Honorable Sir:

Please accept this book,
Letters of History, by Lord Henry St. John Bolingbroke, dated 1738, as a gift for your Birthday. I thought you may enjoy reading it.

May you have many happy Birthdays,
and May God Bless and Guide you always.

I think you are the greatest President

His Excellency, The President of the United States,
The White House, Washington, D.C.

Mr. President,

The entire nation is joining today to offer you the earnest wishes that come from the heart of a people to a great and well-loved leader. And I, a Pole who has received and is receiving from this great country the blessing of its hospitality joins most sincerely in their enthusiasm.

But this day holds for me an even deeper and more personal meaning. Three years ago, before the nazi fury had unleashed carnage on the world this would have been in our home a day of celebration and rejoicing. For it is my own dear father's birthday. Today, we are all apart: I, most fortunate, due to the fact that when Poland fell I still had my American visa which had served me to visit the World's fair, was able to escape to this hospitable land; my two brothers, prisoners of war in Switzerland; and my poor parents stranded in nazi-ruled Paris!

I did not want to be a burden to society and I have devoted the three years since I landed to a work intended to fulfill a need which I felt here amongst collectors, dealers and all connected with the Art business for a complete and thorough guide to the field. This book, probably already received by Your Excellency, "Mastai's Classified Directory of American Art & Antique Dealers" is the result. Having been an Art dealer myself, being in fact of the third generation in this line, accounts for my awareness and interest in this subject. I am happy that my work is done and that it has met with the approval of American Art critics and the professionals.

I trust that Your Excellency will accept the volume which represents my efforts to repay in however small a manner my debt of gratitude.

With my great admiration and respect and the assurance that not only on this day will my earnest wishes go to the head of the great nation which stands as the only hope of tortured and enslaved millions.

Most respectfully,

Boleslaw Mastai

By separate mail, we are sending you with our compliments, a couple of our intriguing War puzzles..one entitled.."Trap

Both of these puzzles somewhat typify the United Nations strategy, in this global war.

Of course we know that every minute counts with you but we do hope that you'll find a little relaxation when you do find a few minutes in endeavoring to work the puzzles.

Our earnest wish is that by the end of 1943 the whole world

My dear Mr. Roosevelt,

While visiting my brother-in-law, Mr. Bernard Mullin, in Toronto, Canada, last summer, I watched him making this beautiful hand-lettered motto, which he calls "A Loving Tribute" in honor of the visit of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth to Canada and the United States.

It is such a lovely tribute to them and to you, that I take the liberty of sending you this copy, in honor of your birthday. I am sending the motto on Mr. Mullin's behalf, but without his knowledge, for he is far too humble to think of sending it to you himself.

It is with the hope that you will accept this tribute from one who greatly admires your excellent leadership of our beloved country, during these perilous days.

Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. Roosevelt,

While visiting my brother-in-law, Mr. Bernard Mullin, in Toronto, Canada, last summer, I watched him making this beautiful hand-lettered motto, which he calls "A Loving Tribute" in honor of the visit of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth to Canada and the United States.

It is such a lovely tribute to them and to you, that I take the liberty of sending you this copy, in honor of your birthday. I am sending the motto on Mr. Mullin's behalf, but without his knowledge, for he is far too humble to think of sending it to you himself.

It is with the hope that you will accept this tribute from one who greatly admires your excellent leadership of our beloved country, during these perilous days.

Very respectfully yours

x Mrs. Annie McKinnis

Dear Mr. President.

I am sending you a present of my invention of a fishing rod holder and a clamp for a boat.

so that when the war is over you may go fishing and use it.

Mr. President I want you to take to not hold fishing rod in your hand just fasten this outfit to the boat and relax when the fish pulls just pull the rod and catch the fish
I know you are too busy to be bothered with things like this but I just had to make this for you because I know all that you are doing to free my country where I was born in Poland. I would like to go ahead with this idea. But I will wait until

The President
Washington
D. C.

My dear Mr. President,

We have just completed two periods of solemn prayer at our National Shrine of Our Lady of Prompt Succor, praying God, through the intercession of His Blessed Mother, under the title of PROMPT SUCCOR, for Victory and Peace. In a very special manner, You, our Commander-in-Chief, were uppermost in our minds, and we begged God, the true Light of the World, to enlighten, direct and strengthen you in this, America's critical hour.

The first of these periods of prayer terminated on January eighth, the one hundred twenty-eighth anniversary of the battle of New Orleans. On the occasion of that national event, in 1815, a vow was made to Our Lady of Prompt Succor by the Ursuline Community of New Orleans to have, each year, a solemn high Mass offered up in her honor if she would obtain victory for the American arms. The favor was granted. Soon after, General Andrew Jackson, our later revered President, called at the convent to share with us his joy. Now, one hundred twenty-eight years have elapsed since that victorious day and never has one year passed without the solemn high Mass being offered in thanksgiving with all the beautiful ceremonial befitting the anniversary.

The second solemn occasion terminated on January fifteenth, as on this day is commemorated the feast of Our Lady of Prompt Succor as Patroness of the entire State of Louisiana.

Will you accept the medal of Our Lady of Prompt Succor, which we are sending under separate cover, as a personal souvenir of her Shrine here in New Orleans? Also we beg you to receive our heartfelt sympathy in the grave responsibility and great national burden that is yours.

Our congratulations, Mr. President, on the unprecedented success of your recent Conference at Casablanca! Extending our prayerful wishes that success and victory may crown your administration, we are, dear Mr. President,

Yours faithfully,

THE URSULINE NUNS OF NEW ORLEANS.

Mather M. Lovette Boland O.S.U.
Prioress.

On Time

*From L. & N., from B. & O., from B. R. I. R. R.
To Slocum's Transportation School
We've come from near and far.
From the climbing old Rock Island
From the Southern's bumps and ruts,
We came to learn to march and shoot,
With drills by General Butts.
And now, by God, we graduate—We'll show the Army how
To run the trains that move the stuff
From farm and mill to scow,
To freighter, transport, clipper-ship,
From here to there and back.
We'll even show them how to use
Australian wide-gauge track.
We're hard-boiled railroad engineers
The "ACTCOTS" is our Corps.
We'll tell the world it won't be long Before we've won the war.*

Dedication

As a tribute to our Commander-in-Chief, the President of the United States, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, whose worldly-wise statesmanship guides our democracy on the road to victory, and whose personal courage inspires us with determination and confidence—We, the Second Graduating Class of the Military Railway Service Officers and the First Class of the Regulating Station Group Officers in attendance at the Atlantic Coast Transportation Corps Officers Training School, at Fort Slocum, N. Y., affectionately dedicate this class book.

Foreword

ALTHOUGH, the aim in compiling this edition has been, rather, comprehensiveness without presumption or preciosity, it is significant that it is so vulnerably titled "On Time". It has a two-fold purpose, one, primarily to knit into bonds of close fellowship in the task ahead, we, the Railroad Engineers and Regulating Service Group Officers of the Atlantic Coast Transportation Corps Officer Training School. Secondly to serve as a constant reminder of the IMPORTANCE of that task in bringing this war to a successful conclusion. Having accomplished this, we then can say that our training here has not been in vain. As officers, as men, as Americans, we resolve to make good the trust, the heritage placed in our hands, when we first arrived at the A.C.T.C.O.T.S. With these vitally essential factors in mind, in unison we say "On Time."

History

IN September 1941, the Corps of Engineers reorganized the Military Railway Service and the personnel of many railroad systems formed the new Service Reserve Units. The Military Railway Service Units became a full fledged branch of the Transportation Corps when it was activated to service on December 2, 1942. On January 11, approximately sixty officers were selected to form the second class of the Railroad Engineers and the first class of Regulating Service Group at the Atlantic Coast Transportation Corps Officers Training School at Fort Slocum, N. Y. All of the officers in civil pursuits were adept at some phase of transportation, principally railroading.

The course here is designed to prepare the officers for the task ahead and the basic military training—including hygiene, orientation, sanitation, drill, physical training, military law, marksmanship, and military courtesy—serves the purpose.

Colonel Bernard Lentz, Commanding Officer of the Post and Commandant of the School, delivered the opening address to the railroad engineers, and the former railroad men will remember for many years to come many of the practical illustrations that the Commandant included in his talks.

Colonel Thomas F. McNeill, Assistant Commandant of the School, has handled the course and actual cases in Court Martial procedure.

Nothing was spared to afford us a better visual knowledge of transportation problems and war in general. The lectures delivered by the Chiefs of the different branches of the Transportation Corps were consistent with our Master Training Program to develop us into the best transport officers that can cope with the present day crisis. The prominent commentators whom we were privileged to hear in our classes on orientation enlightened us in problems of world affairs and the war.

Hence we can say that we are prepared to meet whatever our future assignments may be as wiser men, more physically fit, and highly trained to do a better job in bringing this war to a successful conclusion.

COLONEL BERNARD LENTZ

COLONEL BERNARD LENTZ, author, professor and soldier, is the originator of the Lentz System of cadenced drill, used widely throughout the Army. He is a West Point graduate, Class of 1905, and has been C.O. of this post since February, 1942.

Wisconsin born, Colonel Lentz was first assigned to duty with the 21st Infantry in Samar, Philippine Islands. Returning to the United States in 1906, he served at Fort Logan, Colo., and Fort Douglas, Utah, before going back to the Philippines three years later. This time he was assigned to the Island of Mindinao.

A tour of duty at Vancouver Barracks followed, and in 1914 he was detailed as Professor of Military Science and Tactics at the University of Minnesota. In 1916 he returned to his old regiment, the 21st Infantry, then stationed on the Mexican Border. When America entered World War I he was immediately assigned to the Presidio in San Francisco as an instructor in the Officers Training Camp.

In the latter part of '17 Colonel Lentz was detailed to the Capitol, as a member of the General Staff Corps. He remained there for two years, and in 1920 he was graduated from the School of the Line, Fort Leavenworth, Kan. A year later he graduated from the General Staff School and returned to the University of Minnesota for a six-year term as Professor of Military Science and Tactics.

Colonel Lentz later attended the Army War College in Washington and was attached to the office of Chief of Infantry upon his graduation. In 1935 he was assigned to command the famous 21st Infantry, his old regiment, then on duty in the Hawaiian Islands.

In '38 he returned to the States and went to Governors Island, and in 1940 took command at Fort Dix, N. J. Later the same year he was placed in charge of the Overseas Discharge and Replacement Depot at the N.Y.P.E., a post he held until ordered here.

Colonel Lentz is the author of a current military book, "The Cadence System of Teaching Close Order Drill." The edition is based on the new infantry drill regulations.

COLONEL THOMAS FRANKLIN McNEILL

COLONEL THOMAS FRANKLIN McNEILL, a graduate of Valparaiso University, Indiana, where he earned B.S. and A.B. degrees, began his army career at the Presidio of San Francisco, Calif. in 1901, serving with the Coast Artillery Corps. Among the many places in which he saw duty prior to his service in France during the World War (in which he participated in the Oise-Aisne and Meuse-Argonne offensives) were Fort Wint, Philippine Islands; Fort H. G. Wright, N. Y.; Fort Monroe, Va.; Fort Screven, Ga.; Fort Oglethorpe and Camp Sheridan, Ala.; and Camp Upton, L. I.

Following his World War service, Colonel McNeill entered the Field Officers Infantry School at Fort Benning, Ga., graduating from there in 1922, after which he became instructor of Infantry at Camp Louis, Washington. He was also instructor at the Nebraska National Guard at Lincoln, Neb.; Chief of the Historical Section at the Army War College in Washington; Assistant to the Deputy Chief of Staff, First Army Headquarters, Second Corps Area, Governors Island, N. Y. and Executive Officer of the 21st Infantry at Schofield Barracks, in Hawaii. Upon his return to the States in 1936 Colonel McNeill became Professor of Military Science and Tactics, Reserve Officers Training Corps, Ohio University at Athens, Ohio.

He voluntarily retired after 40 years of continuous service on October 31, 1941, and after Pearl Harbor was reactivated and assigned as Professor of Military Science and Tactics at the State College of Washington. He came to Fort Slocum on May 19, 1942, at the express request of Colonel Lentz, Post Commander.

Colonel McNeill was awarded the Silver Star Decoration for extraordinary courage displayed under shell fire in 1918 in the Aisne Sector at which time he so judiciously maneuvered his troops through the enemy lines that he gained his objective without suffering any casualties.

The First Transportation Corps

FIFTY or a hundred thousand years ago, in the days of the Neanderthal man, there lived a species of big, clumsy, awkward, half-witted apes who considered themselves "homo-sapiens", who who were, in reality, merely "homo-sape".

The Neanderthal man, being engaged in war with his enemies on many fronts, began to realize the importance of getting from one place to another, and so decided to organize a Transportation Corps. Looking around for personnel with which to officer the new corps, he decided to utilize the "homo-saps". While they were a clumsy, awkward lot with a very low "I.Q.", a lower "P.Q.", and no "S.A.", they did have a faculty of getting around fairly well, and he did not know where he could do better under the circumstances.

The Neanderthal man gathered a group of these creatures and, knowing little if anything of the principles of "Noblesse Oblige", quartered them in "Augean Stable", where they could not go A.W.O.L. Then he set about to train them.

Being inherently a "bully" and lacking appreciation of "qualities of leadership"; and in fact, being something of a "homo-sap" himself, his idea was to make use of the great knotted club he carried and "knock some courtesy, common sense, and A.A." into their thick heads. But his efforts were unsuccessful. He soon found himself with a bunch of "cranial blackouts" on his hands, and his Transportation turned out to be a complete flop.

The moral of this story is that it could have happened again at Fort Slocum, N. Y. fifty or a hundred thousand years later had it not been for "The Hand That Lays the Golden Egg".

SCHOOL'S GOAL

(Extracts from the address by Colonel Bernard Lentz, Commandant, at the opening of the Atlantic Coast Transportation Corps Officers Training School, Fort Slocum, New York, on Monday, October 12, 1942 at 10:00 A.M.)

The ideology which we shall use in the Atlantic Branch of the Transportation Corps Officers Training School, embodies the Democratic way. For our definition of the Democratic way of doing things, I refer you to a letter entitled, "Morale and Discipline," dated October 16, 1940, War Department, Office of the Chief of Staff, Washington, D. C. This letter was sent out by General Marshall, shortly before the draft went into effect. I quote from this letter as follows:

"First in importance will be the development of a high morale and the building of a sound discipline, based on wise leadership and a spirit of mutual cooperation throughout all ranks. Morale, engendered by thoughtful consideration for officers and enlisted men by their commanders, will produce a cheerful and understanding subordination of the individual to the good of the team. This is the essence of the American standard of discipline, and it is a primary responsibility of leaders to develop and maintain such a standard."

This school will be run on the principle supposed to obtain in a Liberal Arts college. I could take you back throughout the ages and show you how this idea of Liberal Arts was developed. Liberal Arts really means: Disciplined Thinking. And is not disciplined thinking the very thing we are after in all our Army schools devoted to the instruction of officers? Certainly, without disciplined thinking, no man should ever be permitted to rise in an Army beyond the place of being a glorified clerk.

To recapitulate: During this course, which you are now beginning, we are going to give you practical lessons in the military virtues. With the assistance of prominent lecturers from Washington, the New York Port of Embarkation, as well as well-known speakers from New York, we shall also try to give you a good orientation course on the various functions that come under the Transportation Corps of the Army. We shall try to do all this by using the Democratic way as I have described it. We shall try to make "Tone" our object in everything we do.

Enclosed is a book I have written which has been dedicated to the leaders of the United Nations.

In your fight against the forces of Fascism, I want to assure you that the American People are wholeheartedly following your leadership. You may have difficulties with certain men whose hatred of you and your policies become personal, and as a result it may seem that the country is not united. However, from my talks and lectures with the common man, I know that they will follow your course of action unhesitatingly, which will ultimately lead to victory.

I remain

My dear Mr. President:

As I know you will recall, the Second Division of the A.E.F., World War I, was the only division made up of the three branches of our military forces - the Army, Navy and Marines. You will also recall, most of these men were volunteers from all sections of the United States.

In the book, history of the Second Division, the activities are modestly told. Your trip up the Rhine as the Asst. Secretary of the Navy to review the marines accomplished what few of the men of our division know even today, and I refer to the Stars and Stripes which through your personal efforts were flown over Fort Ehrenbreitstein.

I am sure the men of the Second Division regarded you as our honored member when you were the Asst. Secretary of the Navy. Therefore, I know they will be pleased to have you accept the history of the Second Division, and it is my happy privilege and pleasure to present this book to you under separate cover.

Very sincerely yours,
