50 Rides, One Nation

Welcome to the official ride guide for 50 Rides, One Nation.

Enjoying the thrill of the open road on two wheels and the adventure of exploring new places is one of the many reasons you own a Harley-Davidson motorcycle. Being part of Harley Owners Group means there are a million fellow enthusiasts with whom to share those experiences. 50 Rides, One Nation is part of the H.O.G.® Ride 365 program, but at its heart it's a recipe for exploring America and a road map to a lifetime of epic journeys.

Harley Owners Group® has curated a wealth of information in these pages on the great places to visit in each state to help you get started exploring the beauty and majesty of America as it can only be experienced from the saddle of a Harley-Davidson® motorcycle. You'll also find some useful tips on riding – from packing to checking your motorcycle to group riding.

While we think these rides collectively represent the best riding that America has to offer, with some obvious and not so obvious choices, the list is by no means exhaustive. These rides are a starting point, an invitation to begin an epic journey that never has an end.

So put fists to the wind and head off on the adventure of a lifetime. We always love to hear about your adventures, so email us at enthusiast@harley-davidson.com (please include 50 Rides, One Nation in the subject line).

LOOKOUT MTN PKWY

Lookout Mountain Parkway

GADSDEN, AL TO THE ALABAMA-GEORGIA BORDER | 59 MILES

Lookout Mountain and its namesake Parkway run nearly 100 miles through Alabama, Georgia, and Tennessee. That's one long mountain! A network of country roads traces the ridge, past canyons, waterfalls, and state and national parks and preserves.

Alabama's portion of the parkway meanders 59 miles through the northeastern corner of the state. Starting at Noccalula Falls Park in Gadsden, head north on the parkway toward Collinsville and Fort Payne. Fort Payne sits along the infamous Trail of Tears, in which thousands of Native Americans perished during their forced removal in the 1830s.

Richardson Highway

VALDEZ TO FAIRBANKS, AK | 363 MILES

As the first road through America's last frontier, Alaska's Richardson Highway began as a pack trail in the late 1890s, bringing fortune seekers to the Klondike goldfields in the state's interior. Paved in 1957, the highway features some of the state's most breathtaking scenery, including glaciers, waterfalls, towering mountain ranges, and green valleys. Bridal Veil Falls, Keystone Canyon, Thompson Pass, and Worthington Glacier rank among its many highlights.

Richardson Highway is primarily a two-lane, changing to four lanes near Fairbanks. On the road, watch for wildlife, frost heaves, and frost sinks. You'll want to travel on a sunny, clear day for viewing the best scenery.

CORONADO TRAIL

Coronado Trail Scenic Byway

CLIFTON TO SPRINGVILLE, AZ | 120 MILES

Arizona's Coronado Trail Scenic Byway just might be the ultimate thrill ride. With more than 400 curves and precious few guardrails, US-191 winds through mountainous high desert and the Apache-Sitgreaves National Forest in southeastern Arizona. A National Scenic Byway, Coronado Trail has been nicknamed the "Devil's Highway" due to its previous designation as US-666.

Named for Spanish explorer Francisco Vasquez de Coronado who traversed the area in 1540 on a quest for the legendary Seven Cities of Cibola, this lightly traveled trail is well worth discovering yourself!

PIG TRAIL

Pig Trail Scenic Byway

NORTH OF WHITE OAK TO BRASHEARS, AR | 19.5 MILES

In a state renowned for great motorcycle roads, Pig Trail Scenic Byway stands heads and “tails” above the rest. Nestled within the hills and hollows of northwest Arkansas, the byway meanders 19 miles through the lush greenery of Ozark National Forest.

No one knows exactly how the Pig Trail got its name. One theory is that its twists and turns resemble a pig’s tail. Another claims it’s named for the feral pigs that once roamed the region. But the most frequently cited “tale” is that the byway has long been a popular backroads route to football games at the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville (whose team is the Razorbacks). In any case, you won’t want to miss this curvy country road sometimes called “The Arkansas Dragon.”

Palms to Pines Scenic Byway

PALM DESERT TO MOUNTAIN CENTER, CA | 41 MILES

Even if you've never ridden Palms to Pines Scenic Byway, you've probably seen it on television and in movies. Its spectacular curves, sparse desert, and forested mountain terrain made it a favorite filming location for many years. Starting in Palm Desert, CA -74 winds through the Santa Rosa and San Jacinto Mountains and into San Bernardino National Forest, ending in Mountain Center. Many published accounts claim that Palms to Pines continues north from Mountain Center to Banning along CA -243, but that portion is actually called the Banning-Idyllwild Panoramic Highway. It's a great ride too, and we highly recommend including it in your journey. However, check with local officials before continuing north from Idyllwild; for much of 2019, the road was closed at Lake Fulmor for repairs due to flood damage.

MILLION DOLLAR HWY

Million Dollar Highway

OURAY TO SILVERTON, CO | 23 MILES

Steep drop-offs, switchback curves, and precious few guardrails keep the adrenaline pumping on Colorado's Million Dollar Highway. Part of the San Juan Skyway Scenic Byway, the Million Dollar Highway runs 23 miles through the San Juan Mountains between Ouray and Silverton. With all its twists and turns, you'll find the scenery as breathtaking as the ride is vertigo inducing.

No one really knows how the highway got its nickname. Some say it's because of its "million dollar" views; others say the road cost a million dollars to complete in the 1920s. And some say it's because the fill dirt used for the roadway was rich in gold ore.

NORTHWEST CONNECTICUT | 90 MILES

Nestled in the foothills of the Berkshire Mountains, the Litchfield Hills region of northwestern Connecticut offers a plethora of visual delights. Rolling hills, tranquil lakes, dense forests, and rich farmland characterize the area, and Colonial towns dot the serene landscape.

Begin your loop in the historic town of Litchfield, incorporated in 1719. With its shaded village green and unspoiled Colonial architecture, it has been called one of New England's prettiest places. Later, along the loop's western edge, you'll pass through the town of West Cornwall, site of the West Cornwall Covered Bridge.

More than a century ago, mass production of affordable automobiles and an increasingly mobile society brought about the need for better roadways. The Lincoln Highway was developed to meet this need, becoming America's first named coast-to-coast automobile road in 1913.

Named in honor of the 16th president, the highway is still in existence, although it has undergone various realignments over the years. Our route through Indiana follows the highway's 1928-1930 final course, giving you a chance to experience living history along its rural and urban paths.

Riding Tips: What To Pack

SO YOU'VE PICKED YOUR DESTINATION AND PLANNED THE ROUTE - NOW IT'S TIME TO PACK FOR THE ROAD. HERE ARE OUR TOP TIPS FOR WHAT TO BRING (AND WHAT TO LEAVE BEHIND!).

1 CLOTHES You'll be surprised at how little you can get by with. Two pairs of jeans are plenty: one to wear while you ride, the other to wear after you stop for the night. Even one can be enough, depending on your willingness to wear dirty, sweaty clothes on the road. Remember, you're a biker - nobody expects you to look clean and polished all of the time.

2 UNDERGARMENTS Synthetic fabrics are ideal for underclothes and base layers, as they draw moisture away from the skin and dry very quickly. Take advantage of hotel laundry services, or simply rinse out underwear and socks and hang to dry overnight on the shower curtain - with help from the hotel blow dryer if necessary.

3 HEAD GEAR Full-face helmets are one of the trickiest things to pack. It helps to stuff something inside, such as riding gloves - just take care not to damage the inner foam core. Keep in mind that if your plans include an H-D EagleRider bike you have the option of borrowing a helmet for the duration of your ride.

4 FOOTWEAR Your riding boots may not make good walking shoes, so it's wise to have a pair of sneakers handy for time spent off of your bike. If you choose to wear those shoes on the plane, compensate for the bulkiness of the boots in your luggage by putting items like socks or a rolled-up T-shirt inside of them.

TOP TIP

DRESSING IN LAYERS IS KEY TO FACING CHANGEABLE WEATHER CONDITIONS ON THE ROAD.

5 WHERE TO PUT IT Try to keep one saddlebag for your outerwear and the other for things you won't need until you stop for the night. If you have Tour-Pak® luggage, you can use it for items you need to access frequently. Consider putting your overnight things in a single lightweight bag within the saddlebag. A selection of zipper-lock plastic bags is also a great option for keeping everything organized.

6 HOLD BACK On a short trip, or if you're bringing several pieces of luggage, you may find yourself with extra room. Resist the temptation to fill up all available space. Leave a little room for items you might buy along the way. Also, if it's hard work to fit everything onto the bike, remember that you'll have to do it every morning on the road.

7 ASK YOUR DEALER Remember that dealerships can help with many luggage matters - whether you want to send your luggage ahead, store it during your trip, or send things back home if you've bought more than you can carry!

DRESSING FOR THE ELEMENTS

COLD GEAR You never know when you might hit some cold air, wherever you are in the world. Thermal underwear helps a lot and doesn't take up much packing space. Make sure you have a warm pair of gloves, and remember that there's no shame in waiting for the air to warm up before you set out in the morning.

HEAT Pack light, breathable clothing that will keep your arms covered while you ride. A mesh riding jacket is a great choice if you know it's going to be hot.

WET A waterproof jacket of some sort is a must, with waterproof pants a close second. Waterproof riding boots that are comfortable to wear while riding and walking should be a high priority - unless your bike has lower fairings, which will help keep your feet dry.

Tunnel of Trees

BAYVIEW TO CROSS VILLAGE, MI | 28 MILES

The aptly named Tunnel of Trees is shaded by a canopy of hardwoods and evergreens for much of its 28-mile length. The winding, narrow road runs along the high bluffs overlooking Lake Michigan, with occasional breaks in the foliage offering glimpses of the water below.

Plan on having lunch at Legs Inn in Cross Village at the end of the ride. The restaurant, open from mid-May through late October, was started by a Polish immigrant in the early 1920s. The funky stone-and-timber eatery was named for the row of inverted stove legs that form a railing around the roof and even has its own Michigan Historical Marker (which is the checkpoint for this ride).

GLACIER NATIONAL PARK | 50 MILES

Truly one of the top bucket-list rides in the nation, Montana's Going-to-the-Sun Road sits in a class all by itself. From cedar forests and glacial lakes to alpine tundra, the road bisects Glacier National Park, offering myriad spectacular scenic views and crossing over the Continental Divide at Logan Pass.

It's advised to check weather conditions before riding, as snow can delay the opening of the alpine portion of the road until late June or early July, and weather closures at any time of the year are possible.

SANDHILLS
JOURNEY

Sandhills Journey Scenic Byway

GRAND ISLAND TO ALLIANCE, NE | 272 MILES

Nebraska's Sandhills Journey Scenic Byway traverses a long stretch of windblown prairie through the middle of the state. Covering more than 19,000 square miles and nearly a quarter of the state's land, the Sandhills comprises the largest area of grass-stabilized dunes in the Western Hemisphere.

Cows outnumber people by almost four to one, as the sandy soil isn't suitable for farming but is ideal for cattle ranching.

Extraterrestrial Highway

CRYSTAL SPRINGS TO WARM SPRINGS, NV | 99 MILES

Prepare for “close encounters” along the Extraterrestrial Highway – NV-375 between Crystal Springs and Warm Springs. Whether these encounters are with UFOs – the region abuts the infamous Area 51 government test facility – or with the free-range cattle that roam the high desert area – you’ll want to exercise due care.

Roughly halfway along the journey, stop in Rachel at Little A’Le’Inn, the legendary bar/restaurant/souvenir shop. Even if you don’t try its specialty – the Alien Burger – you’ll want to photograph the sign and flying saucer outside – it’s this ride’s checkpoint.

Riding Tips: Rally Safe Riding

NO DOUBT YOU'RE ALREADY LOOKING AHEAD TO THE NEXT RIDING SEASON AND PLANNING WHICH RALLIES YOU'LL BE TAKING PART IN. HERE ARE OUR TOP TIPS TO HELP YOU GET THE MOST OUT OF YOUR RALLY EXPERIENCE, WHEREVER YOU'RE HEADED!

- 1 FIRST THINGS FIRST Make sure your bike is ready for the journey and festivities, and that you have everything you need – see our detailed tips on packing on page 46.
- 2 HAVE A PLAN It can be difficult to get consensus among a group of riders. Before you set out, agree on what you'd like to see and do, the type of roads you want to ride, and the distances and speeds you're comfortable with for each day.
- 3 ONCE YOU ARRIVE One of the most common accidents at rallies is the slow-speed tip-over. This is due to several reasons: middle-of-the-street parking, the commotion of many riders and pedestrians, slow speeds, and the added pressure of being watched by hundreds of peering eyes. The best way to avoid this is to practice riding and parking slowly. Once you're at the event, aim to park with the rear wheel on the curb and the front wheel pointing toward the middle of the road. Leave an open path forward to pull out and park in a spot where the bike's jiffy stand provides optimal balance. If a tip-over does happen, don't panic. Take a moment to evaluate yourself and your motorcycle, and recruit help if needed.

4 LARGE GROUPS: DON'T BE A LEMMING Whether it's a casual excursion with friends or a massive organized parade, riding in large groups is a near certainty at most rallies. Group riding is one of the great experiences of a motorcycle rally and following some basic advice easily minimizes the risks. Probably the most important general advice is not to get too caught up in the excitement. Always ride within your own comfort zone and make your own decisions.

WHEREVER YOU ARE AND WHOMEVER YOU'RE WITH, HAVE THE CONFIDENCE TO RIDE YOUR OWN RIDE, AT THE SPEED THAT SUITS YOU.

Special events, such as parades or concerts, can be particularly challenging. Avoid the inevitable traffic jams that occur when these events end by carefully timing your departure to avoid the rush.

Such advice sounds simple and obvious, but the nature of groupthink has a peculiar way of turning individuals into lemmings.

- 5 MAKE THE MOST OF IT Focus on what makes the event special in the first place. Why is it famous? Take advantage of local knowledge; guided tours from local chapters can show you things you would never find yourself.
- 6 FINALLY... Remember, the rally itself is not the sole reason to visit that area. There's likely to be a lot of interesting things to see and do away from the main rally site, so don't miss out. Check out the suggested regional routes and top tips, spread throughout this guide.

RIDING SOMEWHERE NEW

While it's always exciting to ride somewhere you've never been before, beware of the challenges of riding roads and regions you're experiencing for the first time. In an unfamiliar location, it becomes more vital than ever to maintain these basics of road safety:

- Ride at a speed that you can easily slow down or stop from.
- Search aggressively within the visible sight distance.
- Always position yourself to have an escape path.
- Cover your brake and clutch controls to reduce your reaction time.
- Pay heightened attention to road signs.

ENCHANTED CIRCLE

Enchanted Circle Scenic Byway

NORTHERN NEW MEXICO | 113 MILES

New Mexico's Enchanted Circle Scenic Byway blends astonishing natural beauty with eons of human history. Home to Taos Pueblo, a UNESCO World Heritage site that has been continuously inhabited for more than 1,000 years, and the country's first Vietnam Memorial, in Angel Fire, the byway offers a wealth of "enchanted" scenery and riding.

Circling the highest point in the state - Wheeler Peak in the Sangre de Cristo Mountains, at 13,159 feet - and running through Carson National Forest, the region is also home to the popular Taos Ski Valley.

Riding Tips: Touring

SO YOU'VE DECIDED TO TAKE A LONG MOTORCYCLE TRIP. GREAT! WHETHER IT'S YOUR FIRST BIG RIDE OR YOU'RE A TOURING VETERAN, HERE ARE A FEW TIPS TO HELP YOU GET THE MOST FROM IT.

1 BEFORE YOU GO The first thing you should ask yourself is "What's my tolerance for the unexpected?"

For instance, some people won't take to the road before booking a hotel for every night, while others prefer to play it by ear. There's no such thing as the correct approach in this regard, but here are a couple of "in-between" suggestions to get you started.

Consider making a reservation for every other night or every third night as a compromise. Another option is to make reservations a day at a time after checking the weather forecast. That way you can take your time without having to worry about stopping early to find a suitable hotel.

If you're traveling with others, make sure you're all on the same page regarding hotel stays, dining preferences, riding styles, and so forth.

Even if your only real goal is to see where the road takes you, it's nice to have at least one planned destination, as this gives your trip more purpose and provides a greater sense of satisfaction when you get there.

2 COMFORT How far have you ridden on your bike? Hundreds of miles a day can wear you out a lot faster than trips around town. Try a test run to see if you want to put on a more comfortable seat or add a windshield, for example.

3 CAPACITY Have you thought about how you're going to pack everything you need? If you don't have saddlebags, you'll need to make sure you can securely strap a bag to the passenger pillion. Consider adding a backrest and/or luggage rack if necessary. A backpack is always an option, but make sure it's small enough to not interfere with your other luggage and isn't too heavy.

4 MAINTENANCE Check your maintenance schedule. Will your bike need an oil change? How do the tires look? It's advisable to have your bike checked out before you set out on a long trip. If you need help while you're away, any H-D® dealerships should be able to assist, but they'll appreciate a heads-up if possible.

5 REMEMBER These tips only scratch the surface of what there is to know about touring. The best source of information is your fellow riders and H.O.G.® members, so don't be afraid to ask and never stop learning.

TOP TIP
BE SURE TO CHECK OUT LOCAL RIDING REQUIREMENTS AND REGULATIONS FOR YOUR DESTINATION BEFORE YOU TRAVEL TO AVOID ANY NASTY SURPRISES!

GETTING READY

MAKE SURE YOU THINK ABOUT:

PACKING Prepare for the elements but don't overdo it – check out the tips on page 46.

SUNSCREEN Wear it, even if you don't think you need it. Trouble spots can include the back and sides of your neck, along with that space between your gloves and the end of your sleeves. And, yes, you can get sunburned through the face shield of your helmet.

NAVIGATION In this age of easy GPS, there's still something to be said for a good old-fashioned paper map for pondering the next leg of your trip.

Badlands Loop Scenic Byway

BADLANDS NATIONAL PARK | 38 MILES

Badlands National Park is truly a monument to erosion. Its slowly changing pinnacles, spires, and bluffs evolved over thousands of years, and continue to erode by as much as one inch per year. Geologists estimate they will be gone completely in the next 500,000 years, so naturally you'll want to see 'em while you still can!

Badlands Loop winds for 38 miles through an eerie multi-hued landscape of spectacular rock formations. Be sure to stop at any of the park's 15 scenic overlooks to soak in nature's majesty.

Capturing Your Ride with Your Smartphone

Professional photographer and regular The Enthusiast® contributor Carlan Tapp shares some tips on how to take great shots of your ride with your smartphone – or any camera.

1 SEEING THE LIGHT As the sun rises in the morning, travels overhead, begins to fade, and slowly turns to night, the quality and feeling of light changes. Our eyes adjust to the changes quickly. The camera can record the changes and colors in ways our eyes may miss. Try taking photographs first thing in the morning, at midday, twilight, and evening. Practice taking pictures after dark; the results will amaze you.

2 IMPORTANCE OF SCALE One reason landscape photographs may not turn out as expected is that they lack scale. To create scale, use familiar objects in your photographs. Small objects make the landscape appear wide and big. Large objects in the foreground make it appear smaller. As you frame your next landscape picture, try adding a familiar object – maybe your bike or a fellow rider.

3 FRAMING-FOCUS- EXPOSURE There's an old saying in photography: The photographer is responsible for what goes in the frame. Before you take a picture, take a moment to carefully look at the screen on your phone. Is there anything in the picture you don't want? Sometimes moving your phone less than an inch can make the difference between a good picture and a great one. Move the phone around to see how your composition within the frame will change. Try not to cut your frame in half with the horizon line. Move it up or down a little for better results. Once you have the framing, a simple tap on the screen will set the focus and exposure.

4 RAIN OR SHINE If you're like me, you sure are happy when the sun is out and the road ahead is dry. But the weather will change – always. And weather, rain or shine, can help create interesting photographs. When you stop to put on the rain gear, remember to pull out your phone and take some pictures. A zipper-lock bag with a small hole cut for the lens makes an inexpensive waterproof case for your phone.

5 GETTING CLOSE While riding to Sturgis a few years ago, my route led me directly through acres of sunflowers. The view from the road at 65 mph was a blur of yellow and green. Then I stopped, turned around, and parked by the field. I realized it was all about slowing down, seeing, framing, and getting close. The closer I got, the more I saw. Try using your phone camera close up. It's better not to zoom in with the camera, as it may degrade the quality of your photograph. Simply walk closer to the subject you're photographing.

6 TELLING YOUR STORY Telling a story with pictures is like writing with words. Do you remember hearing that "a picture (or photograph) is worth a thousand words"? On your next ride, use the techniques discussed here to make compelling photographs. Then select four or five of your favorites to tell your story, and share with family and friends.

GAINING SOME PERSPECTIVE

The distance of objects from your camera and from each other affects perspective. The closer your subject is to the camera, the larger it will appear. Color can affect perspective, too. Warm colors (reds and oranges) often appear to come forward, while cool colors (blues and greens) appear to recede. In addition, light-toned objects often appear to be closer than dark ones. Your point of view or vantage point can also have a strong influence on perspective. Looking up at a building can increase the feeling of height. When you approach a scene to photograph it, try not to always shoot at eye level. Look at the subject of your photograph standing at your normal height, cut the height in half, then in half again. Look for angles and elements that can add interest.
