Putting policyholders first

Construction Risks

At Fenchurch Law, we understand the inherent complexity of construction projects, the variety of risks involved, and the role played by insurance in the allocation and management of risk exposures. Different risks are catered for by different types of insurance, which can itself give rise to overlaps or indeed gaps in cover, with the potential for disputes with insurers. We act for employers, contractors, and sub-contractors, in relation to disputed insurance claims under Construction All Risks, Professional Indemnity, Third Party Liability, and other policy types.

About Fenchurch Law

Fenchurch Law is the largest specialist team of lawyers in the UK dedicated to serving the needs of policyholders. We focus exclusively on insurance coverage for policyholders, specialising in complex disputes. Working closely with insurance brokers, we assist with cases that require an attribute which only solicitors can provide: the ability to initiate a process which can compel an insurer to pay a claim that it has decided not to pay.

Construction Risks

We have assisted in securing favourable recoveries and improving the scope of cover for clients in relation to all aspects of UK and international construction insurances, including:

- Contract Works
- Construction All Risks
- Cyber
- Employer's Liability
- Environmental & Pollution Liability
- Latent Defects Insurance
- Public Liability
- Professional Indemnity
- Products Liability
- Project Insurance
- Plant & Machinery Insurance

Specialist expertise

We have extensive experience in advising on policy wordings, claims notifications and presentations and the correct application of policy extensions and exclusions. We frequently advise on insurance disputes involving "damage vs defect" issues, "design vs workmanship" issues, and the proper interpretation of defects exclusions (particularly the "DE" and "LEG" standard forms).

Each member of our team has direct experience of the insurance market and focuses exclusively on coverage work. We are genuine insurance specialists, having previously worked for leading companies in a variety of roles including insurance broker, claims adjuster and in-house defence lawyer. This gives Fenchurch Law a broader perspective on policyholder needs and a strong commercial understanding of insurance and insurance law.
