I am an Episcopalian, by the way, and not a Roman Catholic, but I admire the faith and prayerfulness of the Catholics, and find the quaint little hundred-year-old Church of "Our Lady of the Port" a fascinating study.

THE WEST END WEEKLY NEWS

A Christmas Candle--Riverport of Portland Beauty of and Life Along The Ohio River

The story being published here was composed and prepared by Miss Ethel Allen Murphy, a resident of Portland in the West End, who resides at 3104 Bank Street, who was formerly a teacher in the Louisville Girls High School, which is now a part of Halleck Hall. Miss Murphy later taught at the Atherton High School for Girls, retiring in 1932. She is author of two books of poetry, "The Angel of Thought" and "Outward Bound" and of several patriotic pageants. Her favorite, "The Garden of Life" written for the Parent-Teacher League in Louisville was presented by the league in interest of the student loan fund and produced a generous amount for the fund. This article combining Portland history and the Christmas spirit, we trust may be of interest to our many readers, and due to its length, the article starts this week and will be concluded in our next Friday's edition. (Editor.)

BY ETHEL ALLEN MURPHY

Riverport has the cosmopolitan quality that characterizes most river towns. English, French, German and Irish are among the ancestral strains contributed by the river, which curves along its northern border to the "port" of embarkation and debarkation, once a busy center for those who traveled by steamboat up and down. To this quality, the railroads, which skirt the southern edge, have contributed still more.

Houses of all types reflect the stages of development like geological strata. Along the lower road are the amphibious houseboats under the giant cottonwoods and sycamores. Further back from the river are weathered old houses of various periods, from those built by prosperous "river men,," 75 or 100 years ago, to Victorian dwellings of the 1860's, 70's and 80's, showing such fascinating anachronisms as gables, stained-glass doors and windows, and wrought iron gates and fences. On shady streets under wide-spreading old trees, are sturdy cottages, brick or frame, stamped with a certain dignity, reflecting the home-consciousness of a simple age. Here and there on higher streets among larger dwellings of various periods, are clusters of little cottages which seem to have sprung up like mushrooms from the decay of old fortunes. Many of the people of Riverport own their homes and love it with the fervor of patriots for their land.

Even the River, which time after time invades the region, cannot loosen the hold on the people of that loyal love. The mark of the "great flood" still shows on the gray Gothic walls of the interior of the church of "Notre Dame du Port" founded by French settlers more than a century ago. In this church, "Our Lady" keeps vigil. She was brought from France many years ago, where she had been carved by the loving hands of some French artist, from a single block of wood, grown in the forests of France, as was discovered when she was taken down to be repainted after the last flood. She is very beautiful, as she stands in exquisite maiden purity, in her white robe and blue mantle, with her foot on the head of the serpent , who coils subdued, with the apple in his mouth, a great symbol of the triumph of good over evil. Many votive candles are burned in Our Lady's Church by those who pray for the safe return of their loved ones from the great war.

Service flags blossom abundantly all over Riverport, from house-boat to mansion. There is no house so poor but that it can boast one symbolic star, and many windows have two or three, and some have constellations of four and five stars. One house boasts seven stars "for seven nephews." Vigil lights burn in many windows, flanked by service flags and photographs of young service men.

Mrs. Bundy's cosy little cottage has one star in its window, and for her son, Nat Bundy, votive candles are burned to "Our Lady" and to St. Anthony who brings back the lost things. One Christmas Eve, Mrs. Bundy had stopped in to pray for Nat and to light the candles herself. In the dim church, they burned warmly and reassuringly through their crimson globes in the rainbow ring of red, green, blue, and amber glasses on the stand before St. Anthony. The morning light upon the face of St. Anthony's statue made it seem a living presence, and "Our Lady" looked infinitely compassionate. It was the form of Our Lord on the cross, however, and the sweet loving look upon his anguished face that smote the heart of Mrs. Bundy. She thought of that wondrous sacrifice being duplicated that very hour of holy Christmastide and they so young to die. She wept.

On her way back, she stopped at the Piggly Wiggly, five squares above the railroad viaduct, to make some last minute purchases, and there in line with Riverport's intensely democratic and individualistic citizenry, she had felt the Christmas spirit tinged with pathos as she exchanged greetings with wives, mothers and sweethearts who wore the proud badge of those whose loved ones serve in the armies of freedom.

Near her home, she stood to watch a troop-train pass, part of the ever-moving pagentry of the railroads yards which bring to the old suburb the action and urge of a modern world—at war. As the train slowed to a stop, windows were resemblance, her own boy, Nat. She smiled and waved to him. Something of wistful warmth and motherly tenderness in her look and attitude struck the boy. He waved to her. "Good bye, mother, good bye!" he called. Other voices took up the call, and to that heart-stirring chorus, the train passed on. Mrs. Bundy said a prayer, under her breath, for these unknown sons of the unknown mothers whose hearts were knit with hers in a mutual bond of pride and sorrow.

As she approached her home, the service star in the window seemed somehow to shoot arrows of anguish into her heart. The chill mist that was dropping its icy veil seemed to Mrs. Bundy to be distilled from the tears of mothers "weeping for their children."

THE WEST END WEEKLY NEWS

Later, as she talked to Mrs. Chester from the big old-fashioned two-story house across the street, a barely visible film crossed her expressive dark eyes, and the barely preceptible flutter of a sigh caused her broad bosom to heave a little. Mrs. Chester had come over to "borrow the telephone." Riverport is a neighborly place. Its people are always ready to do a good turn, to share what they have—their telephones, their garden products, their flowers, their newspapers, their ready sympathy. After Mrs. Chester had made her call, she lingered awhile to exchange news with Mrs. Bundy, to exchange news about their respective sons in the service, for Mrs. Chester's window also displayed a single service star.

"I told Tom I was not going to put up the Christmas candle this year." He wanted to do it, but I said, "The service flag is Christmas decoration enough for me," said Mrs. Bundy.

Mrs. Chester shook her handsome gray head in sympathy, and sighed, and admitted, "It is terribly lonely for us mothers this Christmas."

So, for the first time in many years—no Christmas candle shone that night from Mrs. Bundy's window. Lonesomely, she cried herself to sleep, while outside, the mist thickened and began to freeze, and inside, wrapped itself around her very heart.

When Mr. Bundy came ~~home~~ home from a service at his church, for he did not belong to the fold of "Our Lady," while owning still the "Great Shepherd of the Sheep," he felt chilled to the bone by the clinging mist that was turning to sleet, and deeply burdened by the darkness of his cottage windows. At first, he did not know what it was that made him feel so gloomy. Then all at once, he knew. There was no candle in the window. He remembered all the happy years when it had burned there. The Christmases of his son's childhood rushed upon him—the tree, the toys, the joyous festivity, the red-gold head above the sparkling eyes, brighter than any Christmas lights. He could not bear this darkness and this blankness.

When Mr. Bundy entered the little house, his wife was sleeping. She had a little framed snapshot of a young boy in his football togs. This she had placed near her on her bedside table. One of her hands lay relaxed upon the table as if she had reached out in her sleep to touch the picture.

Mr. Bundy tiptoed to the closet where the Christmas wreath, with its candle, was put away. He disentangled it from a complex of other things— treasured Christmas tree decorations, toys preserved with motherly sentiment, pennants from high school and college days. Quietly he slipped into the front room—once his son's room, pressed the plug into the socket, fastened the wreath in the front window, and turned on the light of the candle.

Meantime, on one of our "far-flung battle lines," Cpl. Nat Bundy lay on his cot in a tent hospital. For that part of the world, it was already Christmas day, but for Cpl. Bundy, there was neither night nor day, sun, moon nor stars, mete nor bound of time and space—only a great, deep darkness. And within that darkness, was only the intense focal point of a life not yet extinguished, held there by some urge to survival that struggled against the mortal numbness of the flesh. The army surgeons had done their best for him—the operation for the shrapnel wounds, the transfusions. The outcome now lay in the hands of the Divine Surgeon. Nat Bundy lay bound and gagged by deathly lethargy in that no-man's land that borders life and death.

But something intense in that focal point of the spirit moved towards "home." He seemed, to that internal sense, to be struggling in the darkness to reach that little cottage in Riverport, and his heart misgave him, as it had sometimes, when, as a little boy, he had stayed out at his play too late, and his fear of his mother's fears and tears, and sudden reaction of relieved anger, gave wings to his feet.

"Mom! I'm coming," barely breathed through numb lips, he gasped, as a motherly, forty-ish nurse in dungrees bent over him solicitously—"but it's so dark—I can't find the way."

Then, suddenly, deep within that center of life, a light gleamed—as if in a dark street—yes, a lighted candle in a window. Cpl. Bundy seemed then to know the quiet street, the little cottage. He had found his way home.

"Mom," he whispered, as the dark-eyed nurse pressed a soft, firm hand upon his pulse—"Mom, I told you I'd come home."

"Yes, Cpl. Bundy," the nurse said, straightening up with a smile, "You have a very good chance again to go home to Mom."

Back at home, half a world away, Mrs. Bundy stirred, stretched out her hand, and tuoched her husband.

"Tom! Get up and put the Christmas candle in the window. I dreamed that Nat called me. He seemed like a little boy lost in the dark and he couldn't find his way home."

"I've already hung it hp and lighted it," said Mr. Bundy.

Some weeks later, a letter, dictated by Nat to a nurse, reached Mrs. Bundy. It told the story of that darkest of all Nat's Christmases — and of the lighted candle that led.

If this story has any moral, it may be summed up thus:

You who have loved ones in the service, do not fail to light the Christmas candles in the windows and to make all bright for Christmas. Perhaps one of your dear ones may be lost in the dark of a mortal struggle, and a little light in the window may lead him home.

Prayer to Our Lady Immaculate

Most holy Virgin, who was pleasing to the Lord and became His mother, immaculate in body and spirit, in faith and love, look kindly on the wretched who implore thy powerful patronage. The wicked serpent, against whom was hurled the first curse, continues fiercely to attack and ensnare the unhappy children of Eve. Do thou, then, O Blessed Mother, our Queen and advocate, who from the first instant of thy Conception, didst crush the head of the enemy, receive the prayers which, united with thee in one single heart, we implore thee to present at the throne of God, that we may never fall into the snares which are laid out for us, and may all arrive at the port of salvation; and, in so many dangers, may the Church and Christian society sing once again, the hymn of deliverance, of victory, and of peace. Amen. (300 days, once a day)

The Memorare

Remember, O Most gracious Virgin Mary! that never was it known that any one who fled to thy protection, implored thy help, and sought thy intercession, was left unaided. Inspired with confidence, I fly unto thee, O Virgin of virgins, my mother! To Thee I come; before thee I stand, sinful and sorrowful. O mother of the word incarnate! despise not my petitions, but, in thy mercy, hear and answer me. Amen. (300 days, each time)

Most holy and Immaculate Virgin! O my Mother! thou who art the mother of my Lord, the queen of the world, the advocate, hope and refuge of sinners! I, the most wretched among them, now come to thee. I worship thee, great queen, and give thee thanks for the many favors thou hast bestowed upon me in the past; most of all, do I thank thee for having saved me from

Prayer

Most holy Virgin, who wast chosen to be the Mother of the Incarnate Wisdom and who thus didst become the seat of wisdom and the Mother of good consel, and the faithful dispenser of heavenly gifts to us, thy adopted children, we supplicate thee to enlighten our understanding, to direct our steps, to console us by thy maternal protection, so that, exempt from all error, sheltered from every danger, strengthened against our enemies, we may with ardor and invincible courage walk in the paths traced out for us by thee and thy Divine Son. We do not deserve so great a favor, but we know that thou art our Mother, and dost not measure thy graces to our merits, but according to the extent of thy power and the generosity of thy maternal heart. Filled with this confidence, we are assured that thy protection will never fail us, and we hope to thank thee in heaven singing thy praises forever. Amen.

Prayer to Our Lady Immaculate

Most holy Virgin, who was pleasing to the Lord and became His mother, immaculate in body and spirit, in faith and love, look kindly on the wretched who implore thy powerful patronage. The wicked serpent, against whom was hurled the first curse, continues fiercely to attack and ensnare the unhappy children of Eve. Do thou, then, O Blessed Mother, our Queen and advocate, who from the first instant of thy Conception, didst crush the head of the enemy, receive the prayers which, united with thee in one single heart, we implore thee to present at the throne of God, that we may never fall into the snares which are laid out for us, and may all arrive at the port of salvation; and, in so many dangers, may the Church and Christian society sing once again, the hymn of deliverance, of victory, and of peace. PRAYERS

When the priest blesses the Medal and imposes it on the wearer he says the following prayer:

"O Almighty and Merciful God, Who, through the manifold apparitions of the Immaculate Virgin on earth, has deigned continually to perform wonderful things for the salvation of souls, graciously bestow Thy blessing on this medal that they who piously venerate and devoutly wear it may feel Thy protection and obtain Thy mercy. Through Christ Our Lord. Amen."

To the one receiving the medal the priest says:

"Receive this holy medal, wear it faithfully and keep it with fitting veneraton that the most pious and Immaculate Queen of Heaven may protect and defend you; and repeating the prodigies of her love, may she mercifully obtain for you whatever you suppliantly ask of God, so that in life and in death you may rest happily in her maternal embrace. Amen."

Mr. President,

With the current "March of dimes" now in full swing, I would like to present to you this badly burned & disfigured dime to be used in your personal collection or be sold, auctioned any way you see fit - To the average american this dime is like many millions now in circulation but to me it is a valuable piece of money - because it came from within the bowels of the U.S.S. West Virginia Sunk Dec 7. 1941 - at Pearl Harbor. - - my family & I were there that never to be forgotten Sunday a.m. & I was employed by Contractors Pacific Naval air bases & helped raise the. U.S.S. Nevada, California, W. Virginia & the Minelayer Oglala. - I also worked on the Oklahoma.

This dime has been taken from my collection of current war souvenirs - - some pictures of salvage work, given me by Admiral Nimitz, photos of Jap ships sunk in the South Pacific, Mrs Morris' pass as a Registred Nurse Date Dec. 8, at Pearl Harbor photos of boys from the U.S.S. Enterprise, torpedo squadron eleven, - Carrier replacement air group - N.A.S. Barbers Point, Kanahoe N.A.S. etc. - although my collection is far from complete I need some photos of the Pearl Habor disaster but to date haven't been able to secure them because of security reasons. -

Sir please accept this dime - and use it in any way you see fit.

Sincerely -

A person who does not belong to the Association or who has not been invested in the Miraculous Medal may still gain great indulgences by wearing the Medal. He may gain a plenary indulgence on the day on which he first receives the Medal properly blessed, on Easter, and on the Feast of the Immaculate Conception, under the conditions of Confession, Communion, and a visit to a church dedicated to Mary or his parish church to pray for the intention of the Pope. (Brief of September 30, 1895.)

The faithful at large may gain 300 days' indulgence each time they recite the following prayer, and a plenary indulgence once a month under the usual conditions if they recite the prayer daily: "O Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee." (Pius XI, April 15, 1932.)

On the Feast of the Manifestation of the Miraculous Medal, November 27, all the faithful may gain a plenary indulgence, provided they go to Confession, and Communion and visit a church or chapel of the Priests of the Mission (Vincentians), or of the Daughters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul, and pray there for the intention of the Pope. (Brief of August 24, 1894.)

All the indulgences mentioned above are applicable to the suffering souls in Purgatory.

THE CENTRAL ASSOCIATION OF THE MIRACULOUS MEDAL

This Association owes its origin to a telling manifestation of the generosity of Our Blessed Mother. For when Father Skelly in 1914 wrote an appeal for our preparatory seminary at Princeton, he enclosed in each letter a Miraculous Medal. The response was so favorable that no one could doubt that to Mary alone could be credited the success. Mary then must be thanked and repaid: but how? Wide consultation and long prayer finally bore fruit in this conclusion: to establish an association to promote devotion to Mary by means of the Miraculous Medal. And thus, with the cordial approval of the religious superiors and the blessing of the ecclesiastical authorities, was instituted THE CENTRAL ASSOCIATION OF THE MIRACULOUS MEDAL.

The Association was established in March, 1915, at St. Vincent's Seminary, Germantown, Philadelphia. Its leading purpose was to increase devotion to the Immaculate Mother of God through the Medal which Mary herself revealed. A second aim was to help young men to become worthy priests of Mary's Divine Son. And when our Vincentian Priests were directed by Our Holy Father in 1922 to evangelize the Vicariate of Kanchow, China, we undertook to assist them in their work with the poor, as well as to aid the poor here at home.

The associates incur no new obligations. They are recommended to repeat frequently the invocation inscribed on the Medal: "O Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee."

By virtue of a decree of the Sacred Penitentiary, April 22, 1933, a partial indulgence of ten years may be gained each time that a member with contrite heart devoutly recites six Our Fathers, Hail Marys and Glorys for the intention of the Holy Father. By repeating these prayers at least once each day for a month, a plenary indulgence may be gained under the usual conditions.

FDR Cuts Smoking As Venders Go Dry

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—The big publicity given to the cigarette shortage in newspapers has also brought frequent mention of vending machines. In most cases this publicity has been favorable to the machines because it called attention of the public to the importance of venders in supplying smokes to the public.

What is thought by the trade here to be the biggest story mentioning venders was an Associated Press release November 27 which said that even President Roosevelt had to cut down on his smokes. The press release also mentioned that "downstairs at a vending machine, where White House employees had purchased cigarettes, there wasn't a pack in sight."

You will be needing help, you know, when you enter that diplomatic arena. Let the Divine Infant who so miraculously saved the people of Prague before be your shield. He is eager to guide you. Ask Him, and the Holy Ghost, the Divine Giver of Wisdom to enlighten you and to help you always to remember that there can be no compromise with error. Ask the spirits of the thousands of our dear, dead boys to intercede for you before the Heavenly Throne, that you may win for them and us the just and Christian peace they died for. And may our Blessed Lady, the patroness of these great United States protect you and watch over you and bring you back safely to us with a great job well done.

Sincerely Yours

E. Lowing Byrnes.
