing we can offer you at this time. And so I am praying for new courage to face the future. That you may be given the power to help us. And that God will guide you and keep you from all evil.

It will give me a great deal of pleasure if you and Mrs. Roosevelt like the little box of home made mints I made and am sending you.

Sincerely,

Mr President.

I have never experienced the real thrill of mothers day observance. I was left an orphan when just a child and my husband's parents are dead too. We have been too busy trying to provide and train our four children to give much thought to mothers or fathers day. But when I heard we were to have a Presidents day, I decided this was really the time to be thoughtful thankful and prayerful. And so I am trying to express to you our thankfulness for a President with the courage and determination to help a

The President,
The White House,
Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. President:

At a recent conference in the Elk's Club, Poughkeepsie, attended by John King, Frank Myers, Wm. J. Baier, Wm. F. Gaffney, my brother, Frank C. Lynch, and myself, it was decided that I should send you my book, "The Sales Strategy of John H. Patterson." This book tells the story of how Patterson, the President of the National Cash Register Company, beat the panics of 1893, 1907 and 1921.

From your magnificent record of the past seven weeks, I see much in common between your method of handling political and economic problems and Patterson's handling of manufacturing and sales problems. It is this phase of the book which, I believe, should interest you.

Patterson, too, was continually astonishing his associates, not only by the swiftness of his decisions, but also by the extreme audacity of his plans and policies. He, too, had an unerring and almost uncanny ability to analyze a situation in a wholly original and unconventional way and arrive at a conclusion that was apt to be entirely unprecedented and unexpected, but none the less final. In the vast majority of cases it would turn out to be thoroughly practical.

He was not infallible, of course, but somewhat after the fashion of Napoleon, he was totally unconcerned with precedents and traditions and conventionalities, basing his judgment upon an utterly realistic grasp of causes and effects.

He analysed situations realistically, from the point of view of the specific objective that he wanted to reach, without being in the least disturbed or disconcerted by the nominalism, precedent or tradition that seemed to be in his way.

RUSSELL W. LYNCH
CHICAGO

While I cannot conceive of your having time to read this book, since the entire country is sitting up late nights trying to keep informed on your activities, yet I send it on, trusting that somehow, sometime, you will find pleasant relaxation in its perusal.

I wish I were capable of describing to you the new life and hope that your "New Deal" has engendered in every walk of life that I contact - and they are many and varied. This reborn confidence is sound and solid, for it seems to be a universal conviction that the "New Deal" and your leadership were arranged by Destiny itself.

Respectfully yours,

Dear Mr. President:

I conceived the enclosed today and as one of your citizens, voters and admirers I am presuming to send it to you. Senator MacAdoo may recall the writer, having met him through William Bearman, Los Angeles, one of the Senator's campaign managers. I live in Beverly Hills.

Aside from the sincere sentiment expressed in the enclosed, the originality of a double acrostic prompted the writer to mail a copy to the personal attention of William Randolph Hearst at San Simeon, in the event he considered it sufficiently meritorious to utilize on President's Day in his various newspapers.

With best wishes for your continued success throughout your administration and asking forgiveness if this be considered a presumption, I am,

Gentlemen:

May 27, 1933

I have your letter of May twenty-seventh.

It has been the policy since the beginning of the Administration for me to accept gifts, acting on behalf of the President in this respect. I am sure you will appreciate how difficult it would be to make an exception even in a case such as this where I am sure the portrait is rather exceptional.

I will, of course, be very glad to suit to arrange your convenience with respect to the time. I should like to present it to him. I appreciate it if you would arrange an appointment for me whenever it is most convenient. I shall be in town for the next week or two and would be very glad to fly down to Washington in order to make the presentation.

Sincerely yours,

M. H. McINTYRE

Dear Mr. Roosevelt;

As long as I can remember the Elephant, or Republican party has been much larger than the Donkey, or the Democratic party - that was in the days of course, when I was a republican, but you have made a democrat out of me - You are the first and only President that I ever voted for on the Democratic ticket, and I want you to know that I shall vote for you just as often as you come up for president.

During my spare moments (and I have lots of them now days, for I am not working) I carved out two little animals - a donkey and an elephant, out of ordinary Oregon fir, and I tried to show the size as they could be - not as animals, but as party symbols. I carved them out especially for you, and I want you to have them, but I will not send them to you unless you request it. They are desk size, being 4 x 5" over all, with felt coushins on the feet so as not to mar your desk.

I take pleasure in sending you with my compliments under separate cover a copy of my new book entitled, "The New Prosperity."

This is a sequel to my earlier brochure entitled, "Ending the Depression Through Planned Obsolescence." I was encouraged to carry the theme of economic reconstruction further by the multitude of favorable comment I received from leaders of public opinion in the United States.

My effort has been to clarify our national thinking and to point the way to well considered action. I approach the subject, not as a technical economist nor as a writer, but as a builder and business man of forty years of practical experience.

I have sought to distinguish between fundamental causes of maladjustment and mere surface indications. In suggesting a remedy, I have not been concerned with palliatives, but with lasting cures.

It would be extremely helpful in this emergency to get your critical reaction to my thesis.

Respectfully,

Bernard London

YOUNG AMERICA'S STORY OF
FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT Man of Action

By Sadyebeth and Anson Lowitz
Illustrated with Photographs and Line
Drawings by Mr. Lowitz

On a breathless moment at noon, March 4, 1933, Franklin Delano Roosevelt stood making his inaugural address as President of the United States and all the world was listening. From that moment when he said, "This Nation asks for action, and action now!" he has become the first personage of the World and an inspiration to all of us. This book about the Man of Action has been written for young Americans and tells much that has hitherto been unknown—about his boyhood, his days at college, his early career, and what he is like today. Here is a chance to know the Man of Action personally.

It is a living, moving story through which we gain a realization of why this impressive, genial President of the United States addresses his fellow countrymen earnestly and confidently as "My friends."

The facts in this book are the basis of Young America's future.

A Junior Book that adults will read.

"and to the best of my ability to preserve, protect and defend the Constitution of the United States. . . ."
The strong, knotted hand of the man drops affectionately from the volume before him, an aged family Bible, brought from faraway Holland, years before. . . .

Flashback to summer at Crum Elbow. . . . Two small boys play at building a fort on the lawn. "Why not let the other boy give some of the orders?" a patient mother asks her son. "But, Mummie, if I didn't give the orders, nothing would happen. . . ."

The White House, 1887. . . . President Grover Cleveland, tired, worried, takes his five-year-old visitor by the hand. "I'm making a strange wish for you, little man. I hope that you'll never be President of the United States. . . ."

U. S. A., Spring, 1933. . . . A world in chaos. The national courage is almost exhausted, when . . . a sudden challenge rings from the new man in the White House—"What this nation needs is action, and action now!"

Here, in tabloid brief, is the story of a man whose life brings new hope to Old and to New America, today

July 20, 1933.

My dear Mr. Lowitz:

I have your letter of July 18th.

The President's indisposition has made it necessary to postpone all engagements since Monday last, and because of the tremendous amount of work to be done it is impossible to add to those already made.

Might I suggest that the presentation be made through me, as has been customary, and I will be glad to convey it to the President during one of the brief lulls.

I will be glad to suit your convenience with respect to time.

Sincerely yours,

M. H. McIntyre,
Assistant Secretary
to the President.

Mr. Marvin H. McIntyre,

Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. McIntyre:

Following the suggestion in your kind letter of July 6th, I am writing to advise that the President's copy of "Man of Action", written by Mrs. Lowitz and myself, is now ready for presentation to the President, and I deeply appreciate your efforts in obtaining an audience for us. Mrs. Lowitz and I are holding ourselves in readiness to come to Washington at any time you may designate.

As you may know, "Man of Action" is the story of the President and his family from the year 1621 to the trip on the "Amberjack". Mrs. James Roosevelt kindly assisted us with information on the President's youth, Mrs. Curtis B. Dall read and approved the page proofs, Hon. Josephus Daniels helped us on the war and navy chapters, and others added their bits to round out various phases in the President's life.

The special binding for copy number one has been executed by the famous French Binders recently decorated by the French government for their work, and Mrs. Lowitz and I are anxious to place the book in the President's hands as soon as convenient, especially in view of the fact that the regular trade edition is now on the stands.

Sincerely yours,

Anson Crawford Lowitz

What Leslie Says:

"Appreciative friends and good citizens of this community who are aware of facts and conditions that exist in this county, have urged me to run for this office to oppose the political machine predominating now. As the results of my investigation into the tax question and board of review—proof is in evidence to show what conditions prevailed. Therefore, these friends being satisfied that I would fearlessly serve in the interests of good government that we may enjoy the rights for which we pay a woeful price. I feel that I am in a position to furnish to the voters and taxpayers of this county from the records of one of the ablest tax expert investigations in this county, who is ready at my request to furnish enough evidence as to the conditions prevalent in our county supervision to more than satisfy the most sceptical seeker of efficient service.

SUNDAY

It should be free from toil as our present Sunday. This extra holiday

This day of rest was given to the world nearly six thousand years ago. See the Bible Ex. 20-10.

Moses is credited with writing the first five books of the Bible, hence, we are indebted to Moses for the knowledge of our Sunday.

Sunday is no longer universally observed exclusively as a day of rest and religious worship. It is used by mankind generally for athletic and social diversions for which a separate day should be given to the Nation in order that our Sunday may be restored to a hallowed day of rest as given us by God through the great leader Moses.

SPORTSDAY

It should be as free from toil as our present Sunday. This extra holiday would solve the problem of industrial over-production. It should be a full legal holiday for the Nation; all banks closed, no mails delivered, no railroad freight stations open, all work and all business stopped as it is for Sunday.

The creator of this day for devotion to the enjoyment of various diversions and anniversaries will be blessed by mankind for more than six thousand years hence.

WORK DAYS

MONDAY TO FRIDAY

They should be continuous and unbroken by commemorations of events that have passed into history.

They should be working days for everyone without regard to occupations. For example:-It is unjust for bank clerks to have holidays on Washington's or Lincoln's birthday and department store clerks and industrial employees be required to work.

PRESENT RECURRING HOLIDAYS

New Year's Day, Election Day, Washington's and Lincoln's birthday, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Christmas and all other holidays are now observed Mondays to Saturday when ever they occur. In the future these holidays to be celebrated on the Sportsday of the week in which they occur.

Such days can be just as much honored on the new Sportsday as though celebrated on a Monday to Saturday.

The most this new calendar would only be creating the difference between fifty-two "half holidays" and twenty-six "half holidays" or twenty-six additional "half holidays" equal to thirteen full days of working time out of each year.

Surely the world has progressed sufficiently since the days of Moses to cease on Saturday from the production of more material things and to give itself this extra full day's rest each week.

in the future...

and Lincoln's birthday, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Election Day, Thanksgiving,

The Nation needs more than any other being ACTUAL TIME ADJUSTMENT of the day of rest and the worship of God unimpeded

by There are about thirteen full holidays each year celebrated by different people according to occupations, religions, etc. on equal to twenty-six "half holidays". Also it has been the custom for many years that nearly all industry and business now stops at noon on Saturdays giving fifty-two "half holidays" (now many industries and trades do not work at all on Saturday) so that at the most this new calender would only be creating the difference between fifty-two "half holidays" and twenty-six "half holidays" or twenty-six additional "half holidays" equal to thirteen full days of working time out of each year.

Surely the world has progressed sufficiently since the days of Moses to cease on Saturday from the production of more material things and to give itself this extra full day's recess each week.

GOD'S SUNDAY RESTORED

The Nation needs more than any other thing the complete restoration of the day of rest and the worship of God unspoiled by the excesses of recreation existant everywhere.

The people are absorbed with recreation on Sunday because they have not been allowed a full day each week for diversions and for other activities for which they have no time on work days. Yet, these things are not to be decried but are not appropriate to Sunday consecrated for rest and religious worship.

How shall the Nation be made ready for greater benefits if we do not begin by devoting a full day each week to the cultivation of the higher aspirations of mankind.

Dear Sir:

I am shipping you a crate of my famous Elberta peaches which are grown here on the hills of northwest Georgia. I hope they will reach you in as good condition as they are now.

We have had 33 years experience in growing peaches and take a lot of pride in what we have developed.

My sons and I have had several suggestions from some of your admirers here in Rome, to send you some of my fruit, as it has the reputation of being the best grown in this section of the country.

We are all Rooseveltites, myself and five sons. Hoping you will receive this fruit in the spirit in which we send it, I remain your friend, and admirer,

W.B.L.B.

My dear Mrs. Locke:

The President has received the clothes-pin doll which you were good enough to send him, and I wish to thank you in his behalf for your courtesy. He greatly appreciates this evidence of your friendly interest and good will.

Very sincerely yours,

M. A. LeHand,
PRIVATE SECRETARY

My dear Mr. McIntyre:

In view of the fact that you were unable to arrange an appointment for Mrs. Lowitz and myself to meet the President, Mrs. Gurtis B. Dall suggested that we present the President's copy of our book to her, and that she in turn would transmit it to the President in Washington.

Accordingly, we handed Mrs. Dall the book on Wednesday last.

Let me take this opportunity to thank you for your kindly efforts in our behalf.

Sincerely yours,

Anson Crawford Lowitz
