Graduation 2026 and God's Holy Days

The two months of May and June are known for graduations in the United States. Millions of students graduate, during these two months, from high schools and colleges across the nation. Commencement addresses are given by famous and not-so-famous men and women. Generally, the messages are of hope and look ahead to the future. (And, of course, in our world today, some of them will be political.)

In this issue of One Accord, we focus on our high school and college graduates. I remember graduating from both high school and college with a burning desire to get on with life. After high school, I was headed to college. After college, I was headed to Atlanta, Georgia, to begin my ministerial career. In both cases, I had great excitement as I tried to imagine what life would be like in my new surroundings.

One of the most important parts of life is having something to look forward to. Human beings need hope for the future. Looking forward to new opportunities or positive change gives us energy and ignites the enthusiasm that drives us forward. But that feeling should not end with graduation.

I learned early in life that God's holy days contain that same element of looking forward—of anticipating what lies ahead. In fact, the purpose of God's holy days is to reveal God's plan of salvation. This is a truth unknown to the world: that all human beings will be given an opportunity for salvation and eternal life in the Kingdom of God. That is a profound truth, yet it is denied or misunderstood.

The apostle Paul described our hope as Christians in 1 Corinthians 15, often called the Resurrection Chapter. Some were claiming there was no resurrection. Paul explained that without the resurrection, Christian faith would be empty and hopeless. Notice verses 17-19:

“And if Christ is not risen, your faith is futile; you are still in your sins! Then also those who have fallen asleep in Christ have perished. If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men the most pitiable.”

Through the annual holy days, God gives us something extraordinary to look forward to—ultimately becoming part of His family in the world tomorrow. We have just finished observing the Day of Pentecost, the third festival of the year. The first three festivals picture events that have been fulfilled, at least in type. Passover commemorates the sacrifice of Jesus Christ for our sins. Unleavened Bread reminds us of the need to remove sin from our lives and replace it with righteousness. Pentecost represents the coming of the Holy Spirit, the beginning of the New Testament Church and the sealing of the firstfruits.

Now we look forward to the final four festivals. Each pictures an event yet to be fulfilled. The Feast of Trumpets pictures the return of Jesus Christ to this earth, the resurrection of the saints who have died and the change to immortality for those still alive. What a day that will be! Trumpets is followed by Atonement, which pictures the putting away of Satan for 1,000 years. Atonement is followed by the Feast of Tabernacles, picturing the millennial reign of Jesus Christ on this earth. And then we have the Eighth Day (the Last Great Day), which pictures the final day of judgment.

Congratulations to all those who have graduated! Your life is just beginning in so many ways. But never forget the spiritual journey we are all on. Let's keep looking forward to the future that we celebrate each year when we gather on God's festivals.

Managing Regret

Every human being experiences regret at times. The challenge is what to do about it! Here are ways to understand regret and some helpful strategies to manage it.

By Karen Meeker

I know exactly what will happen next. I've experienced it before.

It starts like this. I go to bed at my usual time, around 9 p.m. I relax, close my eyes, breathe deeply, and—nothing happens. I change positions, adjust the covers and try again. I'm still wide awake.

So, if sleeping is not a choice, the next best thing is . . . thinking. It's dark. It's quiet. A perfect time for meditation—right? A time to ponder the happenings of the day, the beautiful sunrise, fascinating Bible passages I read that morning, to-do lists, conversations with family, e-mails from friends . . . but no.

It starts with remembering conversations or encounters, sometimes from decades ago. Memories tinged with a familiar nemesis: regret.

Then it progresses to rueful thoughts: I wish I hadn't said that. And how could I have said that?! I didn't mean it that way. Why did I do that?! I

Before long, I'm in full-fledged regret mode, and sleep is just a fantasy.

Nothing new

Recently, I learned that the emotion of regret has been a subject of interest for many social scientists over the past several decades.

At least one website encouraged people to share their regrets anonymously and garnered thousands of responses from around the globe. It was the brainchild of Daniel Pink, best-selling author and lecturer. He wrote his book The Power of Regret: How Looking Backward Moves Us Forward based on scores of independent studies and responses from his survey.

I found this book engaging, enlightening and well-documented.

Just what is regret?

First off, Pink establishes that regret is common to everyone except for the very young (he says that the emotion kicks in at about age 7), those with brain damage and sociopaths. Feeling regret, in essence, is part of being human.

He then carefully explores what he sees as four basic types of regret:

- Foundation (regretting the failure to be responsible, conscientious or prudent).
- Boldness (regretting the chances not taken or missed opportunities).
- Moral (regretting poor behavior or compromise of beliefs).
- Connection (regretting the neglect of people and relationships).

If only

Regret is often accompanied by a rueful "if only." If only I had not done this or said that, or had tried harder, planned ahead, etc.

The author uses the familiar fable of the carefree grasshopper and the resourceful ant to illustrate two perspectives: overvaluing the now (living for the moment) and undervaluing the later (preparing for the future).

To understand "if only," Bible students need only remember the parable of the 10 virgins and the distress the foolish five experienced (Matthew 25:1-13). "If only" they had prepared, they would have had enough oil to last until the bridegroom arrived.

Strategy #1: Think ahead; do the work; start now to build a stable platform for life. Be the ant and avoid regret.

Going boldly . . . or not

Boldness, by definition, describes a willingness to take a risk or to act innovatively.

The boldness of regret kicks in when we realize that we can't regain a missed opportunity. Often, the slang words coulda and shoulda, along with "what ifs," impede the possibility of growth.

Jesus used the parable of the talents in Matthew 25:14-29 to encourage His followers to capitalize on the talents they've been given, with an eye to growth. The unprofitable servant who refused to do so found himself chastened, reduced to nothing, and devoid of further opportunity—a certain recipe for regret!

(For further insights, read “The Spiritual Tool of Self-Management.”)

Strategy #2: Don’t let “what ifs” keep you from “at least I tried.”

Missing the mark

Moral regret is likely the response most familiar to us as Church members because it often involves violations of fairness, kindness, loyalty, authority and purity. It is said to be the most individually painful.

The apostle Paul expressed it this way: “For what I am doing, I do not understand. For what I will to do, that I do not practice; but what I hate, that I do” (Romans 7:15). He later said, “Now if I do what I will not to do, it is no longer I who do it, but sin that dwells in me” (verse 20).

Pink says this regret is often liberally peppered with “if only I had done the right thing.” On a secular level, such regrets can center around things like not having or finishing a college degree or not taking better care of oneself physically when confronting health issues. For the Christian, however, it is often about missing the mark—sinning—and the need for repentance and change.

(Note: Regret is not the same as repentance, but can lead to repentance. For more information concerning regret and repentance, see “No Regrets?”)

Strategy #3: When in doubt, do the right thing.

Correcting the drift

Years ago, my husband and I had some good friends in the area where we then lived. We shared many enjoyable activities with Clint and Meg (names changed).

When we moved several states away, we occasionally exchanged visits. However, with the passage of time and the aging process, our connection was reduced to sporadic phone calls.

One day, that all changed. Clint was diagnosed with an incurable disease that would soon take his life. Our communications took on a somber tone, and too soon, the dreaded call came—Clint was gone.

Because of distance and timing, we couldn’t travel to the funeral, and during the following years, we lost contact with Meg altogether. Attempts to locate her were futile. No one knew anything about her, where she was, or if she was doing well.

That friendship added significance and satisfaction to our lives, but we let it drift away.

Strategy #4: Do better next time. Do something now.

Transforming regret

The author suggests that a starting point for transforming regret into a positive is to revisit a specific episode. Then take the following steps:

- Undo or amend an offense by acknowledging blameworthiness and regret, followed by an apology. (In Matthew 18, Jesus explores offenses from the viewpoint of the offender and the offended, with the ultimate objective being forgiveness and reconciliation.)
- If an apology will not suffice, the author advises shifting to the mindset of “at least”—finding a future-facing lesson from an occasion for regret. Think about how it could have turned out worse. Learn from it. Then, move forward.

The apostle Paul worked to transform the negative pull of regret into a positive push for change. In Philippians 3:13-14, he wrote: “Brethren, I do not count myself to have apprehended; but one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forward to those things which are ahead, I press toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus.”

Strategy #5: Change what you can. Learn from what you can’t.

Summing it up

There is so much more to learn, but here are some takeaways I’m thankful for learning through this study:

- It helped me identify in clear terms the types and origins of regret.
- It offered suggestions for keeping my nighttime nemesis at bay with hopeful “at leasts” instead of self-condemning “shouldas.”
- It encouraged me to own my offenses and remedy them when possible. ☺

And Then It Was Over

By Paul Hamilton, FI Student

If there was ever a time when the phrase time flies truly applied, it would have to be our amazing experience at Foundation Institute. It seems like just yesterday we were gathering for orientation, and now here we are, graduates of the program, reflecting on everything we experienced, especially graduation weekend.

Since the last FI column, our class completed our media projects, which included social media posts for the FI Facebook and Instagram accounts, our class annual and the student In Accord. These projects gave us valuable insight into the work of the Media department and everything involved in producing this kind of content. The social media posts and In Accord have already been published, and I hope all of you had an opportunity to see them. Our class annual has been printed and distributed to congregations for viewing, and I hope you have a chance to look through it and appreciate the effort and creativity that went into producing it.

Graduation weekend—May 15-17—was a whirlwind of excitement, joy and a bit of sadness.

Family members began arriving on Wednesday, and on Friday afternoon everyone gathered in the FI break room for fellowship. It gave us the opportunity to connect with the families of our fellow students and provided the perfect opportunity for family members to tour COGWA headquarters, including the studio where In Accord and Life, Hope & Truth Presents are filmed.

The festivities continued on Sabbath as we attended services in Dallas. Graduating FI student Logan Arner gave the sermonette, and Jim Franks delivered the baccalaureate sermon.

After services, Matthew and Dora Jennings graciously opened their home to all of our families, classmates and many of our instructors for fellowship and a dinner of chicken and steak fajitas. With around 60 people in attendance, the evening was memorable in every way.

Sunday brought our graduation ceremony. Doug Johnson delivered the commencement address, reflecting on our Foundation Institute experience while encouraging us to continue learning and applying what we gained as we move forward. Each student received not only a certificate but also an FI pin and a hand-carved wooden writing pen.

We then watched our class-produced In Accord and a slideshow of photos from the previous nine months, put together by Aubrey Kapales. It brought back fond memories of the FI experience for all of us.

Following the slideshow, we gathered outside for our class photo and then enjoyed a buffet lunch together while reflecting on both the day and the entire experience.

After lunch came photos with classmates, family and friends, along with some of the dreaded goodbyes. It's difficult to describe just how emotional those goodbyes were. Spending nine months seeing each other almost every day, we had become close. Thankfully, the goodbyes happened gradually since some students stayed in the area for another week or more before leaving.

Tiffany and I have decided to remain in the area, and Logan Arner lives here as well. It has been great continuing to see Logan at Sabbath services in Dallas. Still, I think all three of us would agree that it feels strange not seeing our other classmates.

Fortunately, we already know we will have opportunities to reconnect—at camp, the Young Adult Leadership Weekend, the Feast and the Winter Family Weekend.

Our class may have had the widest age range of any FI class—from 18 to 86 years young—and it serves as a reminder that Foundation Institute truly is for anyone and everyone!

While the primary focus of FI is building biblical knowledge—and we left with an abundance of it—we shared experiences outside the classroom and built friendships that will last a lifetime. ☺☺

NEWS OF THE WORK

Education Center Building Update

Framing continues, with workers adding steel studs to the exterior walls of our building. Delays due to stormy weather have slowed things down a bit, but our builder still projects finishing construction in October.

Ministerial Services

Pastoral Development Program 2026

On June 7 the third (and final) session of this year's Pastoral Development Program (PDP) concluded. The four-day continuing education program was attended by all of the U.S. and Latin American field ministry with their wives—a total of 116 over the three sessions.

Here is just a sample of the 15 different classes conducted:

- “Sound Doctrine: Preserving the Truth.”

- “Preaching the Gospel.”
- “AI in Ministry: Tool, Temptation or Both?”
- “What Makes People Start—and Stop—Listening?”
- “Cyclical Heresies.”
- “Developing Future Leaders for God’s Work.”
- “The Heart of a Pastor.”

Ministerial Services provides ongoing training for ministers employed by the Church using other means, such as video classes and live webcasts. However, the in-person nature of these PDP sessions provides opportunities for face-to-face dialogue and the development of friendships. The fellowship that pastors and their wives have over the four days is encouraging and beneficial in ways that go far beyond what online classes can offer.

The PDP is held every other year, in years when the International Ministerial Conference is not held.

Stats & Facts About FI Online

Foundation Institute first began posting weekly online classes in November of 2012, with the Gospels class taught by Richard Thompson. Now, almost 14 years later, the courses posted cover almost two-thirds of the Bible.

- 17 Old Testament books
- 24 New Testament books
- 2 Other (Fundamental Beliefs and Modern Church History)

The material in each of these classes is detailed—going through books of the Bible verse by verse. But finding where a particular verse is talked about in a video is not fast or easy. To solve the problem for herself, Sonja Hawkins, wife of Peter Hawkins, our retired pastor in the U.K., recalls, “I began typing out what the presenter was saying in the classes in a form of a transcript.”

In late 2017, Mrs. Hawkins shared one of her transcripts with Clyde Kilough, and not long after, began producing word-for-word transcripts to be posted online with each new class.

The process starts with a preliminary video and YouTube-type closed-caption script. Mrs. Hawkins listens to the class and makes any needed corrections and then formats it and adds images of the presenter’s slides, maps and other illustrations. Lisa Brown, a member in Italy, then reviews the document before it’s posted. Other volunteers have also helped over the years, including Mr. Hawkins.

Thanks to these volunteers we now have transcripts for all of the classes posted since FI Online first began!

Retirement of David and Teddi Treybig

Over 160 people gathered on Sabbath, April 18, to honor David and Teddi Treybig on their retirement after serving in the ministry for more than 50 years—14 in Austin, Texas.

Dave Myers gave the first message with a history of the Treybig's service. Jim Franks joined him on stage to present the Treybig's with a commemorative vase. Then Mr. Franks gave the sermon on New Testament figures and their duties as ministers.

After services, the local congregations presented the Treybig's with gifts: a book of remembrance containing pictures and messages from members, a crystal vase and a beautiful cake.

Kadoma Young People Enjoy Church Outing

On Sunday, June 7, 12 young adults and eight children from the Kadoma, Zimbabwe, congregation spent the day at the Claw Dam.

They enjoyed a number activities, including relay races, tug-of-war, balloon target shooting and boat rides on the dam.

It was a wonderful day of fun and fellowship.

Neville Smith

Van Buren Members Enjoy Picnic

Picnic days at the park are all about mouth-watering burgers, hot dogs, side dishes and desserts—and the Van Buren, Arkansas, congregation enjoyed them all on a beautiful day in May at Lake Fort Smith State Park.

A big plus was the pleasant cool breeze blowing in from the lake, making conditions ideal for fellowship and outdoor games, such as cornhole. Tex Williamson emerged as the new cornhole champ, attaining the much-prized title.

Evansville, Nashville and Louisville Host Farewell to Willoughbys

On April 25, the Evansville, Indiana, and Nashville, Tennessee, congregations bid farewell to Nathan and Amanda Willoughby. The following Sabbath, May 2, the Louisville, Kentucky, congregation followed suit. Each congregation shared food, special music and gifts to honor the Willoughbys in heartfelt ways. Laughter and tears flowed as memories were shared and well wishes given.

After eight years of service, the Willoughbys are transferring to serve congregations in Springfield and Joplin, Missouri, and Harrison, Arkansas. Our prayers go with Nathan and Amanda as they settle into their new responsibilities.

East Texas Women Share Stories of Miracles

While men attend their monthly meetings of the Men's Leadership Club, ladies in the East Texas congregation attend their Women's Fellowship evenings.

The evening of April 18 was our last fellowship evening, and we enjoyed a meal of delicious sandwiches and salads while sharing personal experiences of answered prayers and miracles—some occurring since our calling and some occurring as God was calling us.

These stories of God's intervention and/or miracles were inspiring. They brought tears of joy and gratitude and caused us to draw closer together as sisters in God's spiritual family.

Southwest Missouri Ladies Attend Seed Festival

On Monday, April 13, a group of ladies from the Springfield and Joplin, Missouri, congregations caravanned together to attend the annual spring Baker Creek Seed Festival in Mansfield, Missouri. The festival highlighted their high-quality flower and vegetable seeds, as well as a smattering of local goods, crafts and foods.

We were able to spend time together eating, strolling, enjoying local folk music and having quality time together. An added treat was being able to watch the local blacksmith in action—he just happens to be a member of the Springfield congregation.

Bacolod Ladies Get Together

The hectic Mother's Day rush had already subsided, but the warm bond among the mothers and ladies of Bacolod City, Philippines, remained strong. On the beautiful afternoon of May 17, they gathered at Sugaree Cafe and Gelato to relax and enjoy one another's company and fellowship.

The cozy café provided the perfect setting for sharing parenting experiences, exchanging wisdom and enjoying moments of laughter and encouragement. Freed from the usual rush and crowded schedules, the gathering became a meaningful opportunity for quality fellowship and honoring the journey of motherhood and friendship.

Fort Worth Campout Attracts Dallas and Tulsa Members

The Fort Worth, Texas, congregation hosted its annual spring campout at Lake Mineral Wells the weekend of April 24-26. Several members from Dallas and Tulsa, Oklahoma, attended as well.

Pastor Ken Giese gave a Bible study on the significance of the number seven to God's people. Teens and preteens had classes designed for them: The younger kids crafted birdfeeders while learning about God's care, while the older youth had a Bible scavenger hunt and scripture race and played a Bible-themed game. After dinner, campers enjoyed games, fellowship and the night sky.

The adventurers headed home on Sunday after a fun-filled bonding experience.

We encourage members to send announcements to be featured in One Accord. We feature events in members' lives, including births, weddings, significant anniversaries (25, 40, 50, 60, etc.), baptisms, ordinations and obituaries. Entries should run between 50-100 words, with obituaries being 100-200 words. Please submit a high-resolution color photo along with the written copy to your congregation's reporter.

Anniversary

Toni and John Flynn

John and Toni Flynn celebrated 50 years of marriage on April 25, 2026. The East Texas congregation honored them on May 9 with a reception after services featuring finger foods and a cake. Each of their three grown children wrote them a tribute, sharing stories and memories about their youth. They included complimentary comments of how their parents' example showed what love, commitment, playfulness, humor, mercy and patience should look like in marriage.

Baptism

Olivia Arnold

After services on Sabbath, April 11, 2026, the Roanoke, Virginia, congregation joyfully welcomed Olivia Arnold into God's family through baptism. Members of the congregation and her family were present for the ceremony. Our pastor, Tom Burrows, performed the baptism, assisted by local elder Johnathon Arnold, who is Olivia's father.

Joining them in the laying on of hands were Mike Arnold (an elder with UCG and Olivia's grandfather) and local elder Van Hanson.

Afterward, everyone returned to the meeting hall to enjoy cake, snacks and fellowship in honor of this special occasion. Welcome to the family, Olivia.

Ordinations

Bill Welch

On the first day of Unleavened Bread 2026, the Houston South, Texas, congregation witnessed the ordination of Bill Welch as an elder in the Church of God. As a longtime deacon, Bill has faithfully handled many responsibilities.

He and his wife, Kathy, actively serve the Houston South and Victoria, Texas, congregations with a shared commitment to God and love for the brethren.

Greg Mann

Brian Anderson and Britton A. Taylor

Two men serving in the Fort Worth, Texas, congregation and one in the Tulsa, Oklahoma, congregation were recently ordained deacons by pastor Ken Giese.

Mr. Giese and elders Jim Hudson and Tom May ordained Greg Mann (center in photo) in Tulsa on the last day of Unleavened Bread, April 8, 2026.

On the following Sabbath, April 11, Mr. Giese, elder Dave Johnson and COGWA treasurer Britton M. Taylor ordained Fort Worth members Brian Anderson (far left in photo) and Britton A. Taylor (far right).

All three men have been serving God's people faithfully in various capacities and will take on more responsibilities going forward.

Obituaries

Constance "Connie" Muehlman

Connie Muehlman, a longtime and devoted member of the Church of God, died peacefully in her home at the age of 86 on Oct. 4, 2025. Connie attended the Springfield, Missouri, congregation.

Connie was born on March 23, 1939, and lived her entire life in Springfield, Missouri. She worked in banking for over 23 years. A devoted homemaker and a talented seamstress, Connie had a love for crocheting beautiful afghans for family and friends.

Connie also had a passion for square dancing. She and her husband, John, first met while teaching beginner lessons and were paired as dance partners. Connie wanted to know more about keeping the Sabbath and discovered that John was a Sabbath-keeper. It wasn't long before God opened her eyes, and she became a baptized member of the Church, and the two of them married. They shared 25 years together.

Throughout the past decade, as Connie bravely faced Alzheimer's, John cared for her with love and devotion. She is also survived by three children from previous marriages.

Pamela Carey

Pamela Carey, of Berryville, Virginia, died on April 16, 2026, due to pulmonary hypertension. She was born on Sept. 8, 1954, in Winchester, Virginia, to the late Irma and Charles Carey Sr.

After high school, Pam earned an associate degree at Bauder Fashion College in Florida, before beginning her career at Doubleday and later Montgomery Ward.

Pam was a faithful member of COGWA in Frederick, Maryland. She brought great joy to her Church family and remained devoted to her faith for more than 30 years after her baptism. Pam knew the Bible well and valued fellowship with others. She often called friends and Church members simply to check on them. Children fondly remember her famous chocolate chip cookies.

In addition to her parents, Pam was preceded in death by her brothers Joey and Todd Carey.

She is survived by her siblings Charles Carey Jr. (Kerri), Tedd Carey (Laura) and Paula Yates; and sister-in-law Gloria Carey. She also leaves behind cherished nieces and nephews, as well as a great-niece and great-nephew.

Pam will also be remembered by many aunts, uncles, extended family members, dear friends and her beloved Church family. She now rests in hope, awaiting the resurrection.

Loretta and Rod Williams

Evelyn Beal

Evelyn Jeanne Beal, of Big Sandy, Texas, died at home on April 1, 2026. She was born Dec. 13, 1943, in North Miami Beach, Florida, to Douglas Allred and Glenda Martin. She faithfully served her country in the United States Air Force.

A voracious reader, Mrs. Beal had a deep love for nonfiction and a passion for history. She was well-known for her incredible cooking and baking, especially her mean Thanksgiving dinners that brought family and friends together.

In her quieter moments, she enjoyed working as a seamstress, creating with both skill and care. She also earned recognition as a certified master gardener and took pride in her expertise as an orchid specialist.

Mrs. Beal was a devoted student of the Bible and a dedicated member of the Church of God, a Worldwide Association.

Mrs. Beal is survived by her four children, Teresa Newman and Alan Vollmering, Beau and Juliet Beal, Shannon Faith Flowers and Lindley Ballowe; 12 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.
