Please forgive me for dictating this letter but I am being driven to it because the family tells me that people prefer to know that their presents have been received, rather than to wait a year or two until I get around to a longhand letter! I hope I shall see you soon. In the meantime, my love to you and the family.

Writes the President that at the request of Mr. C. Edgar Elliott, President of the Haytian American Sugar Company, he is sending him a case of Virgin Islands Company rum, which is now available in the American market in a blended form. Mr. Elliott was anxious that the President may taste its quality and note the first appearance of this rum on the American market. Gov. Cramer states that the Sarthe-St. Croix Company, recently organized and established in St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, carries on a blending process in a modern plant set up there, in which Virgin Islands Company rum is blended with rum manufactured by the Haytian American Sugar Company of Port-au-Prince, Haiti. The product is sold under the label of "Sarthe-St. Croix Rum."

Dear Mr. President Roosevelt:

You are about to enjoy another birth day, and as a token of my respect and appreciation for what you have done for us as farmers, I am sending a picture to you of yourself which I painted. Many of my friends say it is a very good likeness of you, but they, like I, have never seen you in person so we can not know.

I am the twenty two year old wife of a Texas farmer and am very happy except for a longing to become an artist (a real one). As I have neither training, equipment or a chance to look at real paintings, I'm afraid I shall never amount to much as an artist.

The material on which your likeness is painted is of the same heavy material we use in the South to make Cotton sacks. The paint is the sort you mix and blend house paint with. My brushes are pretty good when they are new but I have only had three sets of new brushes in my life, and I've painted for a long time; learned to save brushes by using a rag to put on back ground with.

However, I hope you like this picture just a little any way, and will write and tell me if it looks like you are not.

May you have a very happy birth day and many, many more of them in the White House.

Sincerely

Mrs. S. E. Riley

My dear Pres. Roosevelt:

I am mailing you today under separate cover a copy of my new book entitled, "Building America." Please read it, and then make up your mind as to what you will and can do in cooperating with me in bringing its message into every local election precinct in America, of which there are over 120,000.

If you agree with me that a nation-wide movement should be inaugurated in the interest of good government and adult education along the lines therein suggested, let me hear from you immediately, telling me what you are willing to do. I can do very little without help from other people who are like-minded. I have spent many years in its preparation, and I am willing to make further sacrifices to help in building America anew on the Bible, the Home and the Townmeeting. "Let us rise up and build."

Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt

Dear Mr. Roosevelt:

Under separate cover I am sending you a small book which I have enjoyed reading, and which I thought you might also enjoy. I am sending it to show my appreciation of the splendid work you are doing in our country today, and to also express my appreciation of being employed on the Federal Music Project. No one, who is not a musician, can understand just what adversity the musician has been called upon to face in the past few years, and what the beginning of the Music Project under the Government means to us. But you have been told by many, that it means work, work with the thing that we love, and that we have spent years and money in perfecting. I do thank you so much for what you are doing in that way.

May I say that no other Book, with the exception of the Bible and Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, has impressed me as this book "Equality" by Edward Bellamy has done. It seems to me to fairly shine with the teachings of the Golden Rule. To me it would be a splendid thing if our Country should be the first to grasp, and put into practice such a teaching.

All of my life I have been a dyed-in-the-wool Republican, but I do want you to know that you have gained a firm supporter through the work that you doing for us, and for so many others.

My dear Mr. President:

Under separate cover I am sending you a copy of a book Miss Cramer and I have just published for high school boys and girls, entitled EFFECTIVE SPEECH. I thought you might be interested in it in view of the fact that we have used a picture of you speaking for the frontispiece, and your name is the final one to be used in the decorative design for the cover, which includes the names of many of the greatest exponents of speech arts since the days of Demosthenes.

An enlarged edition will be published in the fall, in which we shall use a number of your speeches, and have occasion to refer many times to your effectiveness before audiences and as a radio speaker.

You may be interested to know that most of us who are interested in good speech regard you as the outstanding example of that art in America today.

I regret to advise, however, that while holding his present office, the President is prevented from commenting, in any way, on the merits of the many books, manuscripts, musical compositions, etc. that come to his attention daily.

I feel sure, upon further reflection, you will appreciate the President's situation and will understand why he cannot do many of the things he would like to do.

Dear Mr. President:

Samuel Nisenson at the age of sixteen was my office boy.

When Sir Charles Higham, my associate in London, was over on one of his annual trips, he met Samuel and noticed he had a flare for drawing. Samuel made a drawing of Sir Charles which was so good that Sir Charles urged him to quit his job as office boy and study art.

Samuel took Sir Charles' advice and has made good as an illustrator. His first book, MINUTE BIOGRAPHIES, sold 165,000 copies. Since then he has published four books.

Grosset & Dunlap invited him to edit, publish and illustrate THE CONSTITUTION AND THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA. Mr. Nisenson secured the services of Mr. George Durant Proctor to put the story of the Constitution and the Supreme Court into plain language.

I take pleasure in sending you an autographed copy; I do wish that you would accept this book with my own and Samuel Nisenson's compliments--and perhaps write me a letter, please, which I am sure will be helpful to Samuel Nisenson and the sale of his book.

Thank you.

Cordially,

Dear Mr. McIntyre:

When we were at San Jacinto Battle Ground last Thursday, Judge Ray Scruggs of Harris County, handed me the enclosed joke books which he compiled and asked that I deliver them to the President, if the opportunity afforded.

I had intended giving them to you on Saturday last but, as you know, we were compelled to leave the train rather hurriedly the night before during the time you were at Mr. Carter's, due to Mr. Jones' air accident.

If you can conveniently do so, it will be much appreciated if you will hand the books to the President. Judge Scruggs said that he would be amply repaid for his effort in compiling these jokes, if the President got one laugh out of them.
