Made Possible Through Connection 23

Mercy, whose mom was formerly in foster care, celebrates at a birthday event hosted by SME Industries and SEG Foundation.

A New Chapter

Dear Friends,

When I think about this past year, one thing stands out: what we accomplished together.

The truth is...it was an incredible year.

This year reminded me that connection really does change everything.

Because of supporters like you, we connected more youth with caring adults, strengthened families, expanded community partnerships, and continued creating lasting relationships across Colorado, Nevada, and Utah.

We saw that impact in so many ways. A fourth-grade student in Las Vegas turned a classroom project into a fundraiser for youth experiencing foster care. Hundreds of supporters gathered in Utah to celebrate the power of connection. In Colorado, our Champions for Children event welcomed its largest attendance since before the pandemic and raised more than $454,000 to help children and families thrive.

We also continued advocating for the children and families we serve. This year, Raise the Future engaged on important legislation, testified before legislative committees, participated in Legislative Day at the Colorado Capitol, and was recognized by both chambers of the Colorado General Assembly.

Together, we're creating change not only in individual lives, but in the systems that support them.

LETTER FROM THE CEO

One of the moments I'll remember most was hearing Family Support Practitioner DaShun Jackson share his lived experience in foster care during Champions for Children. His story reminded all of us why this work matters. Behind every number in this report is a child looking for connection, a family opening their heart, and a community choosing to make a difference.

This year was also a meaningful one for me personally as I stepped into the role of Chief Executive Officer after spending the past 25 years at Raise the Future.

People have asked me what this transition feels like, and my answer is always the same: it's an honor. I don't have to discover why this mission matters. I've believed in it for a long time, and I've seen the difference it makes in the lives of children and families. I also know that none of it happens without people like you.

Thank you for believing in Raise the Future. Your generosity, partnership, and advocacy make this work possible. I'm grateful you're part of this journey, and I'm excited for all we'll accomplish together in the years ahead.

With gratitude,

Lindsay Kaeding
Chief Executive Officer

About Us

Connect Youth. Support Families. Create Hope.

Raise the Future connects young people waiting in foster care with caring adults and helps those relationships last a lifetime. Across Colorado, Nevada, and Utah, we strengthen lasting connections and equip foster, adoptive, and kinship families and communities with the support they need to grow together.

Finding a family is only the beginning. Lasting connections grow through trust, stability, and belonging. Caregivers need support through the challenges and encouragement as their families grow stronger together. That is why we walk alongside young people and families through every stage of their journey.

Our Vision

Every young person goes through life knowing they have a caring adult by their side.

Our Mission

To connect youth waiting in foster care with the adults who become stable forces in their lives, and to support those relationships so that they last for a lifetime.

Youth Connections

Our Youth Connections team works alongside young people, especially those who have waited the longest to identify family members and other caring adults, rebuild and strengthen important relationships, and help each young person create a lasting network of belonging.

Family Support

Our Family Support team provides coaching, family navigation, training and practical guidance to foster, adoptive and kinship families. By helping caregivers understand and respond to the needs of the young people in their care, this support strengthens relationships and helps families navigate challenges together.

A Family's Journey begins on page 4 and continues throughout this report, showing how ongoing support helps families build lasting trust and belonging.

A Family's Journey

Part 1 of 5

Names have been changed, and representative photographs are used to protect the family's privacy.

Separated From Everything Familiar

When Maria and David welcomed two teenage brothers into their home, they did not know how much their family would grow or how much they would learn together. Their journey would include sibling separation, difficult transitions, moments of uncertainty and, ultimately, a lasting sense of family.

In January 2022, siblings Isaiah, 17, Cameron, 16, and Sofia, 14, entered foster care. Maria and David welcomed Isaiah and Cameron into their home, while Sofia was placed with another family.

Being separated from their parents and from one another made an already difficult transition even harder. Trust did not come quickly. The behaviors adults saw on the surface were connected to grief, trauma and the loss of everything familiar.

Children do not enter foster care because of something they have done. They enter because the adults responsible for them are unable to provide the safe, stable care they need. When siblings are separated during that transition, the loss can become even more difficult.

On His Own Time

Building trust, one conversation at a time.

"Marcus" and "Renee" are pseudonyms, and representative photographs are used to protect the family's privacy.

This story is based on the experiences of Raise the Future Youth Connections Advocate MaryKate Alvarez.

After Marcus's placement with his aunt, Renee, ended, he was not ready to talk about returning to her home. MaryKate focused on building trust and gave him space to move at his own pace. As their conversations grew from a few minutes to 30 minutes or more, Marcus began opening up about the relationships that mattered to him. Again and again, he identified his aunt and cousins as the people he could turn to when he needed help.

Months later, when Marcus left another placement, he went to Renee's home. Their visits have since become more frequent and now include overnight stays. Marcus is still deciding what he wants, but he is once again considering the possibility of living with his aunt.

"Marcus has taught me that we must meet our youth where they are, and we can't rush the process," MaryKate said. "Building trust is essential in this work."

A Family's Journey

Bringing the Siblings Together

Names have been changed.

When Maria learned that Sofia was living within driving distance, she began arranging visits with her brothers. Sofia joined them for weekends and sleepovers, giving the siblings time to reconnect.

When Sofia later needed another home, Maria and David welcomed her into theirs. The siblings were together again, but the family still needed support to build trust, communicate and create the stability they all needed.

Over the next few years, Isaiah and Cameron moved out as they each turned 18. During that time, their biological parents had another baby, Lily, who was placed with Maria and David when she was only two weeks old.

Their family was growing, and so were the challenges of caring for Sofia and Lily while continuing to support Isaiah and Cameron as young adults.

DONOR IMPACT STORY

One Caring Adult Can Change a Life

"As an adoptive father, my heart goes out to young people who may grow up without a permanent family to guide them toward their next steps. When I support Raise the Future, I know I'm helping young people connect with caring adults while helping families stay together for a lifetime.

I often think about the difference one caring adult can make in the life of a young person. By supporting caregivers every step of the way, Raise the Future helps create stronger families and brighter futures. I'm proud to support this mission each year, including through a legacy gift, and I hope others will join me in helping ensure every young person has a safe, supportive adult by their side."

Learning a New Way to Connect

Names have been changed.

Maria completed Raise the Future's TBRI® Caregiver Series, while Sofia and Lily participated in the organization's in-home coaching program.

Raise the Future paired Sofia and Lily with Sarah Hosea, a Family Support Practitioner who helped the family practice TBRI® principles in their daily lives. Together, they worked on regulating, using their voices, naming their emotions and connecting through play.

Maria also learned to approach difficult conversations differently. Instead of addressing an issue in front of everyone, she found that private, one-on-one conversations helped the children feel safer sharing what they were experiencing.

Over time, Sofia and Lily made meaningful progress in naming their emotions and communicating their needs without relying as heavily on behaviors to express what they were feeling.

These changes did not happen overnight, but they helped the family understand one another, work through difficult moments and build stronger relationships.

Celebrating a New Chapter Together

National Adoption Day marks the beginning of a new chapter for families who have finalized their adoptions. In November 2025, Raise the Future and Clark County Family Services welcomed approximately 50 adoptive families to the Excalibur Fun Dungeon in Las Vegas for an afternoon of celebration, connection and fun.

For the third consecutive year, MGM Resorts International donated the venue, giving families a welcoming place to enjoy arcade games, activities, photographs and time together. The celebration honored more than an adoption milestone. It gave families an opportunity to create joyful memories as they looked toward their future together.

Shoes That Fit joined the event as a new community partner, providing every participating youth with a brand-new pair of athletic shoes.

For young people, a new pair of shoes can offer more than comfort. It can help build confidence and provide a sense of dignity, belonging and support.

Together, MGM Resorts International, the Excalibur Fun Dungeon and Shoes That Fit helped make the day about more than adoption finalizations. They helped families feel seen, celebrated and surrounded by a community invested in their future.

Every participating youth received new athletic shoes

Momentum Continues

Plans are underway for the 2026 National Adoption Day celebration, continuing a tradition that brings families and community partners together to honor adoption, belonging and lasting connection.

Choosing Family: Adoption Day

Names have been changed.

Years after the siblings first entered their lives, Maria and David faced the possibility that Sofia and Lily could be moved to another home.

The possibility of losing them made one thing clear: Maria and David could not imagine their family without them. With support from Raise the Future's Family Support program, including in-home coaching and caregiver training, they continued preparing for adoption and navigating the challenges ahead.

May 4, 2026

On that day, Sofia and Lily were officially adopted.

Adoption marked an important milestone, but their need for connection and support did not end there.

Creating Moments That Matter

SME Industries turns generosity, relationships and community influence into meaningful support for Utah's youth and families.

30+ Youth received holiday gifts and essentials

100+ young people celebrated at two birthday events

MORE employees stepping forward as mentors

SME Industries' partnership with Raise the Future goes far beyond financial support. By asking what youth and families need and then stepping forward to help, SME creates experiences that help young people feel seen, valued and connected.

During FY2026, SME provided holiday gifts and essentials to more than 30 youth. In partnership with Smith Entertainment Group, SME also supported two birthday celebrations for more than 100 young people in foster care. Its generosity created memorable experiences, including a family trip to a Utah Mammoth game and an opportunity for one youth to participate in the coin toss and meet Lionel Messi at a Real Salt Lake match.

SME's partnership shows what is possible when a company uses its resources, relationships and influence to help young people feel supported, celebrated and connected.

THE MOMENTUM CONTINUES

SME's annual golf tournament raises funds and awareness for organizations serving youth in foster care. Employees have stepped forward as mentors, and company leaders continue bringing people together to explore long-term solutions.

Permanency Is Not the End

Names have been changed.

Adoption was an important milestone, but it was not the end of the family's journey.

Through in-home coaching, caregiver support and family activities, Maria and David continued learning how to help their children work through big emotions, build trust and create positive memories together. They also connected with other caregivers who understood the challenges and joys of building a family through foster care and adoption.

When Isaiah and Cameron learned that their sisters were going to be adopted, they told Maria and David they wanted to come home, too. Today, the siblings are together again under one roof.

Their family life is busy, sometimes chaotic and full of love.

Public Policy & Advocacy

Advocating for Children, Youth, and Families

Creating lasting change extends beyond the services we provide. Throughout the fiscal year, Raise the Future worked alongside policymakers, coalition partners, and child welfare leaders in Colorado, Utah, and Washington, D.C., helping advance policies that strengthen child welfare and improve outcomes for children, youth, and families.

By sharing our expertise and the experiences of the families we serve, we helped inform conversations on permanency, foster care, adoption, kinship care, and post-adoption support. Our advocacy focused on ensuring that children and families have access to the resources, services, and stable relationships they need to thrive.

Colorado

Raise the Future participated in Legislative Day at the Colorado State Capitol, where our team met with legislators to advocate for permanency, post-adoption support, kinship care, and continued investments in children, youth, and families. We also participated in the Child Welfare League of America's National Advocacy Day in Washington, D.C., meeting with Colorado's congressional delegation to discuss federal child welfare priorities.

Throughout the legislative session, Raise the Future provided testimony before the Colorado General Assembly and worked alongside advocacy partners to strengthen legislation, protect children and families during a challenging budget year, and ensure child welfare remained a priority for policymakers.

Utah

In Utah, Raise the Future partnered with statewide child welfare organizations to help shape legislation affecting foster care, adoption, permanency, and behavioral health services. Our team also helped secure continued legislative funding for Wendy's Wonderful Kids, Raise the Future's evidence-based recruitment program delivered in partnership with the Dave Thomas Foundation for Adoption. The funding ensures Utah's longest-waiting youth continue to receive specialized recruitment services that help connect them with permanent, loving families. We also supported efforts to protect Medicaid funding and strengthen resources for foster care providers.

GRANT PARTNER SPOTLIGHT

A Partnership Rooted in Action

Raise the Future is proud to partner with the Yuhaaviatam of San Manuel Nation to support foster and adoptive youth and families in Nevada.

The Yuhaaviatam of San Manuel Nation is a sovereign, federally recognized American Indian tribe of Serrano people located in San Bernardino County, California. Yuhaaviatam means “People of the Pines.” Guided by the spirit of Yawa’, meaning “to act on one’s beliefs,” the Tribe invests in organizations working to build stronger, more compassionate communities.

Through its partnership with Raise the Future, the Yuhaaviatam of San Manuel Nation helps ensure that youth who have waited the longest in foster care receive consistent support and opportunities to build lasting relationships. Its generosity also strengthens the resources available to the adults who step forward to care for and support these young people.

Raise the Future is honored to be part of the Tribe’s legacy of compassion, reciprocity and community. Together, we are helping youth and families begin new chapters rooted in connection, belonging and possibility.

With Gratitude

Every new chapter begins with people who believe in what is possible. We gratefully recognize the individuals, families, foundations and organizations whose generosity supported Raise the Future during the fiscal year ending June 30, 2026.

With gratitude to the many donors who gave through donor-advised funds, workplace giving programs, and other giving partners.

A Raise the Future family at our A Day for Wednesday's Child event at Boondocks in Colorado with CBS Colorado news anchors Mekialaya White and Michael Spencer.

Made Possible Through Connection

Families like Maria and David's do not make this journey alone. Raise the Future's employees, donors, grant partners, sponsors, community partners and public leaders each help provide the programs and support that make lasting connection possible.

Your investment helps youth stay connected to the people who matter to them, prepares caregivers to support children who have experienced trauma and ensures families have support before and after adoption.

This is what permanency can look like when a family has the tools, relationships and community support needed to stay together.

The Work Continues

Be Part of What's Next

Every child deserves someone who shows up, listens, and believes in them. For 43 years, our community has helped make those connections possible.

Your support can help us reach more youth, strengthen more families, and create brighter futures.
