University of San Diego Coding Bootcamp

Prepare for a career as a next-gen full-stack web developer.

Learn JavaScript, Git, React, PostgreSQL, generative AI-driven workflows, and more—plus get 1:1 personalized career coaching to help you get hired.

According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, the demand for software developers is projected to increase by 25 percent through 2031.

Businesses actively seeking web development professionals span all industries and sizes, and include local employers like Apple Inc., General Atomics, and Qualcomm (Lightcast™).

GENERAL ATOMICS   Qualcomm

Average Software Engineer Salary

$120,157

in San Diego

*Source: Glassdoor

Tuition Cost

Part-Time: $12,995
Full-Time: $13,995
Discounts and Payment Options Available

Format

Full-Time, 13 Weeks

Part-Time, 22 Weeks

Live Online

Instructor-Led

Skill Level

Beginner-Friendly

What You'll Explore

- Full-Stack Development
- HTML
- JavaScript
- PostgreSQL
- Express
- React
- Node.js
- Generative AI
- Prompt Engineering
- CSS
- Algorithms and Data Structures
- API Development
- Version Control
- Git and GitHub

Roles You'll Be Ready For

Full-Stack Engineer

Front-End Developer

Software Engineer

Web Designer

Back-End Developer