

Development Free from Conflicting Dependencies

Consolidated Medical Staffing aims to connect healthcare facilities that have available shifts with healthcare professionals willing to take on the work. Project Leader Richard Rovinelli's role entails building a mobile application to facilitate those connections, so he looked for a way to simplify development to meet quick turnaround times.

Challenge

In the healthcare industry, understaffing can put patients' health at risk. Richard's app needed to be developed quickly to connect providers with facilities that need help. Other development options were a headache, each offering only so many components when Richard wanted simplicity.

"I got tired of using multiple packages with conflicting dependencies," Richard says. He needed a development solution that acted as a partner instead of hindering his work. Some options introduced errors due to versioning dependencies, which would halt his work just when he started to build momentum.

Solution

When he found SynCFusion®, Richard found both a comprehensive component library and a partner who could help him with any development issues. Every step of the way, SynCFusion support was there to help figure out any snags—from providing extensive documentation to helping Richard find a caching problem that threw an error, saving him days of searching on his own.

The Essential Studio® for Flutter and JavaScript brought the functionality of the app to the finish line, giving Richard the ability to finalize planned features and introduce new ones.

"I would like to extend my thanks for the extraordinary level of support I have received," says Richard. "This was by far the best help I have ever experienced in more than 40 years in the IT business. Amazing team."

Impact

While Richard may have run into some questions as he used Syncfusion products, having a support team that was ready with answers was what mattered most. He estimates that partnering with Syncfusion took between 50% and 60% of the processing time off his plate. “As good as [Syncfusion] products are,” Richard said, “the most important factor to me was the scope and depth of the support. A truly amazing support team.” Now, Richard can finish testing and get his app on the market.

Featured Quote

“I would like to extend my thanks for the extraordinary level of support I have received. This was by far the best help I have ever experienced in more than 40 years in the IT business. Amazing team.”

–Richard Rovinelli, Consolidated Medical Staffing

