

UNM Continuing Education DevOps Bootcamp

Study part-time to get the in-demand DevOps skills you need to launch your tech career, plus job search support to actually get hired.

According to research from Lightcast™, the number of DevOps engineering roles in Albuquerque will increase by 33% over the next 10 years.

Businesses actively seeking DevOps professionals span across all industries and sizes, including high-tech employers like Humana, Intel, and ECS Corporate Services, LLC, to name a few.

What You'll Learn

- Design, plan, and administrate enterprise systems
- Transform on-premise IT systems into cloud ready architectures
- Create scalable applications and systems in AWS with automation
- Use AWS operational and architecture best practices for common services
- Apply security hardening best practices for applications and systems
- Setup and apply end-to-end Software Development Lifecycles (SDLC) with common tools and practices

Entry-Level Roles You'll Be Ready For

DevOps
Engineer

Platform
Engineer

Build
Engineer

Reliability
Engineer

Release
Manager

Average Entry-Level DevOps Engineer Salary

$100,435*
in Albuquerque

*Source: Glassdoor

Tuition

$14,495

Scholarships and Payment Options Available

Format

Part-Time, 26 Weeks
Live Online

Skill Level

Beginner