Subject: Written Comments Regarding Proposed Modification of Action Pursuant to Section 301: China's Acts, Policies, and Practices Related to Technology Transfer, Intellectual Property, and Innovation [Docket ID: USTR-2019-0004]

Dear Ambassador Lighthizer:

On behalf of the Retail Industry Leaders Association (RILA), thank you for the opportunity to submit written comments on the Proposed Modification of Action Pursuant to Section 301: China's Acts, Policies, and Practices Related to Technology Transfer, Intellectual Property, and Innovation.

By way of background, RILA is the trade association of the world's largest and most innovative retail companies. RILA promotes consumer choice and economic freedom through public policy and industry operational excellence. Its members include more than 200 retailers, product manufacturers, and service suppliers, which together account for more than $1.5 trillion in annual sales, millions of American jobs, and more than 100,000 stores, manufacturing facilities and distribution centers domestically and abroad.

As the trade association representing major U.S. retail companies, RILA appreciates the opportunity to participate in each of the previous three public hearings to comment and share our views. RILA supports holding U.S. trading partners accountable and using targeted trade remedies against intellectual property theft, illegal dumping or subsidies, and other proven trade violations consistent with international rules. However, RILA remains opposed to the use of tariffs, specifically tariffs on consumer products. American families should not bear the burden of another round of tariffs imposed on billions of dollars' worth of consumer goods while the Administration is working to address China's bad trade practices.

Retailers are concerned about the negative impact that the proposed tariffs under Section 301 of the Trade Act of 1974 and the modification of trade action under Section 307 of the Trade Act of 1974 could have on America's working families. That is why RILA respectfully requests the removal of 779 tariff lines from the proposed tranche 4 list of products subject to the Section 301 tariffs on Chinese imports. Products range from clothing, shoes, consumer electronics and toys, a vast majority of goods that have zero relationship with the Administration's underlying concerns with technology transfers and intellectual property theft.

Tariffs on these products our customers buy every day will cut into the budgets of American families particularly lower and middle-income families who can ill-afford to pay more for everyday consumer goods. Research by The Trade Partnership shows that an average American family would pay over $2,300 in goods and services each year if the proposed tariffs are implemented.¹ The study found that if all tariffs continue and there is a sales decline, the United States will face a net loss of more than 2.2 million American jobs. Similarly, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York found that the tariffs the United States imposed on Chinese imports are already costing American households $106 billion a year, with the most recent round of tariffs on Chinese imports doubling the cost on American households.² This is equivalent to 19 gas tank fill-ups or five weekly trips to the grocery store for a family.

China is by far a top sourcing destination and a major supplier of many consumer products: 41 percent of all apparel, 72 percent of all footwear, and 84 percent of all travel goods imported into the United States in 2017 [HTS 6402.99.31, 6403.40.60, 6403.99.60, 6404.11.75, etc.]. Thus, shifting current sourcing plans would significantly disrupt the flow of trade and raise costs on everyday essentials. For some of the consumer products, shifting production to a country outside of China to avoid the tariffs is costly and takes time. Retailers are continuously working to diversify their sourcing, but it requires working with our suppliers and vendors to ensure products continue to meet the quality, quantity, and pricing demands of our customers. If this proposed tranche of tariffs is implemented, we expect the U.S. consumers to bear the burden of the tariffs without advancing the Administration's goal to change China's trade practices.

Weinstein, "New China Tariffs Increase Costs to U.S. Households," Federal Reserve Bank of New York Liberty Street Economics (blog), May 23, 2019, <https://libertystreeteconomics.newyorkfed.org/2019/05/new-china-tariffs-increase-costs-to-us-households.html>.

For apparel, average U.S. tariff rates are already very high, averaging 16 percent but can go up to 32 percent for man-made fiber garments. Adding an additional tariff of up to 25 percent could mean that more than half the cost of the item would be attributable to tariffs. Tariffs on apparel would also jeopardize the millions of U.S. jobs that contribute to the value of the product – including product design, quality assurance and product safety, distribution, transportation and logistics, marketing and retail service jobs. According to a U.S. Global Value Chain Coalition study, more than 70 percent of an imported garment's retail value comes from workers in the United States.³

Certain apparel items are predominately manufactured in China and thus difficult to move supply chains both in the near-term and long-term that meets requirements for quantity, quality, and timeliness. For example, cotton sweaters are predominately produced in China due to specialized labor requirements known as linking. Over 85 percent of women's cotton sweaters [HTS 6110.20.2020], 77 percent of girls cotton sweaters [HTS 6110.20.2025], 69 percent of men's cotton sweaters [HTS 6110.20.2010], 66 percent of boys cotton sweaters [HTS 6110.20.2015], and 25 percent of baby cotton sweaters [HTS 6110.20.30] of all U.S. imported items under those HTS lines come from China. Bangladesh is the second largest importing country representing only 7 percent of the total imports for men's and women's cotton sweaters. Similarly, apparel production of sweaters made of wool-blend yarns are dominated by China, leaving very limited options for alternative sourcing of these sweaters [HTS 6110.11.00, 6110.30.15]. The second largest importing country was Italy, with 4 percent share for women's wool sweaters and 12 percent share of men's wool sweaters.

Besides safety gear and furniture, a major expenditure for new families is the cost of clothing, where 47 percent of all baby playsuits and sun suits and 45 percent of all baby garments and clothing accessories are manufactured in China based on year to date. American families increase the frequency of their infant and children's clothing purchases due to the rapid growth of their new family members. It is also important to note that these tariffs on clothing, particularly infant clothing, are highly regressive, disproportionately affecting working and middle-class families. Low-income households spend three times as much of their after-tax income on apparel and services as do high-income households.⁴

⁴ Bureau of Labor Statistics, "Quintiles of Income before Taxes: Average Annual Expenditures and Characteristics, Consumer Expenditure Survey, 2017," <https://www.bls.gov/cex/csxresearchtables.htm#allnew>. "Low income families" are those in the lowest 20 percent quintile; "high income families" are those in the highest 20 percent quintile.

In 2018, 52 percent of all leather footwear imports into the United States came from China. For certain shoes [HTS 6402.20.00, 6402.99.31, 6404.1927], there are no existing alternatives outside of China to source these products at the scale needed for the American consumer. Retailers have developed specialized, vertically integrated supply chains and thus the additional proposed tariffs will be paid by American businesses and consumers. According to the Footwear Distributors & Retailers of America, an American family will pay an extra $131.93 on shoes annually if the proposed tariffs are implemented, adding up to a $7 billion increase on footwear alone.

Similarly, 85 percent of all toys sold in the United States are imported from China, according to The Toy Association. The United States represents a third of total global toy sales equaling $27 billion annually. Currently, toys and toy-related products [HTS 9503.00.00] enjoy a zero rate of duty, thus slapping a tariff of up to 25 percent will only increase the cost to U.S. consumers. These products have no relation to the Administration's concerns in the Section 301 investigation, and retailers have no other option from which to source a majority of toys and toy-related products our customers demand than China. While much of the product design, research, innovation, marketing, and distribution operations are here in the United States, employing thousands of American workers, our suppliers' production cycles remain entrenched and integrated in China. Tariffs on toys would cause disproportionate harm on American consumers and the majority of the small and medium-size toy companies here in the United States.

Consumer electronics are also predominately sourced from China. This includes mobile phones [HTS 8517.12.00], laptops and tablets [HTS 8471.30.01], and televisions [HTS 8528.59.23, 8528.72.64], which are used daily by American consumers and businesses. Moving production outside of China will take time and the expertise to manufacture these products are not readily available for shifting sourcing. Suppliers are reluctant to take on the risk of moving low-margin, high-volume consumer electronic supply chains. For televisions, the Administration previously removed those items from the final list from tranche 1, for which we appreciate, only to reinsert them in the proposed tranche 4 list. The message remains that moving production of televisions outside of China is not a viable option. According to the Consumer Technology Association, these tariffs would increase the price consumers pay by 23 percent, again showing that the tariffs cannot be absorbed by the supply chain and will only get passed down to consumers.

Home appliances, such as microwaves [HTS 8516.50.0030, 8516.50.0090], coffee makers [HTS 8516.71.00], air fryers [HTS 8516.60.4070], vacuums [HTS 8508.11.0000] and toasters [HTS 8516.72.00, 8516.60.4070] are in nearly every home in America. Manufacturers have built an ecosystem of component part manufacturers in China that contribute to the high efficiencies that drives costs lower for American consumers. Our suppliers work to ensure products meet U.S. safety standards and the quality standards our customers demand. Moving production outside of China also causes what the New York Fed economists called "deadweight loss," where firms may choose to source from suppliers outside of China, but the cost of doing so may be less efficient and only nominally cheaper to avoid the full impact of the tariffs.

Other products where China continues to dominate as the country of origin:

- High Efficiency Dual Flush and other Toilets [HTS 6910.10.0010; 6910.10.0010]
- Charcoal Grills and Smokers [HTS 7321.19.0080]
- Stainless Steel Patio Heater [HTS 7321.81.5000]
- Patio Furniture [HTS 7321.89.0050]
- Lighting [HTS 8301.40.6030, 8513.10.4000, 8539.50.0010, 8539.50.0030, 8539.50.0090]
- Ceiling Fans [HTS 8414.51.3000]
- Power Tools, including drills, grinders, saws, sanders, routers [HTS 8467.21.0010, 8467.21.0070, 8467.22.0020, 8467.22.0070, 8467.29.0025, 8467.29.0040, 8467.29.0055, 8467.29.0090] and batteries [HTS 8507.60.0020]
- Bras [HTS 6212.10.50]

For some items, adding an additional tariff would be cost prohibitive. Most luggage and backpacks already face a 17.6 percent duty. Slapping a tariff of up to 25 percent would mean that tariffs account for almost half of the cost of the product. This would impact American travelers as they vacation this summer season, as well as the American families shopping for back-to-school.

Additionally, some products are simply safety items required by federal and state law, such as car seats and booster seats [HTS 9404.90.8522, 9401.80.6023]. Reinserting these products after they were successfully removed from the previous proposed tranche of tariffs is disappointing. Given the federal requirements mandated by Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC) and the National Highway Transportation Safety Administration (NHTSA), alongside state requirements, Americans are required to use these products for the safe use and protection of children in the United States.

During the previous public hearing on the tranche 3 proposed tariffs on Chinese imports, our suppliers expressed concerns that American consumers will turn to less safe options to offset the financial burdens created by the proposed 301 tariffs. This includes using expired car seats, which are among the most expensive new family necessities, and one required by law, and reusing products that are made for single-use. If those manufacturers change suppliers, federal agencies would require a series of new tests and certifications for all finished products, component materials, and sub-materials and thus would compromise contracts, legal compliance, quality, and value for the customer.

Because of the challenges and likelihood for rising costs described here, RILA recommends that the products listed in the attached Appendix A be removed from the Administration's proposed list of goods subject to the 301 tariffs. The risk of rising prices means lower sales, which could result in layoffs and store closures. The ripple effect of these tariffs will be felt in every sector of the American economy. We strongly encourage the Administration to avoid adding other consumer products, whether in this proposed action or any future Administration actions.

The Administration's proposed tariff action would not address China's improper transfer of technology, nor would it be effective in eliminating China's discriminatory behavior against U.S. companies. In fact, it would do greater harm to U.S. economic interests. The three previous rounds of tariff actions have already proven this.

We look forward to working with you as you narrow the proposed list based on our comments and we are happy to provide any additional input to you prior to finalizing it. As you do so, please think of the millions of U.S. consumers, our customers, who effectively pay the price of any increases on tariffs.

We look forward to working with you as the Administration pursues long-term solutions to China's harmful technology and intellectual property practices and we ask that any solution be reached as quickly as possible and avoids an even greater negative impact on American consumers.

Sincerely,
