BIO

James Hahn is a sales leader, keynote speaker and leading authority on fixed indexed annuities and indexed universal life insurance. With more than 30 years of experience, he is Executive Vice President of Sales and Distribution at Annexus, the nation's leading independent retirement planning product design and distribution company. He leads several high-profile partnerships, including those with Goldman Sachs and Nationwide, that continue to redefine retirement planning solutions in America.

A self-described servant leader, James is passionate about training and coaching current and potential partners on the benefits of FIAs and IUL as well as growing sales within distribution. Engaging and enthusiastic, James is celebrated for his strategic vision and his contributions to the financial industry. His work continues to influence and inspire peers and aspiring leaders alike.
